Co-Operate Key Word Says Pollen

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE and PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A new era of co-operation between Victoria and Saanich could lie ahead with the election of Peter Pollen as mayor of the city.

Both Pollen and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, who was easily re-elected Saturday, said they expect an early improvement in relations, and have arranged a mid-week meeting to discuss the situation.

How They Voted: Up-To-Date List On Page 3

Asked if he expects better co-operation, Pollen replied, "very definitely, particularly when there is such room for improvement."

"I think it's in the best interests of both communities and the region as a whole that the two largest municipalities work in closest co-operation ..." Pollen said.

FOURTH TERM

Re-elected to his fourth term, Curtis said he and Pollen "respect each other's view" and he is looking forward to "a good two years" working with him.

Curtis said prior to 1969 there was a "sympathetic contact" between the Victoria and Saanich administrations in the interests of the Greater Victoria community generally, "but that has not been the case recently."

Pollen, he said, looks beyond city boundaries and considers the region as a whole.

EXPERIENCE

Pollen said "in Mayor Curtis we not only have wisdom and experience, but obviously outstanding community leadership.

"I will be looking forward to working with him as I am sure Victoria council will be, for the best interests of the community."

Pollen said he wants to see "an early resolution" of problems in the Inner Harbor, and he mentioned Ocean Cement Ltd. and Marathon Realty as two companies he is hoping to get co-operation from.

Pollen defeated Mayor Courtney Haddock in Saturday's election by a decisive 2,240 votes. Two new aldermen were also elected to city council.

Haddock's was the first defeat of an incumbent mayor since the late Percy Scurrah turned Claude Harrison out of office in 1955. Haddock handily defeated Ian Stewart, his closest rival, when he succeeded Hugh Stephen in 1969.

The first results showed Pollen ahead by about the same margin as the final vote. Haddock, however, did not concede defeat until all votes were in.

With Pollen's win clear, attention turned to the aldermanic race. Mike Young, a 37-year-old lawyer and newcomer to municipal elections, was near the top of the list from the beginning and soon pulled ahead, winding up 260 votes ahead of the next alderman-elect. Young's total was 5,169.

THIRD PLACE

Incumbents Ove Witt and Clyde Savage traded second place throughout the vote-counting, and at the end Witt captured his second term on council 27 votes ahead of Savage, with a total of 4,909.

With Savage apparently assured of another aldermanic term, a third race developed between Bill Tindall, Bob Ellis and Alf Hood.

Tindall edged out Ellis by 59 votes near the end of the counting, with a total of 4,145. Hood ended up only 281 votes behind Tindall but never did hold the lead.

In the Saanich mayoralty race Saturday Curtis had a freewheeling ride home, leaving his opponent, A. W. (Bud) Mesher, far behind from the first lap.

The massive 5,627 majority — 8,169 votes to 2,542 — was the biggest election win by any mayoralty candidate in Greater Victoria for years.

The result appeared a foregone conclusion from the time the early results started going up on the board at Saanich municipal hall, just before 9 p.m.

FIRST RESULTS

The first two results, from the Prospect Lake and Tillicum areas, made it 134 to 53 and 282 to 94 in favor of Curtis.

And the tallies went roughly in that three-to-one ratio all

Slaying of Senator Stuns Terrorized Irish

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland was stunned today by the first political assassination of a current terror campaign when gunmen murdered a senator as his wife watched television.

The mutilated body of 68-year-old Senator John Barnhill, a Protestant and member of the governing Unionist party, was pulled out of the rubble of his wrecked home at Strabane early today. Irish guerrillas shot and killed him before blowing up the building.

The official wing of the IRA said today it was responsible for the killing.

Barnhill was killed by two armed men Sunday night at the doorway to his two-storey farm house, half a mile from the Irish Republic.

The killers placed his body in the living room and placed a 40-pound gelignite bomb beside it. Mrs. Barnhill was given two minutes to leave the house.

STAND KNOWN

Barnhill took office in 1962 and was chairman of the local branch of the Unionist party. He was not considered a controversial figure although his uncompromising stand against terrorism was well-known in political circles. He was the first member of the Northern Ireland Parliament to die in two years of violence that has claimed 196 lives.

Police believe a gang of terrorists from across the border was responsible for the killing. The same group was blamed for the killing of four persons in the same area during the last few months.

Expressing "furious disgust" at the murder, Ulster Prime Minister Brian Faulkner blamed outlaws of the Irish Republican Army, who have sworn to bring Northern Ireland to its knees by Christmas.

Faulkner said the assassins were from a special IRA terror gang staging raids into Ulster from sanctuary in the neighboring republic. He accused Dublin of failing to stop them.

Police and troops worked through the night to recover the body. Rescue attempts were hampered initially when another bomb was discovered in a car parked inside the senator's garage.

SHOPPERS SLAIN

The assassination came a day after two Christmas shoppers and two babies were killed in Belfast by a bomb explosion lacking the usual guerrilla warning beforehand to civilians.

In a sermon Sunday, William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of All Ireland, denounced the bombers and gunmen as monsters for their recently intensified terror campaign.

Referring to outrages including Saturday's bombing and the recent murder of a part-time soldier in front of his children, the primate said:

"The entire country, Protestant and Catholic alike, is sickened and horrified by the events of the past two weeks."

British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, in charge of Ulster security, flying to Belfast today, is expected to hear demands from Protestant leaders that Ulster should sponsor a civilian peace corps—possibly armed—to help the army watch public places.

Board to Set Priorities For Surgery

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will seek cabinet approval for creation of a medical board to set priorities for patients requiring specialized surgery.

Creation of such a board would take these decisions out of doctors' hands. Loffmark made the announcement today on Vancouver radio hotliner Jack Webster's show.

The minister's statement follows an announcement he made Saturday that open heart surgical facilities at Vancouver General Hospital will be increased 25 per cent by the end of January.

WELCOMES MOVE

Dr. Tim McCoy, executive director of the B.C. Medical Association, said BCMA welcomes creation of the board provided it is a non-political body.

McCoy said doctors have had to bear a heavy burden, being forced to set priorities on which patients will be operated on first in severe conditions such as heart disease.

Making his announcement, Loffmark said he would "present to cabinet an order-in-council which will put the responsibility for this where it belongs — and that is on a province-wide medical board."

DELAYS

He charged the medical profession had delayed four months this year in giving him recommendations for establishment of new open heart surgical facilities and that Vancouver General Hospital had not spend funds approved for it earlier this year for more heart patient beds.

More than 150 persons are on VGH's waiting list for heart surgery. One of them, the last, is Vancouver bookkeeper Russ MacKinnon, 53, who has had four heart attacks. MacKinnon is not expected to live long enough before his turn comes up at VGH.

Loffmark said today the

Dacca's Fall Imminent

Times News Services

Indian paratroopers advanced to within six miles of the centre of Dacca today, bringing the Pakistani defenders within range of their artillery, an Indian spokesman reported in New Delhi. He said the Indians would be in a position to capture Dacca within 23 to 28 hours.

★

Gen. S. H. F. J. Manekshaw, chief of staff of the Indian army, broadcast an appeal to Pakistani commanders in Dacca to surrender. But a pooled dispatch by American correspondents in Dacca said Gen. A. A. K. Niazi, commander of some 20,000 to 30,000 defending troops, vowed to fight to the last.

"Our army will either live honorably or perish for our cause," Niazi said.

A military spokesman in Calcutta said the Indian paratroopers, dropped Saturday and later reinforced, had overcome heavy resistance to advance to the Lakhya river ferry crossing six miles northeast of the heart of the city. Other Indian columns advanced with tanks and armored personnel carriers to within 12 miles of Dacca.

COMMNADER'S PLEA

Manekshaw appealed ot the Pakistanis to remove civilians and foreign nationals from the line of fire should they decide to fight and added, "I hope you will not compel me to reduce your garrison by use of force."

Neutral planes flew 435 foreign nationals out of Dacca Sunday and only a small group of American and foreign newsmen and diplomatic officials was left. Dacca dispatches said many of the people had fled into the countryside to avoid being caught in the battle for the city.

Indian defense secretary K. D. Lall described the Pakistani garrison in Dacca as strong and said it had been reinforced by stragglers from other garrisons. He said Indian policy has been to avoid populated areas and to avoid

Pakistan Rebuff For Nixon

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon appears to be fighting a losing battle to rally public and congressional support for his decision to side with Pakistan in its war with India.

The president's move in supporting Pakistani President Yahya Khan, and branding India the aggressor in the conflict, has embittered relations with New Delhi but failed to win much support from leading opinion-makers in the United States.

Congressional reaction and newspaper comment has come down heavily in favor of India's case and against President Yahya for what is alleged to be his brutal repression of separatists in East Pakistan.

India claims repression in East Pakistan, which sent millions of refugees over the border into its territory, is the basic cause of the war. American opinion in general seems to agree.

Foreign diplomats in Washington say they have rarely seen so much open sympathy for a country which has been blamed by the American government for starting a war.

CONGRESS DISAGREES

Congress was almost unanimous in rejecting the administration's case.

At one point, Democratic criticism of Nixon's course became so sharp that the White House brought presidential adviser Henry Kissinger before reporters to insist the United States was actively promoting a political settlement, including virtual autonomy for Bangla Desh, when India attacked Pakistan without justification.

Kissinger said the United States had won several concessions from President Yahya, including an agreement to open talks with Bangla Desh rebels in Calcutta and indications he would grant East Pakistan autonomy in all matters except currency, foreign affairs and defence.

Hospital Strike Vote In January

Negotiations between the union and the B.C. Hospitals Association, which bargains for 73 hospitals, broke down last week after the government put a 6.5 per cent ceiling on increased salaries and fringe benefits for 1972. The union is seeking a 25 per cent increase over two years.

The two Victoria hospitals, St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee, are among those involved.

Ray McCready, secretary-business manager of the union, said the strike vote will be held in the first week of January.

The union's contract expires Dec. 31.

Gun-Toting Trio Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were searching today for three men involved in a Sunday shooting at a city night club.

Frank David Belcher, 27, of West Vancouver was in serious condition in hospital with three bullet wounds in the chest and groin.

Police believe Belcher got into the line of fire of three men, evicted earlier from the B and B Club, who returned and opened fire with a handgun in the club's vestible.

Independent Canada Goodman's Crusade

THUNDER BAY (CP) — It was seeing all those Canadian companies going under that got to Edwin Goodman.

"I really became a nationalist when I saw what was happening in my work as a lawyer with all those Canadian companies selling out to the Americans," Mr. Goodman said Sunday after being chosen national chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada.

The organizational talents of the former national chairman of the Progressive Conservative party will be taxed in his new role as leader of the new movement.

The CIC came away from its first national convention armed with a new constitution, a formal structure of councils and committees and a sense of nationalistic mission, but no money and undetermined support.

Another cause for concern was the absence of Quebec delegates.

HEADED BY LAWYER

Only a tiny delegation headed by Montreal lawyer L. Yves Fortier attended from that province. As it was, the vast majority of delegates were from Ontario. There were 10 from British Columbia, two from Manitoba.

Mr. Fortier, former president of the Canadian Club of Montreal, said French-Canadians would be able to identify with the CIC once the organization began to campaign in Quebec.

But Claude Lemelin, correspondent for the Montreal newspaper, Le Devoir, told the conference that Quebec already has a nationalistic movement in separatism and provincialism and would find little to identify with the CIC.

Government Sitting on Parks Study

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken. Kiernan will not reveal the contents of a white paper on Vancouver Island parks development which has been on his desk since April 1970.

The minister said in an interview it would not be in the public interest to release the paper, because doing so would create land speculation near future park sites.

The white paper was commissioned in Fall 1969, about the time Kiernan was under heavy criticism for a land swap with Raven Logging Ltd. of Campbell River.

Raven Logging gave the province 576 acres of land at Cape Scott in exchange for the right to log Strathcona Park timber worth more than $10 million. Value of the Cape Scott land was set at $300,000.

Kiernan first mentioned the white paper in the legislature in April 1970, saying no further land swaps would be made until the paper was completed. Though he gave no date for completion of the study, it was finished before he mentioned it in the house.

Indications are that the white paper was a rush job. A thorough study of Island park needs would evaluate industrial, population and transportation trends in terms of a provincial recreation plan under an over-all parks system plan.

Parks branch officials say such a study would have taken about one year to be done properly.

Kiernan said he told the parks branch to compile a list of park lands available for future swaps as part of the study.

Is there anything we have available that we could exchange for property from a parks standpoint, was what Kiernan was asking the parks branch.

In answer came a list totalling about 40,000 acres. Most of this land is rated as being of little parks value. The theory is to exchange it for land with better park potential. Swapping is a method of land acquisition the government uses to hold down costs.

Kiernan indicated the white paper outlined parks development on the Island for the next 10 years. He said he is "aware that the public would desire to know the plan," but it would be "unfair to raise public expectations that may be unreasonable to fulfill."

"People, over the years, come to rely on what you tell them," Kiernan said.

The paper appears to indicate that most future park development on the Island should be in the north half.

FIRM POLICY NEEDED TO SAVE ISLAND

The economic future of Vancouver Island appears to be strongly dependent on the quality of its outdoor recreation areas and the visitors which they will attract.

Relatively speaking the Island is still an unspoiled area but it won't stay that way unless there is a firm government policy to preserve the parks and ward off commercial encroachment.

The revelation last week that even more of Strathcona Park is threatened by mining development and that Buttle Lake is going to be subjected to an extended period of mine-tailings pollution raised the question of what the provincial government's policy is towards the rich heritage of parks which are the property of all the people.

FORMER Lieutenant-Governor of B.C., Frank Mackenzie Ross, 80, died Saturday while riding in his car. Funeral will be held Tuesday. See story Page 17.

CAPE SCOTT WATERFRONT was acquired by the provincial government in 1969 for park development from Raven Lumber Ltd. of Campbell River in exchange for timber-cutting rights in Strathcona Park.

. . . SITTING ON PARK STUDY

The paper also views the Island as becoming a recreation area for British Columbians.

Parks branch director Bob Ahrens points out that the Island is no longer as far away from the mainland as it used to seem. Premier Bennett's desire to minimize pollution here with natural gas fuel is another indication that much of the Island's future is recreational.

Almost seven per cent of Vancouver Island is parkland, compared with 2.5 per cent for all of B.C.

Ahrens agrees that revealing an over-all parks system plan — which is what a parks white paper amounts to — would lead to land speculation.

One way to stop speculators and reveal parks plans is to start buying lands on a large scale. Provincial parks acquisition costs for fiscal year 1971-72 are about $1.7 million. A $15 million parks development fund is being spent for improvement of existing parks.

Compared with B.C.'s $1.7 million for park land acquisition, the goverment is spending $80 million this fiscal year for highway, bridge and ferry construction.

Men like Elton Anderson, of the Federation of British Columbia Naturalists, say park land purchasing must be increased. As long as logging companies know B.C. will continue swapping lands, they will drive hard bargains, says Anderson.

Swaps like the Cape Scott deal have not been made for two years. But Kiernan's remarks on the white paper make it clear swapping has not been ruled out.

He also sees no need to speed up the pace of park land acquisition.

Maintaining the pace for 10 years, he says, will give Vancouver Island "pretty well" what it needs.

It's easy for Kiernan to say that. Let's face it, he has all the information. The public Kiernan serves does not.

unnecessary casualties and damage and that he hoped this could be done in Dacca, a city of 750,000.

STIFF RESISTANCE

Military spokesman reported fighting at the river port of Kulna, 100 miles southwest of Dacca. Pakistani resistance was reported 'stiff," but the spokesman said all Pakistani escape routes were closed. The spokisman reported capture of the district town of Tangail, 45 miles northwest of Dacca.

Lall said the situation along the West Pakistan border had not changed significantly and he appeared to be at pains to stress there were on Indian designs on West Pakistani territory.

Fresh Indian attacks were reported near Tangail, 50 miles northwest of Dacca, and Narsingdhi, a bout 30 miles south of the city. A spokesman, in the first Pakistani acknowledgement that the Indians were close to Dacca, claimed both assaults were engaged.

However, Indian military spokesmen reported Sunday that Narsingdhi has already fallen and Indian troops have passed through it on their way to Dacca. With reporters unable to visit the front, there was no way of verifying the conflicting claims.

Indians in Calcutta clamped a virtual blackout on information of the Dacca assault today, claiming it might help the Pakistanis. But arrows on a briefing room map indicated some Indian forces had closed to within six miles of the bastion.

The main drive on Dacca is from the southeast, and some reports placed in near Daudkandi, 20 miles away.

East Pakistani guerrill asin Dacca and its suburbs were said to be awaiting the signal for a general uprising, but so far no fighting was reported in the city itself.

An Indian military spokesman in Calcutta said 4,000 Pakistani troops had surrendered so far in that part of East Pakistan lying east of the Meghna River — an area now completely in Indian hands. Pakistan denied this.

The Indian army chief of staff, Gen. Sam Manekshaw, said Saturday he knew the Pakistani forces were planning a mass breakout from the Chattagong area, and in a special broadcast warned: "Your merchant ships and the armed forces in them will be destroyed if you endeavor to try this."

provincial government will pay MacKinnon's transportation costs to Montreal where he may be operated on at that city's heart institute.

McCoy said this is an example of a politically motivated decision of the kind the board never ought to make.

"If you were one of the 150 other people who were waiting, how would you feel? This is what I mean by a political ddcision," McCoy said.

REPORTS

He added that Loffmark should not claim the medical profession is at fault if any delay exists in creation of expanded programs in B.C.

McCoy said the report Loffmark was referring to was commissioned by the minister this year as part of an overall review of specialized care problems in B.C.

It was the third time in 10 years the government has called for a review of heart surgery practices in the province, he said.

McCoy said the report was prepared with the assistance of doctors but could not have been rushed through to completion. Factors such as population projection, the incidence of heart disease and location of existing facilities had to be carefully studied, he said.

DOLLARS, CENTS

Expanding open heart surgical facilities is simply a matter of "dollars and cents," McCoy said, not a matter of which doctors can get their patients treated faster as Loffmark had suggested.

Earlier this year, McCoy said, the BCMA told Loffmark the government should approve funds for expansion of facilities at Vancouver General and St. Paul's hospitals in Vancouver. The government should also permit Royal Jubilee Hospital to create an open heart surgery team of about 20 persons and prepare for creation of similar facilities at Royal Columbian in New Westminster, McCoy said.

Revelstoke Tops Volleyball Meet

100 MILE HOUSE — Revelstoke Mountaineers won the B.C. junior men's volleyball championship Saturday with a 15-13, 15-13 triumph over Vancouver Old Spaghetti Factory in the final.

Both teams finished the six-team, round-robin event with 5-0 records to gain the final berths. Royal Roads Military College and Victoria Junior Men finished with 2-3 marks in the preliminary play that began Friday.

B.C. Northerns of 100 Mile House and Maple Ridge were also in the competition.

Cold air now covers most of B.C. and the Prairies but it is modified in coastal areas. An active Pacific weather disturbance will bring snow to the north coast with the snow moving into the central Interior before evening. Mixed rain and snow will reach the south coast this evening. It will continue cold.

Broadcaster Aitken Dies in Hospital

TORONTO — Broadcaster Kate Aitken, whose folksy, easy-going radio show on homemaking was a Canadian institution for nearly 25 years, died in hospital Saturday after a lengthy illness. She was 81. Mrs. Aitken, better known to millions of radio listeners as Mrs. A., retired in 1957 while her national program was still one of the top shows in the country. Predeceased by her husband in 1961, she lived a life of active retirement in Streetsville, a community 25 miles west of here, where she wrote books, magazine articles and radio commentaries.

CAPE TOWN — It's the latest wrinkle in affairs of the heart: Dorothy Fisher, south Africa's longest-living heart transplant patient, has received a marriage proposal. The 40-year-old woman said Sunday a Mr. Berry of Guernsey, in the Channel Islands between England and France, wrote to her last month with the proposal. Miss Fisher is of mixed race — known in this country as colored. She said: "I know nothing about this man, just his name. I don't know if he's white or black, old or young. These things don't matter. If his bank balance is good, I'll marry him." She has written Berry for more details.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Talk about life's embarrassing moments. Have you heard the one about the pilot with a cargo of Christmas presents who dumped them all over north Portland? It happened Sunday to a naval reserve pilot, who shall remain anonymous, on his way home to Pleasanton, Calif., with four cartons of gifts for his family from relatives in Portland. Somehow, the bomb bay of the jet fighter opened shortly after takeoff and the gifts showered down over North Portland. Police were alerted, but by Sunday night no presents had been returned.

STOCKHOLM — The goodwill embodied in the Nobel Prize for Peace apparently doesn't rub off on others. Police threw a cordon around Stockholm's royal castle and neighboring areas Saturday night after a threat to murder West German Chancellor Willy Brandt was received. No incident developed. Brandt was guest of honor at a banquet given by King Gustav VI for this year's Noebl Prize winners. Police said the threat was received from what they described as extremist right wing groups, and Swedish newspapers reported Brandt also was threatened when he was in Oslo before arriving in Sweden.

TWO WOMEN DIE AFTER MISHAPS

A 60-year-old Sidney woman was killed Sunday morning when the car she was driving crashed with another vehicle at McDonald Park Road and Patricia Bay Highway.

Sidney RCMP identified the victim as Marjorie E. Mitchell, of 1037 Patricia Place. She was alone in her car.

RCMP said Coroner G. A. Gerrie will open an inquest into the fatality at 7:30 tonight at Sands funeral home, 1803 Quadra.

Police said the woman was entering the highway from McDonald Park about 11:15 a.m. when her car collided with one driven by Peter Hamer, 20, of 2239 Ardwell, Sidney.

Hamer was travelling north on the highway at the time. He and passenger Marilyn Looy, 17, of 8433 East Saanich Road, were treated at Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney, and were released.

Meanwhile at Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning, Miss Mary Ashworth, 90, of 1712 Beach, died of injuries she received when she was hit by a car at Beach and Monterey last Friday.

The woman suffered fractures to a shoulder and wrist.

Oak Bay police said the driver of the car was Mrs. Elsa Heitinga, of 379 Wain Road, Sidney.

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle longshoremen have voted unanimously to recommend that the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union reject a west coast contract offering that will be voted on Tuesday and Wednesday, local union leaders say.

The action was taken Sunday at a 2½-hour-long meeting attended by ILUW members who were called off jobs for the vote, said Shaun Maloney, president of Local 19.

The ILWU is working at west coast ports under a federal Taft-Hartley injunction that expires Dec. 26. The union struck 26 ports last July 1.

Also re-elected in convincing style were incumbents Mrs. Edith Gunning, William Noel and William Campbell, three veteran aldermen with combined council service totalling 19 years, who between them notched up nearly 19,000 votes.

The fourth place on council was filled by Fred (Whitey) Severson, fireman and well-known sportsman, who later admitted in an interview his popularity in local sports circles played a big part in his success.

EARLY STAGE

Mesher said his sole aim in entering the mayoralty race was to force the election.

"I did it on my own, and didn't spend a great deal of money, but I was a serious candidate. I wanted to initiate a discussion of issues and I think that happened."

Curtis said he was delighted at his victory and surprised at the extent of the support he had received.

He added: "It certainly indicates public support for the program on which we have embarked with respect to preservation of open space, parkland acquisition, indoor and outdoor recreation, the sewerage system, and our determination to keep a large portion of the municipality rural in character."

CONTENDERS

Pollen's 5,743 vote total was the highest in the city and higher than Haddock's 5,402 when he beat three other contenders two years ago.

Pollen's majority percentage was almost 49 per cent. Haddock polled about 30 per cent, Isherwood 15 and Scott six.

Although defeat was "not the end of the world" for him, Haddock said following the vote, "I am disappointed we don't have a mayor who lives in the city."

Haddock said it had taken him a year to gain council's confidence, and his heart attack last July contributed to the setback.

Pollen's win reflects a fairly strong backing of his stand on waterfront and downtown development and a whole range of other issues, of which only a few have been given prominence in the election campaign.

NO PROMISE

Pollen had made no definite promise on this issue, but said the city could either buy the Reid waterfront property or force compliance with rules requiring a much smaller density than the projects council has dealt with.

Pollen played down this issue during the campaign, however, drawing attention to what he said was a lack of intelligent decision-making in many areas of city hall's work over past years.

Pollen has come out strongly for protecting Craigdarroch Castle and the Victoria Conservatory of Music, when Haddock's wish was to move the music school out of the castle, which he hoped to convert into a big tourist moneymaker.

BETTER SPENT

Pollen's toughest stands in the past year came during city hall's negotiations with employees, whose contracts helped to give Victorians their biggest tax increase in a decade.

Pollen at no time suggested he could cut taxes or even hold the line. Instead he concentrated on his stated belief that city hall revenue could be better spent.

He pointed particularly to the large portion of the city's capital budgets which are earmarked for road and traffic works. He did promise to completely review the capital works budgets and bring forward a new capital budget next year for referendum.

He also proposed formation of two advisory councils — one to help city hall formulate plans for downtown development and another to encourage preservation of historic places in the city.

He specifically has called for completion of a mall project on a main street to encourage better commercial activity downtown.

Young's solid election came as a surprise to some because his campaign was not much in evidence, but Young said Saturday night he had been working quietly but hard.

FIVE YEARS

Young, a member of the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission for five years, had taken a firm stand against unplanned highrise development, and said the Inner Harbor waterfront needed over-all planning.

Tindall also campaigned in favor of more close controls on high rises, especially on waterfront land.

Witt's campaign stressed his experience on council and Savage in recent weeks stressed the need for more emphasis on parks and better pedestrian facilities.

Snake, Starfish Obstacles to Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Pacific Ocean dwellers—a poisonous sea snake and coral-eating starfish—are posing serious biological obstacles to contruction of a sea-level waterway to replace the Panama Canal.

Some fear the yellow-bellied sea snake would migrate into the Atlantic and slither up on coastal beaches from New Brunswick to Argentina, sending bathers scurrying in fright.

The two species will be the subject of hearings today when Dr. John Weber and Dr. William A. Dunson of Pennsylvania State University, experts on starfish and sea snakes, respectively, appear before a House of Representatives subcommitte of canal affairs, said chairman John M. Murphy.

The environmental hazards are the latest of a series of obstacles facing proponents of the proposed canal. The canal would permit passage of vessels which are too big to negotiate the present canal.

Other problems include the $3 billion estimated cost and the Panamanian government's possible refusal to issue a construction permit because of its unhappiness over its present treaty with the U.S.

The sea snakes are deadly poisonous and experts say the predatory fish of the Atlantic might eat them—as one experiment showed—and bring disaster to fishing. The fish in the Pacific have lived with the snakes about five million years and have learned not to eat them.

An article in the current issue of the Smithsonian, the magazine of the Smithsonian museum, quotes Dr. John C. Briggs of South Florida University that a sea level canal would be "a potential biological catastrophe"

A Manager For Pollen

Mayor-elect Peter Pollen confirmed today he has appointed a general manager to run his business, Peter Pollen Ford Sales Ltd.

Pollen will devote his full time to civic duties.

Pollen said he turned over operations of his Yates Street car dealership Dec. 1 to William Boothman, former general sales manager of the firm.

Pollen said his decision to appoint the general manager even before the election was an example of forward planning he hoped to see at city hall.

Merv Stays on Air

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television talk show host Merv Griffin, dropped by CBS early last week, will replace Emmy Award-winner David Frost next year on Metromedia stations here, in New York and in Washington.

A Metromedia spokesman, Reavis Winkler, said Griffin's new syndicated show probably will begin in mid-February, when his contract with CBS expires.

In New York, David Henderson, president of Group W Productions, which syndicates the Frost show, said the Metromedia decision to replace Frost with Griffin at 8:30 p.m. weeknights would not affect the show in other areas.

Henderson said the Frost show, seen on 88 stations, would be scheduled at a different time on the Metromedia stations or would be moved to another independent station in those three markets.

Winkler said no decision had been made yet whether the Griffin show would follow the same talk show format now used on CBS. The salary and length of contract agreed on between Griffin and Metromedia were not disclosed.

'Parents Should Decide Goals'

The B.C. Commission on the Public's Role in Education wound up its stay in Victoria Saturday afternoon, accepting more briefs at the end of its province-wide tour.

The commission, headed by B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation president Mrs. Catherine Schoen, visited 20 B.C. centres over the last month and accepted more than 100 briefs.

It was sponsored largely by the BCPTF, by the Educational Research Institute of B.C. and by the provincial government.

At Saturday's hearing, Victoria school trustee Walter Donald, presenting a brief as an individual, urged that the government give money for education not to institutions, but to parents who would decide how to spend it.

Donald said school boards in B.C. are "neutered tomcats" who give advice but don't produce much.

CO-OPERATION

For individual parents to decide on educational spending would indicate what kinds of education people really want.

Donald also urged: closer co-operation between independent and public schools; schools should be integrated to a greater extent into the community; students and teachers should be voting members of school boards; use of television, telephones and computers should be developed in education.

In other briefs, Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan said his group favors mass education and equal opportunities for all with easier access to the educational system.

Mrs. Lillian Money said the school system's greatest role is to challenge the influence of the mass media.

The Willows Elementary Parent-Teacher Council said parents favor more involvement with questions of discipline, curriculum, testing, teacher tenure and community use of schools.

L. K. Yee expressed concern over the plight of the minority of school children who have learning disabilities.

"They are constantly abused, psychoanalyzed, humiliated, harassed and-or beaten, depending on the whimsical mood of our so-called 'highly-qualified' teachers," Yee's brief said.

Important Jobs to Be Done

The last few days of campaigning had led many observers to predict a very close finish in the Victoria mayoralty race regardless of which of the two main contenders won. The decisive 2,200-vote plurality of Mr. Peter Pollen's win over Mayor Haddock was therefore a surprise and a significant demonstration of a new Victoria sentiment.

Since a large part of the contest concerned itself with the importance of urban planning, and a major item in downtown planning for Victoria was the proposed Reid high-rises on Wharf Street, it is clear that Victoria on Saturday voted for a new approach to development of the city's centre, for closer attention to the nature of new construction rather than eager acceptance of any promotion with a high dollar-value, and a breakaway from some of the policies on city growth which have dominated — and in many cases spoiled — the development of other communities on this continent.

Mayor-elect Pollen may be considered to have received a mandate to implement his ideas on these matters, and Victoria will be the better for it. The newly elected aldermen, and those whose terms continue into next year, should read the mayoral election results as instructions from the public and adapt themselves accordingly.

Mayor Haddock will take into retirement a host of friendships which he has built over the years. Few could doubt the sincerity of his efforts in his first elected public office, but he brought from the commercial world abilities which did not cope successfully with the much more complicated problems of civic administration.

A relative unknown, Mr. Young's surprising leadership of the aldermanic poll is a public invitation to him to make a name for himself in a new medium, and his actions on council will be watched with interest. Mr. Tindall's election also injects new blood into the council chamber, while Ald. Savage brings to his new term a record of good judgment on such matters as planning, social work and parks. Ald. Witt, also returned, can be expected to respond to good leadership on the council.

Mayor Hugh Curtis' re-election in Saanich was never in doubt, although Mr. Mesher's competition served its purpose of bringing various issues to public notice. Mayor Curtis' excellent record ensures good administration in Saanich for another two years, particularly in view of the return of Ald. Mrs. Edith Gunning and two other incumbents, Ald. Noel and Ald. Campbell. Mrs. Gunning's achievements in welfare, housing and other important fields, and her reputation for endless industry in getting the facts on public questions, will be valuable assets in the term ahead. Mr. Severson brings a new voice to council discussions.

Like Mayor Young in Esquimalt, Oak Bay's Mayor Frances Elford enjoyed the well-earned compliment of return by acclamation. The solid record of Ald. Brian Smith placed him at the top of Oak Bay's aldermanic poll, well ahead of a newcomer, Mr. McLelland, and Ald. Pimlott who in turn was well ahead of the next contender.

The "democracy rating" of the public in Saturday's elections was far from satisfactory. Slightly more than half the eligible voters turned out in Victoria, only one in three in Saanich, and about two-fifths of the Oak Bay voters. Obviously there is much to be done to convince many citizens of their responsibilities to their community. The matter is sufficiently important to call for special discussion in the municipal councils and joint consideration in the Inter-Municipal Committee. Democracy has enough problems facing it these days without being threatened by weakness due to the apathy of the very people who enjoy its hard-won benefits.

By His Works

By a margin of five votes in a total poll of 202 registered by about 40 per cent of those entitled to the franchise, Dennis Alphonse has been re-elected chief of the Cowichan Indian Band. The victory is a personal triumph for the man who has held the office for three previous terms and who, declining to campaign, asked that he be judged on what he has done.

The closeness of the vote indicates the calibre of the opposition, particularly the runner-up, Wesley Modeste, health liaison officer for the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs.

Good men are contesting Indian offices, men who have shown their capacity for assuming responsibilities and reflecting increasing competency among members of the bands to handle their own affairs. This is a development to be applauded by other Canadians.

Frank MacKenzie Ross

To a much greater extent than most Lieutenant-Governors, Frank MacKenzie Ross brought genuine humanity to Government House. In his death last Saturday the nation lost an outstanding Canadian and British Columbia a fine citizen.

Many a resident of this province can recall a personal moment when the simple kindliness of the young Scot who eventually became the Queen's representative in British Columbia broke through protocol and official formality to reveal the true measure of the man.

It was his destiny to deal with high government officials and business leaders — and to become both of these himself. Yet he spent many hours helping to make children happy and, with his chatelaine, he made Government House a place which the people could — and did — feel was their own.

At the age of 80, Frank MacKenzie Ross could look back on a full life — a life rich in material rewards and equally rich in the esteem and friendship of his fellowmen. Canada did well by him, and he repaid the debt in full.

Beauty Slowly Eliminated

I am a citizen who, over the past several years, has become increasingly concerned about what is happening to Victoria. I am quite sure that no one would dispute the fact that this city is incomparably beautiful and yet the things that make up this beauty are slowly being eliminated.

When people ask what is wrong with "high-rises," they usually fall into one of three categories: 1. They own land which they wish to sell to a "high-rise" developer, thus ensuring themselves the greatest profit but without concern for any other factors. 2. They live in an are being built. 3. They are currently living where there is no possibility of high-rises or in a high-rise and as yet have not had another high-rise obliterate their view.

The majority of Victoria's citizens do not belong to any of these categories and yet it seems as though our planners are being disproportionally influenced by such thoughts.

The original idea of a high-rise was to keep the resulting conserved land in open space and yet this has not happened in North American cities. The reason it has not happened is because our zoning regulations allow developers to build such areas as Vancouver's West End "concrete apartment jungle" which obviously gives the developer the ultimate financial return but without any concern for ensuing problems for the community at large.

Can anyone find this sort of planning desirable? One might very well ask himself how it was allowed to happen. Vancouver, I'm sure, has a competent planning department and along the way someone surely must have asked them the very same questions that are now being asked of our council and our various planning departments.

I think it is obvious that a non-resident developer such as Mr. Reid does not have any interest in our community other than a financial one and it is equally obvious that it is the Victoria residents who will have to contend with the ensuing traffic problems, and at some time in the not too distant future have to pay through taxes for the resulting inadquate sewage and water services. I do not for a moment believe that a system of one-way streets will control and solve the traffic problem for any length of time, keeping in mind the obvious increase of provincial government staff in future years. What will the traffic department suggest then?

I would suggest that the density of the downtown area is limited by the very factors that make this city beautiful, i.e. that it is surrounded by ocean on three sides, plus Beacon Hill Park. Let us plan accordingly without pressure from the real estate faction of this community, who in fact are the only ones who stand to gain from high-density planning. — Virginia Gareau, 3503 Camcrest Place.

A Welcome Touch of Light

"Operation Wheelchair" for the Handicapped, at the invitation of Woodward Stores, Wednesday, December 1, 1971, will be remembered by our 28 patients as well as countless others as an evening full of light. The store was brilliantly lit, the faces of volunteers and shoppers reflected the gladness of "giving and that of receiving." Song, color, refreshments — the whole atmosphere reflected the touch of light as well as the light touch.

There was so much to see, so much to choose from — there was the grandmother who tried to remember the size of four grand-daughters, the bachelor who wanted to show his appreciation to three dozen or more staff members at his hospital, there was the teenager who helped his bewildered parents to choose, there were the countless names and items to be crossed off on lists compiled weeks ahead of this shopping adventure.

The imagination and ingenuity of the planners, the interest and co-operation of employees, the response and readiness of all volunteers and the sheer happiness of the shoppers were sonnet, melody, painting in one!

When the last wheelchair patients were leaving and the final thank you and goodbyes had been exchanged — a weary little group within the circle of the light which had been the keynote of the evening exclaimed "We volunteeer for next year!" And this must have been the spirit behind "Operation Wheelchair 1971" dating back to the first of its kind in 1970.

With appreciation and gratitude. — (Mrs.) Ann M. Spicer, Social and Volunteer Service Co-ordinator, Mount St. Mary Hospital.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Fire in the Dragon's Mouth

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Much of the world listened — sometimes with astonishment, sometimes with concern, sometimes with delight — as the two giants of the Communist world, Russia and Red China, tore each other apart in the UN last week.

But interest in the spectacle has sometimes diverted attention from the importance of what is being said. This has not been just a propaganda donnybrook. It has also been an airing of some very fundamental issues.

There was, for example, an exchange on the possibility of a China-Russia war — a possibility which had predated the hostilities between India and Pakistan, but which was heightened by them.

Soviet delegate Yakov Malik, echoing an ominous Tass statement, seemed to imply that if China came to Pakistan's aid, the Soviet Union would launch a pre-emptive nuclear strike against China.

Biggest Question

Ever since China first exploded an atomic device, the single biggest question in Asia has been whether the Soviet Union would allow China to develop a full-fledged nuclear deterrent, with missiles zeroed in on Moscow, or would strike first to prevent it. Of late, China has begun testing missiles with sufficient range to reach Moscow.

Combined with the formidable array of armed forces — an estimated million men, on each side — along the Sino-Soviet frontier; with the history of Sino-Soviet border incidents in the 1960's; and currently with Moscow's wish to appear as India's military-diplomatic champion, the question of a possible China-Russia war was very real.

China's Chiao Kuan-hua came out with it. "This is blackmail," he said of the Tass statement. "Distinguished Soviet representative, what exactly are you planning to do? You might as well tell us here."

Malik replied that there was no threat to China. He was not entirely persuasive, but at least some of the tension had eased.

On a related subject, the prospects of a nuclear-disarmament pact — a kind of SALT agreement — between China and the other atomic powers, some light has also been cast.

One reason for bringing China into the UN was that meaningful disarmament negotiations with the world's

fifth nuclear country would thereby be facilitated. The fact that a SALT-type agreement with China might make a Soviet pre-emptive strike unnecessary was not far from anyone's mind.

The response, thus far, from China is: "No." Peking's men are by no means as direct and clear on this subject as they are on others, but the meaning is unmistakable: no nuclear arms control until China reaches parity with the Soviet Union and the United States.

On Vietnam, there has been absolutely no clue to China's intentions, unless silence is a clue. Since the only words Peking would be likely to utter would be hostile to the United States, perhaps silence is encouraging. Moscow for its part has not been silent — and has tried to goad Peking into talking.

Malik has repeatedly sought to portray China and the United States as singing a UN "duet." Such an idea is, of course, a considerable overstatement; but there has been, on some subjects, an interesting parallelism in the positions of Peking and Washington.

In the seven weeks since she was voted into the UN, Red China has voted with the United States, or taken a stand that was not antagonistic, more times than she has differed with Washington. Westerners would perhaps do well not to point this out too loudly, lest Peking feel obligated to rectify the balance; but it is, at least, an interesting circumstance.

Poisoned Needles

Nor have Peking's often-effective propaganda shafts against the Soviet Union — the poisoned needles that Chiao and Huang Hua have been hurling — been entirely distasteful to the West. There is fear that they might provoke irrational Soviet behavior, but short of this, they make for entertaining listening.

No western delegate, for example, said of Russia's cease-fire vetoes this past week — at least in public — that they were "arrogant and crude to the extreme." But Chiao did, and he had a point.

He also had a point when he charged that "social imperialism," a remarkably apt label for Soviet policy, "has carried out everywhere aggression, subversion, control and interference against other countries." He and Huang are name-dropping "Czechsolovakia," a word which for some time has been skirted by the West.

Chiao, with his lightning epithets; Huang, with his sometimes-almost-diffident thrusts; and Malik, with his pile-driver intensity and his scornful air of superiority, have done more than provide a sidelight to a grim debate on the Indo-Pakistani war.

They have reminded the world that a tentative Berlin accord, or for that matter a ping-pong match, do not add up to an accomplished detente; that the Communists may be mellowing toward the West in the manner and with some of the external accoutrement of policy, but that a fundamental change in substance has yet to be proved.

Quebec's Unions Move Closer

PAUL WHITELAW

MONTREAL: Quebec's major labor organizations have traditionally been as suspicious of each other as they are of the motives of government or big business.

Indeed, the bitterness of fights for members or prestige between the Confederation of National Trade Unions, a central organization of Quebec-based syndicates, and the Quebec Federation of Labor, an affiliate of the Canadian Labor Congress, have frequently exceeded struggles for higher wages or better working conditions.

The unions have been divided by aspirations and ideology, with the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) accusing the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) of perpetrating the class struggle. The CNTU, in turn, has charged that the QFL is a puppet of international unions controlled from the United States.

Unified Voice

The possibility of a unified labor voice to confront the government on major issues became even more remote with the emergence of Quebec's 60,000 teachers as an important bargaining force during the educational reform that accompanied the "quiet revolution" of the 1960s. The teachers have refused adamantly to join either the CNTU or the QFL and have their own central organization.

Therefore few events in Quebec have been more surprising in recent weeks than the gestures of co-operation and increasingly similar tone of the province's rival union leaders.

The Quebec Teachers' Corporation and the CNTU joined ranks with the QFL several weeks ago to protest the loss of QFL members' jobs that accompanied the shutdown of La Presse, Montreal's largest French-language daily newspaper.

Several days later, an estimated 14,000 people attended a tri-union rally in the Montreal Forum. They heard union leaders make surprisingly similar statements about the need for worker solidarity to fight common enemies — the government and capitalism.

QFL President Louis Laberge, always the moderate among Quebec's sometimes volatile union spokesmen, announced that the La Presse demonstration of the previous week — in which more than 100 policemen and protesters were injured and one woman died of an asthma attack — marked a turning point.

Since then, Mr. Laberge has set his union on a radical course that is bringing it ideologically closer to the Teachers' Corporation and the CNTU, which in recent years have become increasingly identified with the struggle for sovereignty, unilingualism and a dramatically different social order.

Attempts to change the QFL's public image reached a high point at a four-day convention of the federation which ended Saturday in Montreal.

General Strikes

Delegates representing the 250,000 members of the QFL endorsed the idea of general strikes to exert pressure on political and financial institutions.

They also voted to consider massive participation in a political party and, if necessary to form a new one. This resolution removed blanket support from the New Democratic Party and opened the door for a permanent organization to replace the "Common Front" which has been formed to support the La Presse workers.

In addition, the delegates voted in favor of Quebec's right to "self-determination" of its political future. While not openly supporting the idea of Quebec independence, it indicated that the QFL would readily consider the separatist option in a way that would not have occurred before.

Further, it was decided to consult with other union groups about setting up an inter-union council to co-ordinate the efforts of Quebec syndicates.

Politicians in Quebec are watching the developments closely, for they realize how powerful the unions may become if they can permanently overcome their traditional rivalries.

From the Times of Dec. 13, 1911:

The happiness and prosperity of India depend largely on whether the country is settling down to its normal calm under the Pax Britannica, or whether the wave of "unrest" which is sweeping through all eastern countries is increasing in volume.

India is more than a country, it is a continent peopled by diverse races, speaking different languages and having little or nothing in common; in many cases, indeed, having violent antipathies which are only kept in check by the presence of a supreme power.

U.S. Not the One to Give India a Moral Lecture

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

LONDON — Suppose that Britain, in the 1930s, had responded to Hitler's savagery by the early threat or use of military force instead of appeasement. If the Nixon administration had been in power in Washington at the time, it would presumably have sent some official out to wring his hands in public and charge Britain with "major responsibility for the broader hostilities which have ensued."

So one must think after the U.S. statement blaming India for the hostilities with Pakistan. Few things said in the name of the U.S. lately have been quite so indecent. The anonymous state department official who made the comment matched Uriah Heep in sheer oleaginous cynicism about the facts of the situation and about our own moral position.

Consider first the immediate origins of this dispute. They are exceptionally clear as international relations go.

The military junta that rules Pakistan under President Yahya Khan held an election. The largest number of seats won was, democratically, by a Bengali party that favored effective self-government for East Pakistan. Yahya thereupon decided to wipe out the result of the election by force.

Last March West Pakistan troops flew into the east in large numbers and began a policy of slaughter. They murdered selected politicians, intellectuals and professionals, then indiscriminate masses. They burned villages. They held public castrations.

To compare Yahya Khan with Hitler is of course inexact. Yahya is not a man with a racist mission but a spokesman for xenophobic forces in West Pakistan. But in terms of results — in terms of the human beings killed, brutalized or made refugees — Yahya's record compares quite favorably with Hitler's early years.

The West Pakistanis have killed several hundred thousand civilians in the east, and an estimated 10 million have fled to India. The oppression has been specifically on lines of race or religion. The victims are Bengalis or Hindus, not Czechs or Poles or Jews, and perhaps therefore less meaningful to us in the west. But for the victims the crime is the same.

This record has been no secret to the world. First-hand accounts of the horror inside East Pakistan were published months ago. The refugees were there in India to be photographed in all their pitiful misery.

But President Nixon and his foreign policy aides seemed to close their eyes to what everyone else could see. Month after month the president said not a word about the most appalling refugee situation of modern times. Private diplomacy was doubtless going on, but there was no visible sign of American pressure on Yahya Khan for the only step that could conceivably bring the refugees back — a political accommodation with the Bengalis.

Pakistan's argument was that it was all an internal affair. Yes, like the Nazis' treatment of German Jews.

But even if one accepts as one must that Pakistan was bound to defend its territorial integrity, this issue has spilled beyond its borders. The refugee impact on India very soon made it clear that the peace of the whole subcontinent was threatened.

It was as if the entire population of New York City had suddenly been on New Jersey to feed and clothe — only infinitely worse in terms of resources available. Yet when Indira Gandhi went to the capitals of the West for help in arranging a political solution in East Pakistan, she got nothing.

The Indians can be sanctimonious. Mrs. Gandhi acts for political reasons, not out of purity of heart. India has helped the Bangla Desh guerrillas and, in recent weeks put provocative pressure on East Pakistan. All true. But given the extent of her interest and the intolerable pressure upon her, India has shown great restraint.

After all, India has not intervened in a civil conflict thousands of miles from her own border. She has not destroyed one-third of a distant country's forest, or bombed that land to such a point of saturation that it is marked by 10 million craters. The United States has done those things and is still doing them; it is in a poor position to read moral lecture to India.

American policy toward the Indian subcontinent is as much of a disaster by standards of hard-nosed common sense as to compassion. India may be annoying and difficult, but she does happen to be the largest nation in the world following our notions of political freedom.

In position and population she is by far the most important country of Asia apart from China. To alienate India — worse yet, to act so as to undermine her political stability — is a policy that defies rational explanation.

'PRIMED FOR WAR'

Guess Where They Got Arms

By MARTIN WOLLACOTT
Manchester Guardian

With India and Pakistan at war, the question of exactly how these two poor and technologically backward countries got to the point where they can attack each other with sophisticated warplanes, armor and other advanced weapons assumes a particular significance. The question is answered more fully and precisely than before in a new study, "The Arms Trade with the Third World" from the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute.

The book, the first major work to bring together the political, military, and economic aspects of the arms trade with Third World countries, has a simple starting point: all wars fought in the past 25 years have been fought in the Third World, and all have been fought with weapons supplied by a few Great Powers.

Exports of major weapons to Third World countries have pushed dramatically upwards during the past 20 years. Between 1950 and 1970, the book shows, the total yearly value of these exports has increased seven-fold, by 1970 amounting to one and a half billion dollars.

Four countries — the U.S., the Soviet Union, Britain, and France — have stocked the arsenals of the Third World, with the U.S. and the Soviet Union accounting for about two-thirds of all supplies and Britain and France a further 20 per cent.

The history of the Indo-Pakistani arms race, as detailed in the book, is particularly illuminating, since it involves all the players of the arms trade game. While it would be foolish to deny that the intital impetus for the race sprang from the existing hostility between India and Pakistan, it is also true that the competition between the Great Powers for influence in the sub-continent looks, in retrospect, curiously collusive.

It is as if the U.S. and the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China, had positively conspired to divert the sub-continent's resources to military ends and to prime it for destructive war.

Supplies of major weapons to the sub-continent have shown the same rising trend as to the Third World as a whole, increasing four and a half times between the first half of the Fifties and the second half of the Sixties.

The real beginning of the local arms race was in 1954, when the United States, searching for a South Asian partner to link its anti-Communist alliances in the Far East, and the Middle East, persuaded Pakistan to join SEATO and the Bagdad Pact as the price for weapons supplies which Pakistan wanted principally because of its fear of India.

This U.S. aid to Pakistan was matched by substantial Indian purchases from Britain and France, with Britain supplying over half the total.

Orders from India for Hunters and additional Canberras and Ouragans closely followed reports that Pakistan was to receive F86 Sabres and B57 Canberras from the U.S. AMX-13 tanks were ordered after Pakistan received M-41 Bulldogs from the U.S.

Nevertheless, the SIPRI study says, India's purchases up to 1962 indicated that her object was a prestige build-up of weaponry — lots of jet combat aircraft and an aircraft-carrier, but no infantry weapons and little of the support equipment necessary for the actual operational use of the new air assets in real war.

Indian armored personnel carrier rolls through East Pakistan city of Jessore

The Indian defeat in the 1962 war with China changed the Indian attitude. The Western Powers grew disillusioned with India after her refusal to accept a U.S.-British commitment for air defence, the U.S. refusing to supply India with F-104 Starfighters.

The Soviet Union saw its chance and stepped in with an attractive offer of a SAM-2 AA missile complex plus MiG-21s, both direct export and to be produced under licence. Later India took Soviet frigates, Soviet submarines, and Su-7 ground attack fighters from Russia, which gained further ground by imposing no embargo during the 1965 war with Pakistan.

The great inflow of Western and Soviet arms into India after the 1962 war was, the study suggests, the precipitating factor in the Indo-Pakistani war of 1965. Pakistan's "acute awareness that any advantages in firepower which its armed forces possessed over India were being whittled away" led it to make its move over Kashmir before, as Pakistan saw it, its advantage wholly passed away.

After 1965, Pakistan's potential arms suppliers played a rapid game of musical chairs. When it became clear that Pakistan was buying arms from China, the U.S. partially lifted its embargo on arms supplies.

Pakistan then signed an arms agreement with the Soviet Union in 1968, possibly using as a quid pro quo the closing of the U.S. base at Peshawar, and acquired other U.S. supplies indirectly via Europe, probably with American connivance, as well as Mirage jets and submarines from France.

Meanwhile the U.S., perhaps as the result of State Department study indicating that the withholding of military aid had "not been successful in any instance," announced that it would supply Pakistan with six Starfighters, seven B-57 bombers, and 200 armoured personnel carriers as a "one-time exception." It is the supply of these, as well as spare parts, that has now been suspended.

As to the motives of the suppliers, they illustrate the complete range — the Soviet Union and the U.S. trying to use the supply of arms to "reinforce their dominant role in world affairs," France and Britain trying to preserve a vulnerable domestic arms base by exports.

The SPIRI study provides similarly precise details on arms supplies to 91 Third World countries. Four thousand individual arms deals, many of them unrecorded in public trade statistics, have been identified by the SIPRI workers.

The book is a mine of disquieting information, and, as in previous SIPRI works, cooly realistic about the possibilities of improvement.

But "in the regions where the competing military commitments of the Great Powers are important there is no prospect of any such agreements being reached until there is more progress in settlement between the United States and the Soviet Union. It is in the regions where the links with the major arms race are weakest that the possibility of agreement is greatest, for instance Latin America and sub-Saharan Africa." Meanwhile the competitive arming of Third World countries will presumably go on, in the Middle East, in East Asia, and in the Indian sub-continent.

Great Men Belong to Us

By JOHN ARDAGH

LONDON — Has a great man the right to try to keep his life secret from posterity? If he dies instructing his widow and executors to prevent any biography, does this not put them in an impossible position?

The question arises because of a current controversy in literary London over the first-ever biography of T. S. Eliot, who died in 1965 aged 76. A very unauthorized biography it is: Valerie Eliot, the poet's widow and second wife, is upset about it and tried, unsuccessfully, to hold up publication.

I sympathize warmly with her loyalty to her husband's expressed wishes — but she may be on weak ground, on two counts.

First, by denying access as she did to Eliot's letters and other personalia, she does not stop anyone from writing a biography but simply ensures that it is a bad, misleading and unworthy one. This has happened.

Second and more fundamentally, does not the life of a creative genius in a sense become public property after his death? It could be argued that if Eliot wanted no biography, then he should never have made public such tantalizingly personal poetry.

The new book is by the late Robert Sencourt, a New Zealand-born scholar and churchman who claimed to have known Eliot well for 30 years. As he went about his research (in good faith, it seems, for at first he did not know of the ban) he found doors mysteriously closed in his face: Mrs. Eliot had persuaded libraries in Oxford and Massachusetts not to let him see key collections of Eliot's letters. Only later did he find out that she was acting on an alleged codicil to the will, forbidding help to biographers.

Sencourt himself died two years ago, leaving his "memoir" (he claimed no more for it) to be edited by another. It is an inadequate book, not surprisingly: being unable to quote a single line of the poetry, it reads in places rather oddly.

Its chief value is for the new light it sheds on Eliot's tragic first marriage: Vivienne's erratic descent into madness, her affair with Bertrand Russell, and how Eliot's long anguish throughout the marriage nonetheless inspired some of his best work — The Waste Land, Ash Wednesday, and The Family Reunion. But on the whole the book lacks insight and is dully written. One feels that even if Sencourt had been given the fullest co-operation, he would not have had it in him to write a memoir worthy of his subject.

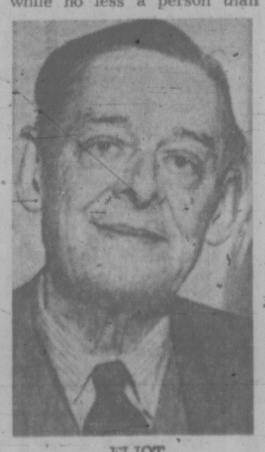
Mrs. Eliot has responded by making public a list of 25 "serious and damaging inaccuracies" in the book. And several living poets have sprung to her side, including Stephen Spender who described the book in The Observer as "a work of pure fiction," denied that Sencourt really knew Eliot well, and dismissed him as a "seedy man" who "interviewed like a beetle."

On the other hand, the poet Richard Church finds the book "serious and discreet," while no less a person than Lord Fisher, ex-Archbishop of Canterbury, has praised Sencourt's "grace and distinction of mind."



ELIOT
. . . access denied

This dispute over the author's merits hardly matters. Sooner or later someone else will write a better biography. But now there may be much more to reveal about a man whose life was so extraordinarily quiet and private — a formal, reticent figure, shrinking often from close human contact, refusing even to be seen shaving by his wife, whimsically devoted to cats and practical jokes, and, accordingly to some reports, impotent or even a queer manque. An "infinitely gentle, infinitely suffering thing."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Eliot has just produced a second sensation in the form of a big glossy book that is the original, uncut version of The Waste Land. This solves a great literary mystery. We knew that when in 1921 Eliot completed this "sprawling, chaotic poem," as he first called it, he sent it to his friend Ezra Pound who persuaded him to make drastic cuts and changes. The original draft disappeared for many years, to turn up recently in the New York Public Library. And here we now have it in print — proving, on the whole, that Pound's advice was wise.

The long cuts — including Baudelarian stanzas about London and a parody of The Rape of the Lock — are mostly sub-standard Eliot. The new book is of interest mainly for the light it sheds on the difference between Eliot's and Pound's ways of thinking.

Valerie had been Eliot's secretary before she married him in 1957. It happens that I knew her in the mid-1950s, and remember her as an unassuming, competent girl less than half his age, who quietly adored him. His every word was holy writ to her — I remember getting short shrift when once I suggested that his play The Confidential Clerk was short of a total masterpiece. But the main fact is that, as his wife, she was able to bring some real happiness to this melancholy man in the last years of his life — they even went out dancing together in public when he was over 70.

★ ★ ★ ★

But how much longer can she keep up the biography ban? Insidiously, she seems to be beginning to trangress it herself. She has written an introduction to The Waste Land book with some interesting material about the young Eliot, his financial and personal worries. She is now at work on an edition of his Letters — and recently gave her blessing to a long BBC film biography of him and even took part in it. She appears now to have gone against his express written injunction that the excised parts of The Waste Land should never be published (though of course she may have had his private blessing for this — she prefers not to comment).

Is she not working herself into a contradictory position that might do the great man's memory no service? It is true that he once wrote that he regarded poetry as "an escape from personality" rather than an expression of it — but his own poetry is so loaded with intimate personal illusions that it might be unreasonable not to expect us to want to unravel them.

Of course I can see that Mrs. Eliot would find it painful to see the dirty linen of his first marriage washed in public, especially if this included the frequent speculation that Eliot's sexual problems helped to drive Vivienne (now long dead herself) to lunacy.

But the only way to put such gossip into dignified perspective is surely to publish an authorized, full, sympathetic, well-written biography. This Mrs. Eliot should allow. In this age of the mass media, you cannot play Canute to public interest. The greatest English-speaking poet of the century now belongs to us all.

Hearing Resumes Tuesday

CALGARY (CP) — A Canadian Transport Commission hearing reconvenes Tuesday on an application by Canadian Pacific Ltd. to purchase a 50 per cent interest in Commercial Solids Pipe Line Co. of Toronto.

Eight sulphur-oil companies and the governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan are opposing the application. Commercial Solids, controlled by Shell Canada Ltd., is researching the pipeline movement of sulphur to B.C. ports but has no immediate plans to construct a sulphur line.

The hearing first opened here in late October and adjourned Nov. 2 after six days.

Opposition is based mainly on the grounds that Canadian Pacific acquisition of an interest in Commercial Solids would inhibit the possibility of setting up competitive modes of transportation and freight rates for sulphur movement.

The second session is expected to hear testimony from commission witnesses and summations by legal representatives of all parties.

MORGAN CUTS RATE

NEW YORK (AP) — Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the fifth largest U.S. bank cut its prime lending rate to 5¼ per cent from 5½ per cent effective today.

The prime rate is the interest charged by banks to their best corporate customers, and reductions make money more readily available to businesses.

Morgan Guaranty said the cut reflected its evaluation of "money market conditions and loan demand, which has been soft."

Anuk R.

Interests in Lewis G. Weeks Participants, with oil concessions in the East China Sea and Colombia, have been solidified by the Anuk River Group.

Negotiations for further concessions are in progress in various parts of the world, reports the Vancouver-based firm.

Participants in the group are Anuk River Mines Ltd., Anuk Oil Co. Inc. and the Alaska North Slope Oil Co. Ltd.

Dr. Lewis G. Weeks was chief geologist for Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and is chiefly responsible for discovering Leduc, Libya and Bass Straits oil basins.

Agra

The quarter ended Oct. 31 produced gross revenuet of $8.55 million ($5 million) and net earnings of $381,597 ($287,334) or 23 cents (19 cents) a share, reports Agra Industries Ltd.

The company had sharply higher expenses at $7.7 million compared with $4.46 million a year earlier, partly through start-up problems of new crushing equipment at Nipawin and higher interest and bank charges.

W. Decalta

Net income rose 22.8 per cent from $841,000 to just over $1 million in the three quarters of 1971, reports Western Decalta Petroleum Ltd., with share earnings of 14.5 cents and 12 cents, respectively.

Net production rose 20 per cent to produce cash flow of $2.9 million, an increase of 23 per cent, for 41.3 cents a share.

Gross income was $5.1 million, up 22 per cent.

Brascan

To Sept. 30, Brascan Ltd. made $64.9 million (U.S.), up 29.5 per cent from the similar nine-month period last year, when consolidated net restated was $50.1 million. On a share basis, earnings amounted to $2.79 and $2.15 respectively.

Part of the increase was non-recurring, due to profit from the sale of interest in a financial service.

Electric sales produced operating income of $67.8 million, up from $55.4 million, while investment income was $16.4 million ($8.5 million).

ITL

A federal commitment of $125,000 under the PAIT program of technological development has been given to ITL Industries Ltd. for the refinement of a childproof aerosol and liquid seal.

The company was a world leader in the development of tamperproof dry medicine containers for the pharmaceutical industry with Palm-N-Turn caps.

Southam

A special meeting of shareholders of Southam Press Ltd. has approved a four-for-one stock split.

The shares will trade on the split basis after necessary legal and regulatory steps have been taken.

A decision to split was the only business before the meeting.

Oro

Oro Mines Ltd. has entered the oil and natural gas exploration industry in partnership with Index Mines Ltd., Andrex Mines Ltd. and Jericho Mines Ltd.

Their first venture will be on a farmout from Williams Creek Co., consisting of two gas development wells which the partnership will pay for to earn a 50 per cent share.

Kenting Drilling is engaged to drill the pair, which may be followed in 30 days by further tests.

Chapples Sells Four Stores

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Negotiations have been completed for the purchase by the Bay of four Northwestern Ontario department stores owned by Chapples Ltd.

Lloyd Hurdon, president of Chapples Ltd., said today the sale would involve company stores in Geraldton, Marathon, Red Rock and Schreiber. It would not affect the firm's Thunder Bay store.

Hurdon said it is expected the Bay would take over operation of the four stores in mid-January, and there was "every indication" present staff would be retained.

McDonald Founder Dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Twenty-eight years ago Maurice J. MacDonald got the idea of opening a quick-order hamburger stand where customers could buy burgers for 15 cents.

The stand in San Bernardino, Calif., was an immediate hit and the McDonalds began expanding.

They added an architectural motif, giant golden arches, in 1948 when they began selling franchises — an innovation now widely copied. MacDonald and his brother, Richard, were credited with starting the boom of food take-out establishments. The brothers sold their chain eight years ago.

A family spokesman said Maurice, 69, died in his sleep Saturday night of heart failure at his Palm Springs home.

Boeing 'Junk' Making Money

SEATTLE (AP) — What does a sprawling aerospace firm do with $34 million in excess baggage like a surplus electron bean welder, an obsolete jet plane, a battered lathe, old office furniture or several cartons of toilet paper that won't fit in new dispensers?

Until May, 1970, the Boeing Co., let most of its divisions dispose of unneeded materials individually. Now, under the direction of Bing Dunham, rebasis fir far above scr serve property management has become a central clearing house for such "surplus."

Total receipts from auctions, telephone solicitations, off-the-floor sales and scrapping since Dunham took over has amounted to $20 million, able items have been recycled to other Boeing divisions.

EFFICIENCY

Most of Dunham's operation is conducted at a warehouse covering several acres in suburban Renton. Depressed industry conditions prompted the firm to try to improve efficiency, he said.

"This company's Puget Sound area payroll has dropped to 40 per cent of the level of three years ago, while to capital equipment excluding real property is at 112 per cent of its 1968 level."

"Obviously, something is wrong.

"Many items judged scrap by Boeing standards are saleable on an as-is, where-is basis for far above scrap price. Many times an item too worn or old for further use in this industry of exotic requirements, close tolerance and rigid standards can be put to a good purpose on another program."

"And just because you think something is obsolete scrap or junk don't make an effort to junk it further, such as by time-honored tradition of running a tractor over it," Dunham tells other Boeing workers.

"You have the use of the cash, the equipment isn't deteriorating in some remote corner, no further maintenance or bookkeeping is required, insurance coverage is reduced and there is a significant reduction in taxes on inventory.

"The benefits are all positive," he said.

Price Support Urged For Canada's Farmers

SASKATOON (CP) — In the face of a dwindling share of the world grain market some form of price support must be made available to Canadian farmers, E. K. Turner, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool president, said Sunday.

Turner said farmers need the assurance of a "reasonable net income."

Grain exports this year probably will set records but world production now is at an all-time high and the United States corn crop has been exceptional, Turner said in an interview.

"We have to make sure we do everything we can to retain as large a market as possible," he said.

"But even by doing so, by achieving the markets that are possible to achieve, and looking at rising costs it becomes obvious we have to have some form of price support if we are going to protect the income of farmers."

Turner said there has been no reversal or hold-the-line in the rising costs faced by Canadian farmers.

Farmers Asked

SASKATOON (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford wants farm groups to make representations to the government on the proposed new Competitions Act. The bill would replace the Combines Investigations Act. Basford said in an interview that the new act would bring about important changes in the farm machinery industry. He said he is receiving briefs from business organizations and manufacturing groups on the proposed act and that they contained helpful suggestions for improvement but has not heard from farm groups.

Re-Nominated

ELBOW, Sask. (CP) — John Skoberg, New Democratic Party MP for Moose Jaw, was re-nominated Saturday to contest the constituency for his party in the next federal election. Skoberg, a 45-year-old railway engineer, has held the seat since 1968.

Victim Identified

LAC LA BICHE, Alta. (CP) — The victim of a two-car collision Friday was identified Sunday as Ronald Neufeld, 37, of Edmonton. The RCMP said he was killed and three other persons injured in the collision on Highway 63, 139 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Breath Case Appeal Won by Smoker

SASKATOON (CP) — A man who refused to take a breath analysis test has won his appeal against a conviction, partly because he smoked three cigarettes after he was stopped by RCMP.

Robert James Hagan of Saskatoon had been convicted of refusing to take a breath analysis test after being arrested Aug. 24 on a highway near Saskatoon. The arresting officer testified Hagan had an open bottle of beer in the car.

District Court Judge E. N. Hughes allowed the appeal Friday, quashing the conviction after Hagan testified that an RCMP officer advised him after he smoked three cigarettes that this action could affect the reading on the breath analysis machine.

Hagan refused to take the test after he was driven to police headquarters.

When asked in court why he had refused, Hagan said he had heard people claim that a sober person who drank one bottle of beer fast would be over the limit on the breath test.

"And because I had tried to drink it before he (the RCMP officer) got back to my car on the highway, I felt that would possibly incriminate me. And as far as the smoking went, he said that it wouldn't give me a fair reading but he didn't explain to me why it wouldn't or how it wouldn't."

Judge Hughes, referring to Hagans' initial reason for not taking the test, said: "Failure to comply because of such total hearsay in the sense that no source of substance to the suggestion was even alluded to, is as I see it, devoid of reasonableness in so far as an excuse is concerned."

He said, however, that the explanation about the smoking "cannot be disposed of so summarily" because it was communicated to Hagan by a responsible person in authority and one familiar with the operation of the breath analysis machine.

"He had a reasonable excuse for declining to take the test," the judge said.

In Edmonton, an RCMP spokesman said the smoking of cigarettes before taking breath analysis tests is discouraged.

"Smoking doesn't cause the machine to malfunction but it will make it dirty quicker" and it will have to be cleaned more frequently.

Airlines Lift Freight Embargo

MONTREAL (CP) — An embargo on domestic air freight shipments imposed Friday by CP Air to relieve pressure on overcrowded shipping facilities has been lifted.

A similar Air Canada embargo Wednesday swamped CP Air's terminal, making the embargo necessary. The Air Canada embargo has also been lifted.

Customer Kills Clerk

CALGARY (CP) — A man entered a department store after it had closed Saturday night and shot and killed a teen-aged sporting goods clerk.

Police said the man then ran from the store and was wounded in a shooting exchange with two policemen outside the store. One policeman was wounded.

Police said Kenneth Ross Moon, 22, of Calgary, has been charged with non-capital murder and attempted capital murder in the incident. He was under police guard in hospital.

Mason Fund Launched

A trust fund in memory of a 29-year-old Victoria RCMP constable killed in a plane crash at Courtenay Nov. 26 was announced Saturday.

Mike Mason died when the small plane in which he was a passenger flipped over while trying to land. Three other policemen were injured in the crash but swam to safety after attempting to save Mason.

Organizers said the chief beneficiaries of the fund will be Mason's two young daughters and the sportsmanship ideal.

Mason played or coached in hockey and lacrosse leagues and he was an avid fisherman. He won four sportsmanship trophies in four different leagues.

The policeman's daughters, Kelly, 5, and Corey, 2, are with their mother at her parents home in Moose Jaw until the end of the year. The family intends to return home at 1245 Lyall in January.

Contributions to the fund may be sent to Sullivan, Smith and Biggelow (in trust). The words Mason Fund should be attached.

JAMES B. WEBBER, B.A.

How to Persuade Her To Join the Gypsy Set

Our notes last week on the joys of trailering as a way of life after retirement resulted in several amusing phone calls and letters, summarized best by an Esquimalt major (S) who writes: "That decision, whether or not to launch a new life on wheels, following the sun, may put a severe strain on a long and happy marriage. In the services we find that it is the dream of a great many men, but they are unable to convince their wives. I know. That's my own problem and I see no solution to it."

The point came up when I interviewed Maurice and Ethel Wright who leave this week for Mexico in their trusty Airstream. Though it wasn't true in her case, Ethel agreed that such a complete, burning-all-your bridges change might be harder on a woman; but those wives they've met on their travels haven't merely adjusted to it, but love it.

An eloquent case is made in the current issue of the magazine Trailer Life, under the heading, "Women's Lib Is a Home on Wheels," under the byline of one L. M. Dickson. I offer it as ammunition for every man in need of a convincing argument.

"What can a woman get out of trailering?" Mr. Dickson rhetorizes. "Why should a woman of mature years give up her home, the cherished possession of a lifetime of homemaking, her two daughters and two handsome grandsons — to go gallivanting around the country for a year in a cubicle on wheels?

"My wife, Mary, did it and loved it. I had retired from 22 years as an advertising man in Seattle. We wanted to begin a new life in which we could both participate. Trailering seemed to be the answer. It was something in which she could participate as fully as I. And we hoped that it would pay some extra dividends. It did — in a surprising way.

"We lived exactly 11 months in our trailer. We hauled it from Seattle across Canada, down the east coast to Florida, where we spent three-and-a-half months, then back across the Gulf states to California and home — 19,000 miles.

"We saw others on the highway— greying couples like ourselves, towing trailers, driving motorhomes, criss-crossing the continent from Alaska to Nova Scotia, to California for the winter. We could feel that they had found a new togetherness a rejuvenated togetherness. We wondered about the cause of it. Just being cooped up in a trailer didn't do it.

"We noticed that all of the women we saw helped with responsibilities of trailer hauling. They were the navigators, read the road maps, watched for the highway signs. Every woman had to be as alert as her husband. And we saw several women who did all or most of the work in connection with hauling a trailer. One did all the driving because her husband's eyesight was too poor. Another drove because her husband had once flipped the trailer and he had lost his zeal for driving, but not for trailering. Another man was apparently a stroke victim; his wife did all the driving, parking, hooking up.

"That was it! The key to these successful requirements was very often the distaff member of the couple.

"Women who travel in trailers have loyalty, willingness and a sense of adventure. Just as the pioneering women who travelled with their husbands in covered wagons, these modern wives move into their trailers with doubts, but with a determination to enjoy the life. And then they find they have found something new.

"After a while they discover that they haven't taken on hardships and dangers. They have acquired a new ease and security. They haven't lost a home, they have gained one. They find out that fewer clothes, fewer utensils, fewer dishes, fewer sheets and blankets — all these constitute a blessing rather than a curse.

They find that they haven't lost their friends, but that they have made many new ones. They find that new surroundings make up for the loss of their old homes and neighborhoods.

"In short, women who trailer have found a new freedom from the demands of housework, garden, friends and family. My wife said: 'You won't get me back in the house again!' Above all, the woman in a trailer with a retired husband has found a new way to share her husband's retirement. For the first time in history, the wife can retire, too.

"Women's liberation? It's right here!"

Finally, today, my thanks to those of you who joined our Thumb's Up Club. There are now 70-odd automobiles in these parts with the sticker on the windshield that guarantees a lift for anyone who needs it. I still have a good supply of the decals which cost 35 cents apiece so don't just sit there — send money!

One of the most pleasant letters comes from Lorne Maxwell, who commutes into the city every morning from Langford. He writes:

"To tell you the truth, I was one of those drivers who passed the hitch-hikers by, maybe because I like my privacy in the morning and don't even make conversation with my wife that early except to say good-morning and good-bye. Your column on the subject must have hit my conscience. I pasted your sticker to my windshield and now make it a point to pick up everyone who looks as if he could use a ride.

"I can tell you that it's been an eye-opener for me. In these last 10 days I have met more interesting young people than I have in the rest of my lifetime. Last week I gave a ride to a somewhat scruffy-looking lad who, it turned out, was just back from India and told me more about the war there than I could ever have learned from reading about it. Again, there was a young woman, standing in oilskins in the rain, who hitch-hikes to UVic every morning and is studying political science. How she manages it; divorced from her husband and with two school-aged kids, was an inspiration. There have been many, many others as well. Believe me, it's been an education!"

Gunning Back, Issues Quick Call for Funds

One of three Saanich aldermen re-elected Saturday said today the municipality's public works program will continue to be "crippled" unless the provincial government assumes a greater share of the cost of education and social services.

Ald. Mrs. Edith Gunning said she would like to see particular stress in next year's budget on good roads and good drainage, items which have been consistent casualties in previous budget-pruning sessions.

"But costs of $4.5 million for education and more than $1 million for social services are crippling our public works budget," she said.

"I do hope the provincial government will realize something must be done about it; that too great a proportion of these services is being paid by property tax."

BIG CHALLENGE

Mrs. Gunning said the biggest challenge facing council over the next six months will be to provide the necessary services yet at the same time hold the line on taxes, "which we must make a real effort to do."

She was returned to the aldermanic benches with a massive 7,422-vote total, larger than any aldermanic candidate in Greater Victoria.

Also re-elected were incumbents William Noel and William Campbell, with 5,697 and 5,554 votes respectively.

The only new face on council is that of Fred (Whitey) Severson, fireman and sports personality, who fills the slot left vacant by Ald. Foster Isherwood in his unsuccessful bid for the Victoria mayoralty.

The voting turnout, 34.2 per cent of eligible voters, was 20 per cent higher than last year and the highest since 1965 when there was a 38 per cent poll.

The referendum asking whether municipal grants to tourist promotion agencies should be increased resulted in a definite "no," as predicted by some of those who had opposed the principle of holding such a referendum.

A total of 2,890 persons voted in favor of higher grants, and 7,387 voted against.

There were seldom more than a dozen people watching the results go up on the board, and at no stage of the evening was there any excitement.

Noel, who edged Campbell out of second place on the last two results of the night, said: "I think the success of the past year is that we had a council which worked together as a team, despite the fact we didn't always agree.

BATTLE STATIONS

"We never got to battle stations like other councils have done."

Campbell commented: "I'm happy with the results. I think the ratepayers must feel the present council is doing a fairly satisfactory job."

Severson said he had been setting his sights on the fourth aldermanic slot, because he knew it would be difficult to dislodge the incumbents.

Despite his sporting background, he said, he had no intention of making recreation his sole theme in council affairs.

TAX CHANGES

One thing he will press for at an early date is a review of the whole property assessment system, to avoid penalizing with heavier taxes those property owners who improve their homes.

With 4,245 votes, Severson finished 663 ahead of teacher John Roberts, making his third attempt at a Saanich seat.

Obviously dejected, Roberts told the Times he was unable to understand the thinking of the Saanich electorate.

He said he had worked hard on his campaign and was confident he was going to be elected this time. He congratulated Severson on his "low-keyed campaign which apparently was the answer to being elected."

But Roberts said he couldn't see that being elected to the Lacrosse Hall of Fame qualified anyone to be a Saanich alderman.

'Ostriches' Reject Sewers

View Royal voters have a "head in the sand attitude" to sewer problems, Capital Regional Board chairman Hugh Curtis said today.

He was commenting on the defeat Saturday of a regional district referendum which sought approval of spending not more than $15,000 on a sewage collection system study.

In Saturday's referendum, 60 per cent voted against the study. For approval, a 60-per-cent Yes vote was needed.

Curtis said the study referendum's defeat is to be regretted.

"For whatever reasons, costs or fear or inability to see the facts, they have let us down and they have also let themselves down," he said.

CONTRIBUTING

It would be impossible to complete rehabilitation of Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway until View Royal stopped contributing to its pollution, he said.

"Saanich has corrected its situation almost entirely, Victoria is about to finish off its work in the harbor and Esquimalt had done its share. But View Royal has in fact said 'we don't give a damn.' "

View Royal residents don't want to know what sewers are going to cost. "They're showing a head in the sand attitude that makes one shake one's head," he said.

Curtis said those who live in the area must be concerned for their own health, but couldn't seem to realize that "no one else is going to do the job for them . . . that there is no Christmas gift to be received."

REPORT TO BOARD

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer declined comment today. He said he will be reporting to Tuesday's meeting of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Health board chairman, Saanich Ald. Frank Waring, said the vote means that regulations requiring septic tank effluent to be contained on the property where it originates will have to be enforced.

"I can understand people turning things down these days, taxes are getting so high," he said.

"Perhaps the lesser of two evils is insisting the septic tank systems are working."

Health inspectors have been testing septic tank systems with dye, and the first results show a majority of properties tested have malfunctioning disposal fields.

Whitbread has said that owners of property where sewage is leaking will be given three weeks to submit plans to fix it. Two motels and an appartment given this three-week notice have indicated they are taking no immediate action.

Low Profile Davis' Plan

North Saanich mayor-elect Trevor Davis said today he intends to actively involve the community in planning for its future.

North Saanich voters turned out in unprecedented numbers Saturday to give Davis a decisive win by 384 votes over Mayor Jim Cumming, who had led council since the municipality's incorporation in 1965.

Formation of an advisory planning commission and development of a new community plan were part of Davis' campaign platform.

The mayor-elect, who served six years as alderman, said he also intends to reduce the profile of the mayor's job.

"This is really a matter of committeee appointments," said Davis, who had criticized the administration on the grounds that all of council did not participate in policy-making.

A comparative newcomer to North Saanich, 28-year-old Paul Grieve led the aldermanic contest which returned incumbents H. A. Taylor and Nell Horth. Grieve polled 922 votes, Taylor 773 and Mrs. Horth 770.

Townhouse Plan 'Shattering'

Alderman-elect Douglas McLelland said today that if Oak Bay council permits the building of 10 townhouses on the 300 block of Foul Bay the results could be "shattering."

McLelland, an architect with the provincial government, polled the second largest number of votes in Oak Bay Saturday, receiving 2,602. Heading the polls was incumbent Brian Smith with 3,569.

McLelland voiced concern over developer John Fitter's townhouse proposal for the Foul Bay block which is to receive consideration by council at its Dec. 20 meeting.

"I hope council will give this keen scrutiny," McLelland said. "The essential principle here is not whether the townhouses are esthetically pleasing or not. It is that this area is zoned for single-family dwellings. To spot-zone this area would be to set a precedent that could be shattering."

McLelland also hopes council will delay action on a bylaw to designate the block bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Currie and Newport a development area.

John Mace of Mace Homes and Investments Ltd. has approached council with another plan for developing the block. His original proposal to build twin nine-storey towers there was roundly rejected at a recent public hearing.

McLelland said, "It is regrettable that the Windsor block proposal should come before council again so soon, especially during the Christmas season.

"It is not fair either to the people or the developer. It is too soon after the public hearing and the people are not in the mood.

"If council gives the bylaw first, second and third reading on Dec. 20, they set the machinery in motion toward another public hearing.

"This would be government by exhaustion."

Incumbent Norman Pimlott placed third in Saturday's election with a total of 2,325 votes. Three aldermanic seats were open.

Unsuccessful in his fourth bid since 1968, Elmer McEwen polled 1,773 votes, Lawrence Mann 1,541.

More than 4,100 residents cast ballots — 41.85 per cent of the total eligible electorate of 9,789 and an increase of more than 3 per cent over last year.

WOMEN NEAR TOP AT POLL

One of the sweetest victories went to Saanich alderman Edith Gunning. She beat out nine male candidates to head the polls with 7,422 votes, 1,725 more than runner-up William Noel, also an incumbent.

History was made by a woman in the Central Saanich aldermanic race. Jean Butler, in competition with seven men, topped the polls with 847 votes, becoming the first woman to lead since the municipality was incorporated in 1951.

In neighboring North Saanich incumbent Nell Horth retained her seat, gaining three votes less than Paul Grieve's and 152 less than poll-topper H. A. Taylor.

An effective comeback was made by former school trustee Rubymay Parrott. She topped the polls in the North Saanich ward of School District 63, receiving 874 votes, 409 more than Charles MacNeill.

While she didn't top the polls in School District 61, losing out to Mr. School Board, Peter Bunn, Daphne Temple also made a creditable running.

She polled 15,210 votes, 2,185 more than her nearest competitor, H. A. Knight.

In the Central Saanich ward of School District 63, the victory also went to a woman, Emily Ann Foerster, who got 887 votes to Harry Johnson's 567.

And while the ballot boxes were the instruments that led the way to these victories, another woman in Greater Victoria was able to bypass them and still make her point.

$95 Pay Raises Sought by Clerks

Pay raises of $95 a month are being sought for government liquor store clerks in discussions which opened today between the B.C. Government Employees Union and the Civil Service Commission.

The union also will be pressing for pay increases averaging 13.2 per cent for 4,000 highways employees.

Basis for the proposals is a comparison of surveys of provincial pay scales and those in federal and municipal governments and in some cases the private sector, said BCGEU secretary John Fryer.

The $95 raise sought for liquor clerks, from $650 a month to $745, would give them parity with supermarket cashiers, he said.

Wage talks with Civil Service Commission usually run into January and February. The commission then makes recommendations to the treasury board, which has the final decision.

Close Contests in Rural Areas

In the Outer Gulf Islands, Saturna Island farmer James Campbell upset incumbent Joan Purchase of Port Washington by six votes. But a recount of votes will be held.

In Langford, where incumbent Earl Pallister was 12 votes ahead of Aubrey Jenkins, a recount was expected.

Ken Rainey was re-elected in Metchosin, Dick Emery in Colwood and Marc Holmes in Salt Spring Island.

Two referendums on Salt Spring Island narrowly failed to gain the necessary 60 per cent approval — spending $1,200 a year on recreation programs and a $50,000 activity centre.

In View Royal, voters passed a referendum for maintenance and development of Helmcken Centennial Park, not to exceed $3,200 a year.

'School Funds Not Getting to Front Line, the Classroom'

Veteran Victoria school trustee Peter Bunn said today he is not satisfied that the great amount of money being spent on education is going where it is really needed — the classroom.

Bunn was elected to his sixth straight two-year term as trustee for Greater Victoria school district Saturday. He led the polls with 18,784, the greatest number of votes accumulated by any candidate in the municipal elections.

Also returned to office were trustees Mrs. Daphne Temple and Dr. Hal Knight, who polled 15,210 and 13,025 votes respectively.

The new trustee on the school board is Harry Graham, a retired engineer making his first try for public office. He polled 11,041 votes.

Bunn described the number of votes gained by the incumbent trustees as "an overwhelming mandate."

"ePople have now got to the point where they just don't think the multi-millions of dollars being spent on education are being efficiently spent," Bunn said. "Not enough of the money is getting to the real front line of education — the classroom."

He said the board is going to have to lop off more than $900,000 from the district's 1972 budget, a total that increased with the 7.6-per-cent raise granted district teachers by arbitration Saturday.

"Experience on the board has become very important," Bunn said, since the task of cutting the budget down to size is a difficult one.

He said he was pleased to see that Mrs. Temple and Knight would be able to use their experience on the boards as an advantage in this respect.

He also said the board will have to take a close look at the "middle management" area of the district's administration, with an eye to cutting costs as much as possible. Another area to be looked at, he said, is the district's computer and data processing facilities.

Unsuccessful candidates were Ted Robbins, who polled 10,750 votes, Frank Preston with 10,403 and Karel de Roo with 5,156.

B.C. Fishboat Sale Nets 700 Cold Bidders

Times News Services

DELTA — Feet beat a tattoo on the grozen ground; hands held cups of steaming chocolate or coffee laced with the LCB's best; bodies huddled against the chill of the north wind.

At the bank of the Fraser River lay the El Sueno, Nip n Tuck, Road Runner, Wanderlust, Sambo, Ocean Prowler, Geni, Gibson Girl, Viking, the grand old lady of the Pacific Coast — the Santa Rita — and 39 other commercial fishing boats.

On the banks shivered 700 bidders at the second auction of fishboats under the federal government's buy-back plan, designed to decrease the B.C. salmon fishing fleet by giving owners a method of selling their boats.

The bidders came from across B.C., Washington, Oregon, California and Alberta and the boats were destined for the East Coast, the Caribbean, Alaska and many to remain in these waters, converted to pleasure craft.

TOP PRICE $22,000

Top price of $22,000 was paid for the West Coast troller, the 48-foot Nip n Tuck out of Port Alberni, with the second highest price of $21,000 for the troller Gotland II.

But most of the prices paid ranged from $6,000 to $10,000, with the Americans keenly interested in boats up to 36 feet.

NET FIGURE

The Americans are allowed to bring in foreign commercial boats if they are under five net tons.

A boat 36 feet long and 10 feet wide would be able to squeeze under the U.S. five-ton limit by adding a second toilet and shower area, adding a curtain or two in the deck house to classify it as crew's quarters and leaving or installing seiner drums on the afterdeck to designate that area as working space.

Top boat of the sale, the B.C. Rover, had a reserve bid of $66,000 and failed to draw any response.

The government purchases boats which have a valid A or salmon-fishing licence. One condition of purchase is that they are not to be used for commercial fishing on the west coast.

Funds for the buy-back program come from commercial fishing licence fees, and any proceeds of auctions are put back into the program.

Vancouver to Increase Open-Heart Surgery

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said facilities for open-heart surgery at Vancouver General Hospital will be expanded by 25 per cent within a month.

Loffmark said the number of open-heart operations at the hospital will be increased to 10 a week from the present eight by January. The extra beds for heart patients would be obtained by converting facilities formerly occupied by tuperculosis patients on the second floor of the Willow Chest Centre at the Hospital.

Hospital board chairman Mrs. Margaret Hudson said the hospital hopes to double its heart care facilities by next fall.

The overcrowded state of heart care facilities at the hospital were made public earlier this week when Mrs. Russ McKinnon said she plans to take her husband to Montreal at the family's expense for an open-heart operation rather than wait four months for an operation at Vancouver.

Canyon Derailment

BOSTON BAR (CP) — Ten cars and two diesel units of a Canadian National Railways freight train plunged down a steep bank into the Fraser River Saturday after a derailment 18 miles south of this Fraser Canyon community.

The train, consisting of 80 to 70 cars, was westbond towards Vancouver. There were no injuries.

Indians Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The executive committee of the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs announced Sunday it plans to meet the regional director for the department of Indian affairs to protest the reorganization of Indian administrative areas in the province.

Chief Philip Paul said there has been widespread opposition to the plan to turn B.C.'s 15 Indian districts into a group of larger "super-districts," but that there has been no response from the federal department.

Car, Bus Collide

DELTA (CP) — Ivan Lloyd Hearl, 52, of Delta was killed Saturday night when a car carrying four persons collided head-on with a bus on Highway 17.

The bus was bound for the Tsawwassen ferry terminal at the time of the crash at 6:56 p.m. No one aboard the bus was injured.

SNOWSTORM WAIT FATAL TO COUPLE

HAZELTON, B.C. (CP) — An unidentified man and woman were found dead in a car north of Hazelton Saturday after they apparently tried to sit out a snowstorm.

The discovery was made by a forestry worker.

RCMP said the two were believed to have been trying to reach their home at a ranch in the Kispiox valley when they stopped the car to wait out the storm. Death was believed due to asphyxiation.

Most Canadians Favor Economic Independence

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Canadians are prepared to face dangers to our economic life, inherent in President Nixon's new economic policies of import surcharges and increased U.S. protectionism. The majority of them (59%) believe the most effective method of surviving any bad effects on our export trade, is to face up to them, by working to develop business with other countries — even though this might take many years, and bring about a serious depression. Only in this way, these men and women believe, can we remain an independent nation.

Only about a third as many (19%) would like Canada to enter some form of economic union with the U.S., accepting the possibility that most of our top opportunities in manufacturing might move to the U.S.

Across the country, only five adults in every 100 think the best solution would be to become part of the U.S., and lose our national independence.

This is the clear-cut mood of the nation, even though there are some differing viewpoints in the main racial segments of the country. English Canadians, for instance, are most convinced (65%) that Canada must, at all costs remain a nation. Among French Canadians this is a minority viewpoint (48%). Among the other races making up the total population, the level is 56%.

To give some guidance in interpreting Canadian reaction to President Nixon's new policies in their impact on this country, three possibilities were presented to a national sample of adults with this question:

"Some people believe that, as a result of President Nixon's new economic policies, Canada's export business to the U.S. will drop sharply. If this happens, which of these statements comes closest to the course you think Canada should take?

"Remain as a Canadian nation and work to develop trade in other countries — even though this could take many years, and we might face a serious depression?

"Join the United States, even though this would mean losing Canadian independence?

"or

"Enter into some form of economic union, or common market with the U.S. — even though this might mean that most of our job opportunities in manufacturing might move to the U.S.?"

	TOTAL	English Canada	French Canada	Other Races
Remain as a Canadian nation	59%	65%	48%	56%
Join the U.S.	5	3	10	5
Enter into some form of economic union or common market	19	18	17	23
None of them	8	7	15	2

Albertans Become Wine Set

EDMONTON (CP) — Wine is the "in" thing in Alberta.

For years whisky, rum, brandy and beer were by far the most popular in the province.

But no more. Aided by some subtle encouragement from the Alberta Liquor Control Board, wine now is the fastest-growing item on the basis of sales at liquor outlets.

Wine sales now total almost half those of liquor. Ten year ago they would account for hardly one-tenth the retail volume.

"I believe," he said, "one of the reasons for the increased consumption of table wines is the low mark-up policy on table wines adopted by the board 10 years ago."

He listed the prices for a popular Portuguese wine in various provinces and the additional provincial sales tax:

Saskatchewan $2.65 and five-per cent sales tax; Ontario $2.20, 10-per-cent sales tax; British Columbia $2.15, five-per-cent sales tax; Quebec $1.95, eight-per-cent sales tax; Alberta $1.65, no sales tax.

"And we have higher transportation costs than most provinces," Mr. Richards said.

It was cheaper to ship most things from Toronto to Vancouver and back to Alberta than it was to ship directly from Toronto to Alberta.

CEILING ON PROFIT

He also feels the board's new ruling of a maximum 125-per-cent profit on bottles of wine in Alberta restaurants is likely to keep the popularity of wine surging.

Another service for wine drinkers by the ALCB was outlined by Mr. Richards.

"We're not going to keep up with the connoisseur buying in London. But first we try to meet the demand of the average drinker in Alberta.

"And lately our policy has gone in the direction of the specialist drinker."

Mr. Richards said a specialist drinker has a reasonably good chance of being satisfied by the selection offered on the lists of the province's outlets.

But some specialist wines have not yet graduated to the printed lists and there is a special warehouse stock form at all outlets of 20 choice wines that can be ordered on a bottle basis. This special list offers such selections as the 10.90 Chambertin Clos de Beze 1966 and a $14 white burgundy, called Montrachet Marquis de Laguiche 1969.

Michener Plea Planned To Free Nfld. Tangle

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Frank Moores, Progressive Conservative leader, says he plans to ask Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener to intervene in the current Newfoundland political situation.

Mr. Moores said the party is in the process of preparing a petition to the Governor-General, requesting that Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government resign or that the legislature be called into session as soon as possible.

The Conservatives won 21 seats in the Oct. 28 Newfoundland election and have been promised the support of Tom Burgess, New Labrador Party leader returned in Labrador West.

Mr. Smallwood said earlier his government had the legal right to stay in power until the provincial Supreme Court ruled on a Liberal petition that one seat taken by the PCs be declared vacant.

Mr. Moores said in a telephone interview Sunday night from Gander, Nfld. the federal government would be "put on the spot" by a petition to the Governor-General.

ASKED TO ACT

Lt.-Gov. E. John A. Harnum of Newfoundland was asked two weeks ago by Mr. Moores to request Mr. Smallwood's resignation or to call the house together.

Mr. Moores said the lieutenant-governor would act only on the advice of his ministers. He said this in effect meant the advice of Mr. Smallwood.

He said the Governor-General also would seek advice from his ministers—the federal government.

"Basically, they would have to take a stand."

Meanwhile, there was growing speculation here today that Liberal Joseph Harvey, who won Labrador South in the election, would join the New Labrador Party and support the Conservatives.

Mr. Moores and Mr. Harvey met Saturday in Gander, where Mr. Moores attended a provincial Conservative association meeting which elected Edward Poole, a Corner Brook lawyer, as president.

BALLOTS BURNED

The Liberal petition to have St. Barbe South declared vacant is based on the burning of 105 ballots which prevented completion of a judicial recount.

A hearing date for the petition has not been set and a ruling may be delayed until after Christmas by legal processes. If the petition is upheld a byelection will be called as soon as possible.

The Conservatives, in a counter-move, asked the court last week to declare PC candidate Ed Maynard elected on the basis of the official count, which gave him 1,756 votes to Ligeral Trevor Bennett's 1,748.

The court is expected to rule this week on the Conservative application.

Output Beefed

MOSCOW Reuter — The Soviet Union aims to increase meat production by one-third to an annual 16 million tons by 1975 in an attempt to keep pace with demands, it was announced Friday.

SECOND MISTRIAL FOR BLACK PANTHER

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The jury hearing the third manslaughter trial of Black Panther leader Huey Newton announced late Saturday it could not reach a verdict, and the judge declared a mistrial.

After three days of deliberation, the jury split 6-6 on whether he is guilty of voluntary manslaughter.

It was the second mistrial in the lengthy prosecution of Newton, accused of killing Oakland police officer John Frey on Oct. 28, 1967.

Tabloid Makes 3rd Debut

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Forces Base in Toronto has put out a new newspaper to serve regular and reserve members of the armed forces from Oshawa, Ont., to the Niagara Peninsula.

In the first edition of the eight-page tabloid bi-monthly called The Dispatch, editor Lieut. G. W. Pearson expressed the hope it would live longer than its two predecessors.

Offset press run for the first edition of the give-away sheet was 4,000. Lieut. Pearson, physical education and recreation officer of the base at suburban Downsview, said plans were to print 5,000 copies of the next edition which will run 12 pages.

Editor Pearson says in his first column that "longevity hasn't exactly been a characteristic feature of the various newspapers published by CFB Toronto in the last decade.

"As far back as 1960, a mimeographed booklet entitled PMQ News and Views was published weekly. This booklet is still the record holder in terms of service. Indeed, it wasn't pensioned off until May 1, 1968."

It was followed by the bi-monthly tabloid Metro Military News. That paper folded after eight months. Then came a mimeographed booklet bearing the same name.

Forty per cent of space in the new paper is devoted to advertising.

Douglas Recalls Men as UAW Leaders Halt Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Aircraft of Canada called 4,000 production workers back to work Sunday night after international officers of the United Auto Workers went over the heads of local union leaders to halt a two-month strike.

The strike at the plant here had snarled operations and forced layoffs at McDonnell-Douglas plants in Long Beach and Torrence, Calif. The Douglas plant in Toronto manufactures wings for the parent company's DC-9 and DC-10 jetliners, assembled in California.

The decision to end the strike was made in Detroit Saturday and had the approval of Dennis McDermott, UAW Canadian vice-president. International executives spent five hours in a closed meeting with leaders of the Toronto Douglas Local 1967.

Mr. McDermott said after the meeting this was the first time the auto workers' top officers had ordered an end to a strike that local leaders wanted to continue.

STOP STRIKE PAY

More than 400 maintenance workers—90 per cent of the regular shift—went back to work on the overnight shift at 11:30 p.m. Sunday to get the plant ready for production.

The assembly line started operating at 7:30 a.m. today with the return of the first production shift and all pickets at the plant were removed. Strike benefits of up to $40 weekly were ordered halted.

Nine Local 1967 officers — including president Tom Johnston and chief negotiator Archie Wilson—were summoned to Detroit following a tumultuous membership meeting here Friday.

Mr. Johnston called the Friday meeting to give members a second chance to vote on a Douglas contract offer to the union, but the meeting dissolved in an uproar with most members refusing to vote.

Incensed by the failure to take a vote, the Detroit union leadership ordered the Local 1967 officers to "show cause" why the strike should not be ended.

International president Leonard Woodcock said the Douglas offer matched the wage pattern established in the auto industry last year and the international executive had "no alternative but to declare the strike terminated."

Mr. Wilson, who had been holding out for an improved contract, told reporters Sunday he was unhappy with the decision, "but I'm sure there won't be any renegade action."

Under terms of the Douglas offer, Grade Six production workers at the plant, who were earning an average $3.61 hourly when the strike started, will get 39 cents more in the first year of the contract as part of an 80-cent hourly increase over three years.

HAD REJECTED OFFER

With the addition of 20 cents more in cost-of-living benefits owing from the old contract, the new rate will be $4.61 an hour. This is the same offer rejected by the Douglas workers in a vote Nov. 19.

Mr. McDermott said it was impossible to determine the true wishes of the workers at the Friday meeting.

He added that the UAW's international officers were also worried that Douglas might yank its wing production facilities out of Canada.

Mr. Woodcock said in a Detroit interview that the UAW had sanctioned the Toronto strike insofar as it obtained a settlement equivalent to that in the auto industry. The company's Nov. 13 offer "did exactly that" and the union waited more than three weeks in hopes that the Douglas workers would accept it.

"We would have injured the employees if we had waited any longer."

The strike started Oct. 13 and forced layoffs of 1,500 workers at Long Beach when the assembly plant there ran out of wings.

Tunnel Blast Kills 22

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — An explosion which ripped through a tunnel being built beneath Lake Huron has claimed the lives of at least 22 construction workers.

"We think we have all of them out," said Gerald Remus, a project official. "But if you saw that tangled-up mess of debris, you'd understand how somebody could still be down there."

Investigators still were uncertain today what caused Saturday's blast, which rumbled through the six-mile-long tunnel some 230 feet below the lake surface. Eight workers were injured.

The tunnel, about six weeks from completion, is being built to carry the lake's water to Detroit and other customers of the city's metropolitan water system.

TUNNEL UNDER LAKE

The workers were finishing laying concrete in the 16-foot-in-diameter tunnel, which leads out under the lake to an intake shaft extending upward to within 50 feet of the lake surface.

Remus, manager of Detroit Metropolitan Water Services, described as conjecture reports Sunday that the explosion was touched off by natural gas.

"We want to get the experts in there and see what might have happened," Remus said.

The evacuation of bodies and search for survivors was interrupted Saturday night and early Sunday morning by a buildup of methane gas in the tunnel.

Robert Bower, a geologist who examined the construction site a year ago, said shale through which the tunnel was cut contained small isolated pockets of natural gas.

Isolated Servicemen Get Goodies

OTTAWA (CP) — Isolated Canadian servicemen—206 of them—will dig into more than eight tons of Christmas goodies sent to them by the defence department.

In a news release, the department said that each of the men, scattered throughout the world in 11 remote outposts, will receive two 40-pound boxes packed with 35 sealed items from Christmas turkeys and ketchup to pure maple syrup and pickles. Each package will also contain a Canadian flag.

Peking Frees Two Americans

By ERNESTO MENDOZA

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China released two American prisoners—one a woman—and commuted the life sentence of another today only a few months before President Nixon visits Peking.

But Peking also reported the suicide of a fourth American detained after allegedly sailing his yacht into Chinese waters in 1968.

Richard Fecteau, 43, walked to freedom across the Chinese border into Hong Kong after 19 years in a Chinese jail. The American woman, Mary Ann Harbert, detained three years ago, was with him.

The official New China news agency said Fecteau and another American, John Downey, 41, were captured when their plane was shot down over northeast China in 1952 while trying to supply U.S. agents there during the Korean War.

CALLED CIA AGENTS

Both were alleged to be agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and were tried for espionage in 1954. Fecteau was sentenced to 20 years and Downey to life imprisonment.

Downey, whose mother visited him in prison recently, had his sentence reduced to five years which starts from the date of commutation.

The agency said Miss Harbert illegally intruded into Chinese waters in Kwang tung province April 21, 1968 aboard a yacht owned by Gerald Ross McLaughlin.

Miss Harbert admitted her mistakes but McLaughlin "behaved badly, resisted investigation and, taking warders unawares, committed suicide" in 1969, the agency said.

Fecteau and Miss Harbert were the first Americans released by China since Roman Catholic Bishop James Walsh was allowed to leave the country last year after spending 12 years in prison.

Another American was reported by the Chinese to have committed suicide in a Chinese prison last year. He was Hugh Francis Redmond, an employee of an American firm arrested in 1954 on spy charges. He was said to have slashed his wrists with a razor.

The New China news agency said Fecteau and Downey received special espionage training in the United States under the CIA and were sent to Japan.

SAY AGENTS SENT

In 1952, Downey was said to have picked 11 special agents and, after training them, had them air-dropped in three groups into Northeast China to engage in espionage and sabotage.

On Nov. 29, 1952, Downey and Fecteau flew into northeast China in an attempt to make contact with and provide supplies for the special agents, the agency said.

The plane was shot down and the two were captured. They were convicted by a Chinese military tribunal in 1954.

The agency said that in view of the fact that they admitted their crimes at their trial and because their behavior "was not bad" in prison, China decided to grant them leniency.

The release of Miss Harbert and the reported suicide of McLaughlin—who was detained with Miss Harbert—came as a surprise because they were not among the Americans generally known to have been detained in China.

Fecteau and Miss Harbert were whisked off from the border checkpoint by helicopter to Hong Kong's International Airport where they boarded a U.S. military aircraft for the United States.

Two other Americans are known to be still imprisoned in China, air force Capt. Phillip E. Smith, whose plane was shot down over the Gulf of Tonkin, in September, 1965, and Lieut. Robert J. Flynn, a U.S. Navy pilot presumed shot down over China's Kwangsi province in August, 1967.

CHINESE TASTE FORBIDDEN FRUITS OF WEST

By JAMES PRINGLE

PEKING (Reuter) — Western diners who have struggled with chopsticks in Chinese restaurants may be consoled to know there is a restaurant in Peking serving Western food to Chinese.

Chinese diners can be seen fumbling with knives and forks, and laughing over one another's clumsy efforts to use them.

The state-run Western Food Restaurant is situated in the busy East Wind market, just off Peking's tree-lined main shopping street, the Wong Fu Ching.

There is usually a curious group of Chinese, in drab grey or dark blue denims, clustered around the menu, writtin in red Chinese characters on a yellow display board.

They stare and point with interest at the list of such "exotic" items as cream of tomato soup, ham and eggs, chicken a la king, and cauliflower au gratin.

The prices are modest—even a generous portion of caviar is less than $1—and the foor, like all Chinese cuisine, is delicious.

If the busy shopper wants only a snack, he may choose ham or cheese sandwiches or pancakes, with coffee.

But the more enterprising will start off with a Russian borsch, and move on to other French, British or Russian dishes.

IT'S SLOW WORK

Eating is slow, as the Chinese try to manipulate the unfamiliar knives and forks. Soup is sipped in the polite Chinese style—with loud appreciation.

Ideology, of course, is not forgotten. A large slogan of Chairman Mao Tse-tung behind the counter carries a message aps in the setting: "Serve the people."

A Chinese diner can even sit munching an American-style hamburger or a hot-dog while contemplating a poem by Chairman Mao written in Chinese characters and framed on the wall.

Funeral in Vancouver Tuesday for Frank Ross

Funeral services will be held in Vancouver Tuesday for former B. C. lieutenant-governor Frank Mackenzie Ross, who died Saturday at the age of 80.

Ross collapsed in his car and was pronounced dead on arrival at Vancouver General Hospital.

Lieutenant-governor from 1955 to 1960, Ross was born in Scotland, coming to Canada when he was 19 to work in a Toronto bank.

He became a millionaire and moved in Canada's highest military, civic and industrial circles.

TRIBUTES

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said of Ross, "I am sorry at the passing of this great man. I have nothing but the greatest tribute for Mr. Ross' contributions to B.C. and to Canada."

Former lieutenant-governor George R. Pearkes said:

"His sudden death will be a tremendous loss to the province. He was so very active in so many affairs since he retired.

"He will be mourned by many, many groups, including the Canadian Scottish Regiment, of which he was an honorary colonel."

SANTA "IMAGE"

Gar Dixon, Ross' secretary during his years of office and now secretary to Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, describes Ross as having "a sort of father or a kind of Santa Claus image."

This image was much in evidence in the support Ross gave the B. C. Protestant Orphanage.

Mrs. Ada Barner, matron of the orphanage now named the Bishop Cridge Centre, said, "There are boys in this town who will remember going to Government House for Christmas."

It was during Ross' term that Government House was destroyed by fire, Ross and his wife fleeing in their night clothes on a chilly dawn in April, 1957.

Most of the furniture in the rebuilt Government House was collected by Ross and his wife in Scotland and donated for the new building. Many antiques were among the items given.

Ross began his military career when he joined the 18th Highlanders during the First World War. He was twice decorated for gallantry, being awarded the Military Cross and bar.

IN FIRST WAR

During the Second World War he was director-general of the armament, supply and naval equipment branch of the ministry of supply.

The ministry of supply He also became co-ordinator of regional reconstruction councils which assisted in returning the economy to a peacetime basis.

MARRIED IN 1945

He married Mrs. Phyllis Gregory Turner, a widow, in 1945 and the two moved to British Columbia. One of Mrs. Ross' children by her first marriage, John, is minister of justice in the federal cabinet.

Ross was a director of many companies before his appointment as lieutenant-governor, among them Trans-Canada Airlines (now Air Canada), Canadian Dredge Maritimes Trust Co. of Saint John, N.B., Peace River Natural Gas Ltd. and Western Bridge and Steel Fabricators.

He is survived by his wife.

Trudeau Defends Actions

MONTREAL (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau defended his government against charges of arrogance Sunday night and said it was fulfilling its promise of participatory democracy.

Speaking at a $50-a plate Liberal fund raising dinner during a one-day trip to Montreal, Trudeau said the party was accused of being arrogant "just because we want to govern. We are telling our critics what the federal powers are. We decided to have a strong government to brings things to a head.

"We decided to publish white papers to have participatory government. We are accused on the one hand of not giving leadership, or not consulting enough, and on the other hand of consulting too much."

Trudeau emphasized "the important thing is to satisfy the majority of Canadians. We did not promise a headline government but we have met the problems of a stagnant economy and inflation better than in any other western country. We have a growth exceeding six per cent."

Hotel officials estimated about 3,800 party faithful attended the dinner. They heard Trudeau reiterate that his government "must make laws for the common good, not laws to please particular groups.

"If we make a law on bilingualism," he said, "we must respect both the French and English-speaking groups."

Referring to the government's tax bill, he said, "Our fiscal reform soon to become law was made for the whole of the country. Necessarily if some people are to pay less, some will have to pay more.

"In 1968, we did not make a political campaign full of promises — we never said we would make miracles — What is important is to look where we have been and where we are going."

Parrott Vows Open Schools

A fight to throw open peninsula schools for public use has been promised by Rubymay Parrott, who regained her seat on Saanich School Board after a year's absence in a decisive win Saturday over North Saanich incumbent Charles MacNeill.

"It is gratifying to realize that the electorate considers my educational background as a an asset rather than a disadvantage," said Mrs. Parrott, who is the wife of a teacher and a former teacher herself.

Mrs. Parrott also commented on the school trustee elections on the Saanich board, where incumbent Jack Armstrong, board chairman, scored a narrow victory by 154 votes, over Mrs. Patricia Peach.

"I was extremely disappointed Pat Peach didn't make it. A young person's views are desperately needed on Saanich school board," remarked Mrs. Parrott.

ARMSTRONG DIFFERS

Armstrong, on the other hand, confessed to "extreme disappointment" in MacNeill's defeat. "He was a tower of strength, a man of integrity and candor," said Armstrong.

Although Armstrong said he did not agree with Mrs. Parrott philosophically "because of my basic policy on lay control of school board," the chairman acknowledged that the new trusteee is "tremendously active and will make a considerable contribution."

A newcomer to the Saanich school board, Mrs. Emily Ann Foerster, who won a two-year term in Central Saanich, was welcomed by chairman Armstrong.

He said "Mrs. Foerester has a great deal to offer and seems really anxious to get into harness."

The third trustee elected is Gordon Ewan, who resigned from the board in September but stood for a one-year term representing Central Saanich. Ewan defeated his nearest opponent, Kenneth Adams, by 72 votes. Claudie Whipple was third.

Referring to the interest in Saanich school district affairs, where a total of nine candidates stood for election, Armstrong said the controversy over educational issues is in the long run a good thing. "People are becoming more involved," he said.

Chairman Lashes Brothers Over $900,000 Cutback

Greater Victoria school board chairman Allan McKinnon, faced with the task of cutting out more than $900,000 in 1972 spending, lashed out today at Education Minister Donald Brothers.

McKinnon said the minister makes B.C. school boards accept the rulings of arbitration boards on teacher salary increases and then participates in the cost of those increases to only a limited degree.

"He (Brothers) makes arbitration binding on everyone but himself," McKinnon said, referring to the limit of 6.5 per cent Brothers said the province would go to in sharing teacher salary increases.

FORCES ACCEPTANCE

Greater Victoria teachers were granted an increase of 7.6 per cent by an arbitration board decision Saturday, meaning the board itself will have to make up the 1.1 per cent difference from Brothers' limit.

"It is such an anomaly that the minister forces us to accept the decision of an arbitration board and then won't participate in it," McKinnon said.

He said the board will have to pare an extra $175,000 from its 1972 provisional budget because the teacher salary increase is 1.1 per cent over the 6.5 per cent figure budgeted for.

This figure is added to the $750,000 the board already knew it had to chop from the budget.

McKinnon also attacked another aspect of the salary increase decision. The fact that the increase will be applied across the board will only widen the economic gap between the two poles of the salary scale, he said.

He said neither teachers nor the board had been in favor of an across-the board increase but it had been decided by the arbitration board anyway.

The effect the decision has will mean a principal earning $20,000 a year will get a salary increase of about $1,500 while the teacher on the bottom of the salary scale will gain only about $500.

HEATH LEADS

BROADSTAIRS, England (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath who recently conducted the London Symphony orchestra, in a charity performance, took to the podium to lead a choir.

Heath conducted an 80-strong choir and orchestra Sunday in his home town's annual concert of Christmas carols.

Brief Term For Ontario Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Armed with a personal mandate from Ontario voters, William Grenville Davis leads his Progressive Conservative government into a mini-session of the provincial legislature today.

The 42-year-old lawyer from Brampton who steamrollered the Liberal and New Democratic Party opposition in the Oct. 21 election, expects the session will end by Friday.

Hashish Seized

RED DEER (CP) — RCMP said today that seven Americans have been arrested in what could be the largest seizure of hashish in North America.

The police said they intercepted 600 pounds valued at $3 million on the illicit market, at Canadian Forces Base Penhold.

The Hashish was about to be transferred to an American aircraft believed to be destined for Denver, Colo.

Dollar Skids

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar fell to another low in terms of the British pound today and stayed weak in most other European centres. The dollar skidded to its lowest point of $2.51895 to the pound since sterling's devaluation four years ago from $2.80 to $2.40.

La Presse Union Goes to Membership

MONTREAL (CP) — Unions involved in the bitter and complex La Presse dispute have given themselves until Wednesday to respond formally to Quebec government recommendations aimed at settling the dispute.

Union representatives told a news conference Sunday night they needed more time to clarify "some ambiguity" in the suggested solution and to meet with their membership.

Five La Presse unions affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions and six affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor were to hold general meetings today and Tuesday to discuss the recommendations presented by Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer Saturday.

A labor department official said Sunday the newspaper's management had submitted its reaction to Mr. Cournoyer's recommendations Saturday in a sealed envelope, but it was returned unopened when the unions asked for more time.

Mr. Cournoyer forwarded his proposals to both sides giving management and unions at North America's largest French language daily until 5 p.m. Saturday to accept in full his recommendations.

The labor minister said early Saturday that if either side rejected any of the recommendations the government would end its intervention.

The news conference Sunday was held by Claude Beauchamp, representing the journalists' union affiliated with the CNTU, and Jean-Pierre Borduas, a negotiator with the QFL.

Mr. Borduas said he had met earlier Sunday with Joseph Leblanc, deputy minister of labor, to clear up "the ambiguity and confusion" in some of the clauses in Mr. Cournoyer's proposals.

Mr. Beauchamp said more time was needed before the employees could respond because it was necessary "to talk these things over with our members."

Andre Bureau, La Presse vice-president, said in a statement Saturday, "our response was clear."

"The minister has taken note of it and should return it to us considering that the unions have not made a reply to his recommendations."

La Presse's response to the recommendations was not revealed.

La Presse, with a circulation of 225,000 a day, has been closed since Oct. 27 when the newspaper decided to suspend publication.

Mr. Bureau's statement sharply criticized the 11 unions representing a total of 1,400 employees involved in the dispute, saying the unions have created the impression "that they would prefer to kill La Presse which has already offered its 1,400 employees the most advantageous working conditions in the industry."

Mr. Beauchamp expressed anger at the statement saying it was an attempt to "splinter the unions and capitalize upon the division."

The conflict was precipitated in July when 350 production employees were locked out because of disagreement over their new contracts. An Oct. 29 demonstration near the downtown offices of La Presse by various unions left 160 persons injured.

Mr. Cournoyer said there was "an extremely deep, intricate and complex feeling of uneasiness within the editorial department of the newspaper."

He said Mr. Desmarais interpreted journalists' demands for safeguards on handling their stories as an attempt to take control of the newspaper, although the journalists had repeatedly denied this objective.

His recommendations were not announced in full but included payment by La Presse of compensation for the period Oct. 27-Nov. 29 to 800 employees who still had valid contracts when the newspaper closed. By his estimate, this would be at least $500,000.

'Thugs Threatened Cyclist'

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter)— Austrlian cycling star Keith Oliver says he was threatened by a Mafia-type organization while competing in a six-day race in Montreal, Montreal.

On his return to Sydney at the weekend, he said that both he and Graeme Gilmore, another Australian star, were warned not to win the race or else they would be in serious trouble.

He said it was "virtually a death threat" and there was talk that the thugs were members of the Mafia or a similar organization who had bet a large amount on the race.

Oliver said that after finishing fifth in the race, he left Montreal as soon as he could.

Witnesses Hear Pledge

Man was put on Earth with the idea that he should live forever, D. G. Clegg, Jehovah's Witnesses district supervisor for B.C., told 1,542 persons at a Witness convention Sunday at S. J. Willis Secondary School.

Clegg told the gathering the Bible contains "instructions on how to attain this goal of everlasting life. If we allow the Bible to motivate us to bring our lives in harmony with God's righteous requirements, we can prepare now to live forever."

Incorrect Information

An armed forces' spokesman said today that incorrect information had been released by the service on a private sentenced to nine months' imprisonment at a standing court martial Thursday.

In its original release, the service had described Pte. Tyler Anthony Weselak, 19, found guilty of trafficking "a substance held out to be a restricted drug," as being employed in CFB Esquimalt's navigational school.

Today, the spokesman said that Weselak was a crewman aboard the destroyer-escort HMCS Gatineau at the time of his arrest.

NIXON FAVORITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek says President Nixon is "a 7-to-5 or 8-to-5 favorite right now" for re-election.

The Las Vegas oddsmaker, whose real name is James Schneider, also said Sunday that Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine is "under even money" to capture the Democratic nomination in 1972.

"Muskie is 1-to-2 or 3-to-5 the favorite to get the Democratic nomination," he said in an interview on WMCA radio.

The oddsmaker added that Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Senator Henry M. Jackson of Washington "are 4 or 5 to 1 and have the best shot at catching Muskie."

Hungary's Top Leaders Go to School

BY DAN MORGAN

BUDAEPST (WP) — The men who run Hungary's government and industry are to be sent off to school soon to learn sophisticated techniques of modern management.

Under a directive that has been circulated, state officials from deputy ministers down, and chiefs of the country's biggest industries, will have to complete an intensive one-month course at the National Management Development centre in Budapest.

Within six months after they go back to their positions, they will be required to submit a detailed dissertation on some aspect of management technique. Each class will have 30 students.

The management center was set up following the economic reform that was put into operation in Hungary in 1968. The reform placed much more responsiblity on the shoulders of factory boses and offitials, many of whom had been relying on the old, centralized system of subsidies and padded quotas to get by.

SOME HITCHES

Since Prime Minister Jeno Fock's candid Oct. 22 speech conceding that some hitches had developed, a number of top leaders have said that part of the trouble has been the sluggishness with which some factory chiefs and leading state bureaucrats have seized the opportunities offered by the reforms.

When the Communist Party central committee met Wednesday, one item on the agenda was further modernization of Hungarian enterprises and increasing the level of management proficiency.

Dr. Gyuly Berci, general director of the management centre, said this week that the economy had a "50 per cent additional reserve" in untapped potential for better administration.

To some degree, other communist countries are coming to the identical conclusion.

Berci said that a Soviet professor at a Moscow management school had told him that production could be increased "8 to 12 per cent" by raising the level of management expertise in the economy.

The course for Hungary's state and business elite will go heavy on basic introduction to computers, which is in line with the government's plans to have 350 large computers operating by 1975. There are now 86 in the country, the bulk of them British or American.

LITERATURE

However, there will also be courses on management psychology and marketing. Among the literature being distributed by the centre is the book, "New Decision-Making Tools for Managers," edited by the Harvard Business Review.

While some theoretical material will be discussed, Berci said that emphasis will be on the "case method," in which the "student" will deal with actual problems confronting Hungarian factories and government departments.

During a demonstration of the method this week before 10 deputy ministers and 20 department heads from the state apparatus, the problem was posed of how to control wages and prices over the next five years in an actual Hungary factory.

The officials immediately came to grips with one of the toughest problems now facing the Hungarian economy, that of increasing productivity. There is a widespread belief the Hungary's acute labor shortage has caused some "oversecurity" among workers and that ways must be found to pare excess fat.

COMPUTER

The conclusion was reached, with the aid of a computer, that a 16 per cent "decrease in staff" at the factory used in the case study could be obtained over the next five years, with a resulting gain in productivity and without causing social dislocation.

However, managers as well as workers also need more motivation, Berci feels.

The centre is therfore going to offer a prize of 10,000 forints (about $350) to the best written contribution from a Hungarian manager or official on management techniques. It will be printed in the centre's periodical review, Vezetokepzes.

Some of the ideas being included in the course were brought back by Berci from a stay in New Brunswick, N.J., where he attended the management course organized by the YMCA.

32 PERSONS KILLED AS HOUSES COLLAPSE

CAIRO (UPI) — Three neighboring four-storey houses collapsed in a residential area of the Egyptian port city of Alexandria, a city official said Saturday.

At least 32 persons were killed and 14 others taken to hospital with serious injuries. More than 100 residents were rescued by some 500 police, firemen and civil defence workers.

'35 Million Allotted For Youth'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Whig-Standard says the government has alloted $35 million for the federal Opportunities for Youth program in 1972, an increase of $10 million over this year's pilot project.

The newspaper says an official announcement is expected this week.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, the minister responsible for the program, had expressed reservations about the program. In a speech to the Canadian Council on Social Development last fall, he said it benefits an "already privileged section of the community."

The minister said it could be argued that the program emphasizes disparity by "offering the mainly middle-class student the opportunity to do something interesting and exciting during the summer while leaving the poorly-educated young workers in jobs of grinding boredom or frustration from having no job at all."

Sideburn Suit

CHICAGO Reuter — Charles Key, 29-year-old accountant, is suing a Chicago bank for $1 million damages for firing him because he refused to trim his sideburns. His suit, filed in U.S district court here, says he regards moustaches, goatees, beards and sideburns as traditional symbols of "black American masculinity."

Mistaken Turn Was First Break

NEW YORK (AP) — David Sarnoff was 15 when he went to apply for a job as a newspaper copy boy. He mistakenly turned into the office of the Commercial Cable Co., which hired him as a $5.50-a-week messenger.

That wrong turn marked his entry into the world of the electron. It changed his life and it indirectly influenced the lives of millions.

Sarnoff, who died Sunday at 80, was a broadcasting pioneer and hard-driving businessman who became a major force behind the development of the electronic media. He had been ailing for several years.

He organized the National Broadcasting Co. and rose to head of the RCA Corp. When he retired in 1970, he left an empire which had a gross annual sales volume of more than $3 billion and turned out more than 12,000 products.

Because of his farsighted grasp of the practical possibilities of radio, television and communications satellites, he was a dominant figure in the electronic communications industry for more than 50 years.

BORN IN RUSSIA

Born in a small Russian village, Sarnoff went to the United States as a boy in 1900. When his father died several years later, he took the messenger's job to support his mother and three brothers and sisters.

Saving his money, he bought a telegraph instrument, learned Morse and was hired by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Instrument Co.

His first step to fame came April 14, 1912, when he was wireless operator at the Marconi station atop Wanamaker's Store in New York. That night the Titanic struck an iceberg and sank with the loss of 1,517 lives.

Young Sarnoff picked up the staccato dots and dashes of the message from the British steamship: "Hit an ice berg. Sinking fast." For the next 72 hours, he told the world about the disaster, relayed names of the 700 survivors from a rescue ship and guided other rescue ships.

To facilitate Sarnoff's job of picking up the weak signals, President William Howard Taft ordered all other wireless stations along the East Coast silenced to prevent any interference.

PROPOSED HOME RADIOS

In 1916, he wrote a memorandum to his superiors proposing that a "radio music box which "would make radio a household utility in the same sense as a piano or phonograph. The idea is to bring music into the home by wireless."

Sarnoff estimated sales of one million sets, at $75 a set, within three years, for sales of $75 million. Actual RCA sales from 1922 to 1924 amounted to $83 million.

In 1923, he penned another memo: "I believe that television, which is the technical name for seeing as well as hearing by radio, will come to pass in the future."

Sarnoff became president of RCA in 1930, a year after the company acquired Victor Talking Machine Co., with its "His Master's Voice" and "Victrola" trade marks.

During the Second World War he was a special consultant to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters in Europe. He was promoted to brigadier-general Dec. 6, 1944.

Rock Group Ousted

LIMA, Peru (Reuter) — Leftwing students prevented a concert appearance Saturday at Lima University stadium by the American rock group Santana.

After two days of demonstrations against the concert, the left-wing military government ordered the group out of the country. Police escorted them to the airport Friday and they took off for Los Angeles.

Park Stroll Enjoyed by Rangers But Aroused Hawks Mug Gump

By Canadian Press

Gump Worsley wilted before the aroused Chicago Black Hawks, defenceman Brad Park stole the scoring thunder from some of his New York Ranger team-mates and Boston Bruins saw two ex-mates haunt them in National Hockey League action Sunday night.

Worsley, the veteran goaltender who led Minnesota North Stars' netminding tandem with a league-leading goals-aginst average of 1.36 going into last week's games, was shelled from the nets by 12:04 of the first period after four pucks got past him.

The Hawks scoring spree propelled them to a 5-3 win over the North Stars and a four-point bulge in their battle for top spot in the West Division.

Brad Park came up with his first three-goal game in the NHL as the Rangers trounced Pittsburgh Penguins 6-1 to pad their lead in the East to three points.

CANADIENS LOSE

And Boston saw their chances of staying with the Rangers suddenly dim when ex-Bruins Ivan Boldirev and Wayne Carleton scored in a 4-2 loss to California Golden Seals.

In other games Sunday, Montreal Canadiens, also in the East Divsion race, failed to capitalize on the Bruins loss by dropping a 4-1 game to Philadelphia Flyers. Toronto Maple Leafs took advantage of Buffalo defensive lapses to score twice on third-period breakways for a 4-2 victory over the Sabres.

Chicago regained first place Saturday with a 3-1 win at Toronto while Montreal nipped Minnesota 4-3. Elsewhere, Boston drubbed Vancouver Canucks 6-2, Detroit Red Wings outskated Philadelphia 6-3, St. Louis Blues bowed to Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and Buffalo and Pittsburgh Penguins tied 3 3.

Worsley, 42, who lost his last start, 3-1 at Tornto last Wednesday, had a case of too many Hulls before he departed in favor of Cesare Maniago.

Dennis Hull started the Montreal native's exit with the first of his two goals just after the five-minute mark. Then Chico Maki, Dennis Hull again and Bobby Hull's 17th of the season completed the shellacking.

Maniago allowed just one more goal, but the Minnesotans were unable to play catch-up hockey in a surpisingly-tame affair at Chicago Stadium in which only six minor penalties were called, three to each team.

Park rocked Penguin's rookie goaltender Jim Rutherford with two goals in the second period and added his 10th of the year early in the final season.

He also assisted on New York's first goal, by Rod Gilbert. The veteran winger's goal, his 20th of the season, was the only goal picked up by Rangers high-scoring Hot Line of Gilbert, Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield.

It also marked the sixth time Gilber thas scored 20 or more goals in a season, a team mark surpassed only by Henry, each with eight 20-or-more goal seasons.

BOLDIREV GIVES LEAD

The Bruins, who had won 11 and tied one of their last 12 starts, were unable to shake loose from the pesky Californians who took a 2-1 lead on Boldirev's second-period score.

Phil Esposito's 23rd of the season, which brought Boston to a 3-2 defiet, set the stage for Carleton's insurance score with 30 seconds remaining in the game.

Boldirev moved to the Seals in a trade for two minor league players early in the season. He had been preceded there by Carleton left unprotected by Boston in last summer's NHL draft and picked up by California.

To add to the Bruins' woes, California's opening score went to a Boston-area native, Bobby Sheehan, who was developed in the Montreal system before being acquired by California.

Ron Ellis and Jim Harrison scored Leaf goals in the third period against Buffalo's beleaguered goaltender Roger Crozier when the hometown Sabres deserted him in an all-out effort to mount an offence.

ELLIS SNAPS TIE

The Leafs rifled 10 shots in each period against the game little backstop who withstood the siege behind Buffalo's porous defence until Ellis's 10th of the season at 1:56 of the final period snapped a 2-2 tie.

Ed Van Impe's second goal of the season and rookie Bill Clement's first NHL goal, both in the first period, launched Philadelphia's home ice win over Montreal.

The Flyers sent Montreal and goaltender Ken Dryden toppling to only their fourth loss of the season, preventing the defending Stanley Cup champions from breaking a second-place deadlock in the East with Boston.

UP AND OVER goes Philadelphia's Bob Kelly during action around Montreal net in Sunday's National Hockey League game at Philadelphia. Kelly collided with Montreal goalie Ken Dryden. It was no goal this time, but similar aggressive play enabled Flyers to upset Canadiens 4-1.

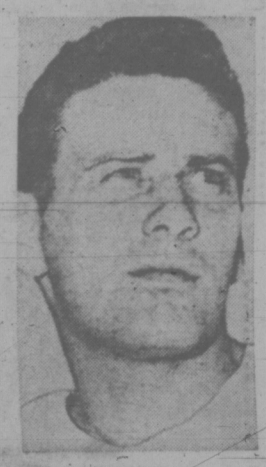
DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

ILLEGAL MOTION might have been excellent call for this bit of action during National Football League game in Baltimore. Unidentified fan, suitably dressed for occasion, is clobbered by Baltimore linebacker Mike Curtis after trying to steal football during fourth quarter. Surprising sell-out crowd was ability of fan to get up and run after being decked by Curtis. In regular action, Colts whipped Miami Dolphins 14-3.

Len Dawson Rallies Chiefs To Spoil Blanda Heroics



LEN DAWSON
. . . the best, says coach

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"If there is a better quarterback in pro football, I don't know who it would be," Kansas City coach Hank Stram said of Len Dawson.

"I can't say they're the best two running backs, but just look at what they've done the last two weeks," Dallas coach Tom Landry said of Duane Thomas and Calvin Hill.

Dawson masterminded a last-ditch 93-yard drive that ended in Jan Stenerud's 10-yard field goal Sunday which catapulted the Chiefs to a 16-14 victory over Oakland Raiders and the American Conference West championship.

SHARE FOUR TDS

And the Thomas-Hill tandem rushed for 183 yards and accounted for four touchdowns in Dallas' 42-14 shellacking of New York Giants that put the Cowboys on the edge of the National Conference East throne.

In Sunday's other National Football League games, San Francisco '49ers smothered Atlanta Falcons 24-3, San Diego Chargers bombed Denver Broncos 45-17, Green Bay Packers belted Chicago Bears 31-10, Philadelphia Eagles beat St. Louis Cardinals 19-7, New York Jets defeated New England Patriots 13-6, Cleveland Browns edged New Orleans Saints 21-17, Pittsburgh Steelers turned back Cincinnati Bengals 21-13 and Houston Oilers topped Buffalo Bills 20-14. On Saturday Minnesota Vikings beat Detroit Lions 29-10 to take the NFC Central title and Baltimore Colts whipped Miami Dolphins 14-3.

Otis Taylor, who wound up with 113 yards in pass receptions, caught three Dawson passes for 28 yards in the winning surge and an interference penalty on another pass to him accounted for 29 more.

It is Kansas City's first divisional title since 1966—although in 1969, after finishing second to Oakland in the regular season, the Chiefs whipped the Raiders in the playoffs, then went on to rout Minnesota in the Super Bowl.

Taylor also caught a 29-yard touchdown pass and Stenerud booted earlier field goals of 33 and 14 yards in the triumph that wrecked a heroic performance by quarterback George Blanda, who came off the bench to guide the Raiders from a 10-0 deficit to a 14-13 fourth-quarter lead on a pair of Marv Hubbard one-yard touchdown bursts.

The Cowboys opened a one-game lead over Washington and can clinch the divisional crown if the Redskins tie or lose tonight.

While Thomas rambled for 94 yards and touchdowns of three and seven yards, Hill tacked on 89, including a four-yard scoring run, and added 50 more on four receptions, one of them a 10-yarder from Roger Staubach for a touchdown.

Generous Jerry Changes Mind . . . Shoes Go When Streak Ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry West, unbeaten this National Basketball Association season, looked down as he untied his shoes.

One of the Los Angeles Laker ball boys was standing nearby. West walked over, handed him the shoes and said, "Here, these shoes haven't lost a game. You can have them. I'm going to get a new pair."

"Oh boy," squealed the youngster. Then West thought better of his shoes, which the Lakers' star guard had worn while leading his team to its 21st straight victory, an NBA record.

"Son, just a second. Let me have those back. You can have them when we lose a game."

"Gee," said the kid, walking off with head down, "maybe you won't lose."

The Lakers' Sunday night 104-95 victory over Atlanta Hawks wasn't an artistic success, but it did provide Los Angeles with the all-time record for consecutive triumphs, one better than Milwaukee Bucks won last year.

The streak began Nov. 5 when West came off the injury list. He also played in the Lakers' first four victories and has been the key man in almost every game in which he has played.

The Lakers, 27-3, face Portland Trailblazers Tuesday night.

Sunday night's game before 17,505 at the Forum was in doubt with 1:01 to play. Atlanta had clawed to within a point, 96-95, and the Lakers hadn't hit a shot in two minutes. Gail Goodrich then came off the bench and got off a wobbly pass that Wilt Chamberlain slammed through for a three-point edge with 39 seconds left. An interception, a layup by Goodrich and a dunk by Leroy Ellis plus two free throws netted the record victory.

The Lakers, during the streak, had averaged 121.7 points to the opponent's 107.5.

Goodrich had 32 points, West 26 and Jim McMillian 19 while Chamberlain was gathering in 24 rebounds.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday night, Boston Celtics beat Cincinnati Royals 98-83, New York Knicks downed Cleveland Cavaliers 103-92 and Houston Rockets edged Seattle SuperSonics 100-98.

In the NBA Saturday night, it was: Chicago 115, Boston 99; New York 134, Portland 102; Cincinnati 103, Cleveland 95; Milwaukee 107, Baltimore 101; Philadelphia 118, Detroit 111, and Houston, Phoenix 110.

Esquimalt Curlers Capture Two Spots

Rinks from the host club will make up half the southern Vancouver Island contingent entering the Island mixed curling playdowns at the Racquet Club of Victoria, Jan. 8 and 9.

Foursomes skipped by Lyle Garraway and Don Matheson of the Racquet Club as well as Keith Dagg of Victoria and Harvey Thomson of Esquimalt collected the berths in zone playoffs that concluded Sunday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Garraway (Helen Garraway, Ed Hedley, Shirley Anderson) and Thomson (Shirley Gray, Lynal Mack, Wilma Fenwick) advanced to the Island playdowns by winning semi-finals in the "A" side of the double-loss elimination competition on Saturday.

Garraway edged Fred Duncan of Duncan 9-8 while Thomson defeated Jim Fennell of Esquimalt by the same score in the "A" semis. Dagg nipped Al Paterson of Esquimalt 9-8 while Matheson also stepped over Fennell 10-4 after eight ends.

Howie Ward of Esquimalt and Don Sexton of Playland were Garraway's first victims on Friday. He then sent clubmate Mike Falkins down into the "B" side in the quarter-finals.

Thomson began Friday with wins over John Flynn of Playland and Jack Trueman of Victoria, then scored an unexpectedly-easy win over Dagg, taking charge with a steal of two on the eighth end and winding up with an 11-5 victory.

Dagg rebounded through the losers' side by eliminating Duncan 10-5 while Paterson followed suit and ousted Flynn, 9-4.

First Money Is Great . . . But Exemption Sweeter

-FREEPORT, G.B.I. (AP) — "I had all my eggs in one basket in this one round" a smiling and admittedly excited Bob Goalby said.

He was talking about final round 70, a steady one-under-par effort under tremendous pressure Sunday that brought him a one-stroke victory in tre $130,000 Bahama Islands open golf tournament.

More importantly, at least for the 40-year-old Goalby, it secured him an exemption from the qualifying rounds for next year's regular tour events.

Goalby, who had had a poor season, had to win this last event on the pro schedule to make it.

"I'm pretty excited, maybe as much as I have ever been," he said after sinking short par putts on the final two holes to win the $26,000 first prize and a spot in the top 60 money winners—the determining factor in making the exempt list.

"It's a matter of prestige," said Goalby, winner of 11 titles in his pro career that started in 1957. "I didn't even know how much money it was for first place. I just knew that I had to win it. It's very important to me."

The victory pushed his 1972 earnings to $45,833.43 for the year and 51st place.

George Archer took second prize of $14,800. Archer, leader through the second and third rounds, finished with a 72 for 276. He closed out the year with $147,769 fourth on the list behind the absent Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer.

Bert Yancey had a final round 71 for 277 and a tie with Tommy Aaron for third Aaron had a five-under-par 66, best round of the final day.

FIFTH WORLD RECORD

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Australian teen-age sensation Shane Gould set a world swimming record in the women's 1,500-metre freestyle Sunday night.

Her time of 17 minutes and 0.6 seconds was her fifth world record in women's sprint and distance events. The 15-year-old Sydney blonde now holds the freestyle record for the 100, 200, 400, 800 and 1,500 metres.

By ERNIE FEDORUK

At a different time and in a different corner of Memorial Arena, Victoria Cougar coach Fred Hucul echoed some sentiments expressed earlier by Brandon Wheat King's Rudy Pilous.

Both felt the Cougars "could have won just as easily as they lost" Saturday's Western Canada Hockey League engagement at the Arena. The nod went to the Wheat Kings, 3-2, on the strength of two unanswered goals in the third period.

But Hucul's words also were kind. The impact of his praise is greater since the Cougars absorbed their 10th straight defeat.

"I can't complain," said Fred. "It was a good effort.

"The team showed me some of the bounce it had at the start of the season . . . That snap that we lost on the road trip recently."

Loynachan, Morrison Make It 2-0

Getting away to a 2-0 lead on goals by Don Morrison and newcomer Rod Loynachan, the Wheaties popped to life on a brilliant goal by Ron Chipperfield late in the second period. The visitors then pulled it out on third-period goals by defenceman Qayne Coxworth and Dale McMullen.

It went down to the wire. Cougars twice yanked goaltender Darryl Fedorak in favor of a sixth attacker in the final 79 seconds, flubbed a particularly great chance to tie with about 60 second left, and forced Brandon to hang on.

Yet, if the truth must be known, both teams might have settled the issue much earlier. The Brandon boys flubbed earlier chances because of Fedorak's good work and some poor finish, the Cougars because of equal poor finish and a reluctance to shoot.

Victoria winger Wayne Bianchin was guilty of the most costly hesitancy. With Fedorak scrambling out of the net in favor of an extra attacker, Bianchin had a great chance to score the tying goal with about a minute left in the game.

He was in close, well inside the faceoff circle, and had two teammates and a Brandon defender screening goaltender Dave McLelland. Bianchin tried to work in closer, lost control of the puck, and the Cougars never got a better chance.

New Cats Impressive In Debut

Loynachan, Greg Robinson and Morrison did give Hucul some shooting snap. Mostly with the forgotten wrist shots. All three managed to get away quick wrist shots at various points in the game. It is extreme injustice that they weren't able to score on some of their chances.

Apart from his squad's generally-strong overall performance, Hucul had other reasons to be pleased — Loyncahan and defenceman George Pesut. Playing their first game for Victoria since being obtained from Flin Flon Bombers in a five-player trade, both performed strongly.

Loynachan, very obviously, will help improve Cougars' mediocre scoring production.

Pesut looks as if he will add considerable strength to the defence corps. He showed good puck control in his own zone, particularly in manipulating the rubber along the boards.

Minnesota's WHA Entry Names Sonmor as Coach

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints of the new World Hockey Association called a news conference today to name Glen Sonmor as their first coach and general manager.

Sonmor, 42, is leaving his position as head hockey coach at the University of Minnesota, a position he has held for five seasons and nine games this season.

Ken Yachkel, 41, was expected to be named the new university hockey coach, taking a team which posted a 1-8 record so far in the 1971-72 season.

Sonmor previously coached at Ohio State, junior A in Canada and in a Hamilton high school program.

Sonmor played several seasons in the minor leagues until his career was shortened by an eye injury. He once played on a Cleveland Barons team that included Jack Gordon, Fred Shero, Fred Glover and Emile Francis—all four now coaching in the rival National Hockey League.

Ex-Cats, Goalies Enjoy Profitable Scoring Weekend

Times News Services

Flin Flon Bombers got good mileage out of players acquired in deals with Victoria Cougars but couldn't hold the spotlight away from goaltenders who decided to get in on the Western Canada Hockey League scoring act at the weekend.

Players who originally started with Victoria this season accounted for 10 scoring points as Flin Flon swept a weekend series from Medicine Hat Tigers.

Harvey Schmidt scored twice and Len Chalmers counted one goal Sunday as Flin Flon tripped the Tigers 8-6. Both players joined Bombers last week.

Another ex-Cougar, Gary Howatt set up the tying and insurance goals in Flin Flon's 5-3 victory Saturday.

Medicine Hat goaltender Leo Karchie passed off to Stan Weir to pick up an assist. He was one of three goalies who figured in goals Sunday.

Centre Barry Chernos and winger Ron Andruff also picked up two assists Sunday to cap a strong showing by ex-Cougars.

Regina's Bernie Germaine was the "big gun" among goaltenders. He picked up two assists as the Pats downed Swift Current Broncos 6-2 before 1,115 Regina fans.

Saskatoon Blades' netminder Ed Humphreys also picked up an assist in Winnipeg but it didn't help as the Jets walked off with a tough 3-2 victory that ran their unbeaten streak to four.

Calgary Centennials, sparked by right winger Ron Homenuke, swept a pair of games to pull five points ahead of Oil Kings in the Western Division. Homenuke scored a pair of goals in a 7-3 triumph over Brandon Wheat Kings Sunday after counting once and helping twice in a 4-1 triumph over Swift Current on Saturday.

FACE NATS TONIGHT

The Oil Kings, who move to the Coast for a three-game swing starting tonight in Vancouver, lost ground to Calgary by dropping a 4-3 overtime decision to New Westminster Bruins.

Les Jackson's goal with five seconds remaining in sudden-death overtime gave the Bruins their third straight victory.

Evergreens Lead Relay

Victoria Evergreens turned in the fastest time of 419 minutes, 43 seconds to win the 21-mile mixed handicap medley relay Sunday at Beacon Hill Park.

Elizabeth Fisher "A" was second at 128.37, and Victoria Flying "A" captured the third trophy on a time of 130.06.

Diving Victories

PRETORIA (Reuter) — Liz Carruthers of Sherwood Park, Alta., and Keith Russell of the United States won gold medals at the first South Africa Cup international diving competition Saturday.

Texas Win Boosts Petty Cash Total

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — The first stock car racer to win more than $1 million, Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., added the Texas 500's first-place money of $13,000 to his total Sunday after outduelling Bobby Allison's Mercury for nine of the final laps.

Petty's Plymouth took the lead on the fourth turn of the 230th lap and held off Allison, of Hueytown, Ala., in a bumper-to-bumper fight for nine laps until the rear wheels of Allison's car began to smoke, forcing a pit stop. Petty's winnings total $289,145 for the year, a National Association of Stock Car Racing record. It was his 21st victory of the year.

WAYNE MACDONNELL . . . shares double title

Rollicking Time In Singles Finals

Top-seeded Bruce Rollick edged second-ranked Wayne Macdonnell, 15-11, 12-15, 15-12 Sunday to capture the men's singles championship in a battle between veteran Vancouver rivals in the B.C. Festival of Winter Sports badminton tournament at the Victoria Racquet Club.

Rollick, the current Canadian singles champion, reached the final by crushing Mike Epstein, also of Vancouver, 15-1, 15-3, on Saturday. Macdonnell downed fellow Vancouverite Vic Conley, 15-8, 15-4 in the other semi-final.

Rollick's wife, Judy, won the women's singles title with an 11-7, 11-5 win over Jane Youngberg of Vancouver. Mrs. Rollick, the top seed, has defeated Barbara Nash 11-6, 11-6, and Miss Youngberg, seeded second, downed Helga Worster of Vancouver 11-6, 11-2 in Saturday's semi-finals.

In men's doubles competition, Macdonnell and Cam Delgleish of Vancouver defeated Rollick and Greg Harris of Edmonton 17-14, 15-5, while Miss Nash and Miss Youngberg took the women' doubles crown with a 15-2, 15-8 victory over Mayr Lou Cierich and Joan Cierich of Portland, Ore.

Joyce Kalweit and Bud Dobson of Vancouver won the mixed doubles championship with a 4-15, 15-6, 15-12 victory over Diana Rogers of Victoria and Eric Sandstrom of Vancouver.

Miss Rogers and Sandstrom, a late entry which had not played together regularly before Saturday's semi-finals, advanced by upsetting the second-seeded duo of Joan Cierich and Conley 15-10, 15-14. Miss Rogers and Sandstrom were the only unseeded players to advance to Sunsay's finals.

CITY JUDO ACES WIN THREE TITLES

QUESNEL — Victoria Judo Club athletes collected three gold, three silver and one bronze awards here Saturday at the finals of the provincial junior and intermediate judo championships.

Local gold medal winners were Mark Stiefken (over 85-pound division), Calvin Lee (intermediate under 120 pounds) and Art Alderkirkner (under 150 pounds).

Blues Rebound To Deck Boxers

CHEMAINUS — Newly-signed goalfender Sam Kingston blocked 32 shots Saturday night while sparking Chemains Blues to a 4-2 Vancouver Island Hockey League victory over London Boxing Club.

Marlies Hoping to Add Another Howe

Mark May Follow Marty

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Mark Howe, son of Gordie Howe, will sign a contract this weekend with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, becoming the second son of the retired National Hockey League great to sign with the club.

Marty, 17, a defenceman, signed with the Toronto club the beginning of the season. He last played with his 16-year-old brother with Detroit Junior Red Wings in the Southern Ontario Hockey Association last year. Mark is a forward with the Detroit junior club.

Their father retired this year after 25 seasons with Detroit Red Wings, leaving the NHL as top scorer with 853 goals and 1114 assists, among other accomplishments.

Gordie said today that while Mark "will eventually go" to the Marlies, he has not signed a contract.

The newspaper says Mark's decision to join the Marlooros was undoubtly predicated by a report that the OHA junior council is seriously considering including United States-born players in its annual priority draft of over-age midget players. If Mark remained where he was he might be drafted by another OHA junior team, the paper says.

Clarence Tubby Schmalz, OHA president, confirmed that he had been in conversation twice with Mark, the paper says.

"I was talking to him Wednesday or Thursday regarding this matter the over-age midget draft," the paper quotes Schmalz as saying.

Schmalz said that before Mark could sign an OHA playing certificate and a Marlboro contract, he must first get his release from the Detroit team and a transfer from the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association.

However, the paper says Mark is not expected to have any trouble in either case.

Marty says he has not had much difficulty in adjusting to a new town and a new league.

"The OHA is a better league but not by as much as you would think," Howe said.

"There were some good players in the Southern Ontario group, but the OHA has more of them. There were three strong teams last season in the Southern Ontario league. The OHA has seven good ones this season.

"A big difference is in the arenas. We played in some older buildings last year but most OHA teams play in good ones, such as Maple Leaf Gardens and the Montreal Forum, plus new buildings in Ottawa, Oshawa, Kitchener, London and Peterborough."

No matter where he plays, Howe still finds that fans take the trouble to remind him that he is the son of one of the greatest hockey players ever.

"Actually, I've heard less from the fans this season about my father than ever before," said Marty.

"So far this season, I don't think one opposition player has mentioned it. In the past, we heard quite often like it was a big deal to say something about it."

"Marty has had so much more publicity than any other 17-year-old player that it's tough to think of him as being that young and in his first year of Major Junior A hockey," says Marlie coach Frank Bonello.

"He should be much older than 17. He also has more poise than most boys his age."

Coach Bonello says that while Howe still is learning, he has shown a lot of ability.

"Marty has plenty of poise, the abilitiy not to get flustered when the heat is on him," said Bonello.

"He knows exactly when to get rid of the puck and exactly when to hold on to it. This isn't something he has to think about. He makes the move naturally, which means he doesn't give the puck away too often."

Howe's father often makes the trip up from Detroit to see his son play and sometimes watches the Marlies workouts.

At one such practice the senior Howe offered some fatherly advice from his vantage point along the boards:

"Skate, you lazy son-of-a-gun. Do you expect the puck to pull you?"

Dead Heat in Heritage Stakes

Racing Roundup

By The Canadian Press

Freetex, charging up from last place, and Eager Exchange, who came back after losing the lead, finished in a dead heat for first Saturday in the $105,350 Heritage Stakes at Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

Eager Exchange, ridden by Tony Loguercio, took the lead turning for home, surrendered it to Lucky Bidder and then came on again for a share of first place.

Lucky Bidder finished a nose back in the 1 1-16-mile test for two-year-olds.

Freetex' share of the victory in what was the richest stakes in Pennsylvania thoroughbred racing history was worth $57,150 while Eager Exchange earned $32,150. Freetex's share included a $25,000 bonus for winning both the Kindergarten at Liberty Bell and the Heritage.

Peace Corps and Knight in Armor, racing in the silks of Jack Drefus's Hobeau Farm, won the $20,000-added divisions of the December Handicap at Aqueduct in New York.

Peace Corps, ridden by Chuck Baltazar, closed fast to win the first division going away by four lengths over Misty Monday.

Knight in Armor, urging 116 pounds including Mike Venezia, ran the mile in 1:35 1-5 for a 1½-length victory over Highbinder.

In San Mateo, Calif., Balcony's Babe won the $20,000-added Tropicana Handicap at Bay Meadows. Carrying 115 pounds, the daughter of First Balcony covered the 1 1-16-mile test for three-year-olds in 1:44 1-5 on a fast track.

Half a length behind her in a dead heat were Irreproachable and Very Decidedly.

Yarrows Squad Grabs B.C. Title

Yarrows, who downed Invermere 85-12 Friday, advanced to the final with a 38-35 victory over Clearbrook earlier Saturday.

Duncan captured third spot in the eight-team tourney by clouting Clearbrook 43-30. Duncan dropped a 35-34 squeaker to Salmon Arm in the opening game Saturday.

In other Saturday encounters, South Burnaby defeated Dawson Creek 49-25, Kitimat scuttled Invermere 33-24 and South Burnaby tripped Kitimat 45-20.

Yarrows' Janice Turner, the tourney's most-valuable player, and clubmate Debbie Knowles were named to the all-star squad along with Cathy Stravrakov of Duncan, Kathy Weins of Clearbrook and Tara Smith of Salmon Arm. Sue Aitken of Duncan received honorable mention in the selections.

Terrace, coached by former Victorian Joe Milligan, reached the boy's final with a 68-47 romp over Elizabeth Fisher Junior High of Langford. Elizabeth Fisher rebounded with a 52-40 win over Prince George to grab third spot.

In other games, Vancouver trampled Prince George 52-29 and Powell River tumbled Kamloops 48-43 while White Rock defeated Invermere 63-35 and Powell River 62-39.

Shields Puts Speed Into Skating Sprints

VANCOUVER — Dave Shields of the Esquimalt Speedskating Club won three events and set a provincial record while capturing the juvenile boys' aggregate crown here Saturday at the B.C. championships.

Shields won the 400-metre event in a record time of 45.9 seconds, eclipsing the old standard of 47.3, and added victories in the 200 and 800-metre events.

In the intermediate girls' division, Christine Henderson of Dawson Creek won the 400, 800 and 1,000-metre events while Susan Boyd of Esquimalt placed second in all three races.

Craig Schnept of Fort St. James won the midget boys' section and was followed across the finish line by Jim Michaels and Russell Kennedy of Esquimalt.

Izzard Squash Champ

VANCOUVER — Angus Izzard became the only one out of 35 Victorians entered in the Western Canadian junior squash championships to emerge with a title following final matches Sunday at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club.

Izzard won the under-15 crown with a 3-1 win over Scott Edgertson of Seattle after defeating another Victorian, Charles Proctor, 3-0 in the semi-finals.

John Dowling, the only other Victorian to reach a final, dropped a 3-1 decision to reigning Canadian champion Robin Wade of Vancouver in the under-19 section.

In the opening matches Saturday, Izzard bounced Dave Gandosi of Vancouver 3-1 while Proctor slipped by John Ennard of Vancouver by the same score; Dowling tumbled Hamish Angus of Shawnigan Lake and Dave Buchanan of Vancouver by 3-0 scores and Miss Shepherd beat Vivian Eltrix of Vancouver, 3-1.

Meet the new '72 Dodge Dart

Dodge Dart, the popular compact car from Dodge. There are six models—the four-door Dart sedan, and the Dart Custom four-door; the Demon Coupe and the performance-oriented Demon 340; and two hardtop models, the Swinger and Swinger Special.

On all Dart models you get these features; unitized construction, 7-stage deep dip rust-proofing, torsion-bar suspension, aluminized muffler and tailpipe, self-adjusting brakes, and fresh air heater.

There are two standard engines—the 198 cubic inch Slant Six and the 318 V8—and an optional 225 Six. The performance 340 V8 on Demon 340 features Chrysler's new electronic ignition system that eliminates the need for breaker points.

A very special option for open air buffs—a soft vinyl sliding sun roof available on Demon models.

CAMPBELL RIVER COLLECTS CROWN

Campbell River, a runner-up in the inaugural tournament last year, crushed Gulf Islands 15-1, 15-3 Saturday to win the Vancouver Island junior high school boys' volleyball championship Saturday at Oak Bay High School.

The Campbell River squad, fielding nearly the same players as last year, was pressed hard by Parksville before recording 13-15, 15-3, 15-4 victory to enter the final. Gulf Islands gained the final by winning a marathon 15-9, 8-15, 15-10 struggle against Comox.

Comox later captured third place by defeating Parksville.

Campbell River and Comox were the only undefeated teams entering the double-loss elimination championship round after winning their sections in the round-robin qualifying round.

★ ★ ★

The new champions swept past Arbutus, Gulf Islands and Oak Bay in the "B" section and advanced to the championship round with Gulf Islands, winner over Arbutus and Oak Bay.

Comox moved ahead with wins over Royal Oak, S. J. Willis and Parksville in the "A" section and qualified with Parksville, which tumbled both Royal Oak and S. J. Willis.

Arbutus downed defending champion S. J. Willis and Oak Bay in consolation play for fifth spot. Oak Bay was sixth, S. J. Willis seventh and Royal Oak eighth.

Cosmos Grab Lead By Clipping Duncan

Cosmopolitan Royals bounced Duncan Village Green 4-2 Sunday at Beacon Hill Park to vault over idle UVic Vikings into the lead in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division.

In second-division action at the same park, Lake Hill upset leading Prospect Lake 2-1 on Sunday while Gorge FC surprised second-ranked Labetts 3-0 on Saturday.

Larry Clarke scored twice from the penalty spot in the second half to lead Gorge in Saturday's match. Archie Byatt added a single just before the intermission.

All three matches were postponed from the previous weekend because of wet grounds.

Free Tosses Trip Runners

Mt. Douglas Rams sneaked past Reynolds Roadrunners 50-49 on two clutch free throws by Ron Smith in the final of the Rams-Roadrunners high school boys' basketball tournament Saturday night at Reynolds.

Roadrunners gained the final with a 74-51 victory over Burnaby North Vikings earlier in the day.

Rams led 20-8 at the end of the first quarter but Roadrunners came back to narrow the gap to 31-24 at half time and finally went ahead 47-46 late in the game.

LEADS MARKSMEN

Then Smith was fouled and calmly collected his 17th and 18th points of the evening with only 14 seconds remaining to top marksmen on both teams.

Leon Mitchell, who paced Roadrunners with 16 points, bobbled a chance by missing two foul shots with only one second left on the clock.

Rams opened the tourney with a 78-32 win over Claremont to gain a bye into the final.

ALL-STAR SQUAD

Smith and Bert Zethof of the Rams as well as Mitchell and Don Ireland were named to the tournament all-star squad. Bob Watson of Courtenay completed the team.

But in other high school action the same day, Victoria teams were not always as fortunate.

North Delta Huskies, the reigning B.C. champions, won the Belmont invitational boys' tournament with a 62-55 victory over Belmont Braves in the final.

In the consolation game, Mount View Hornets raced to a 35-9 half-time lead and went on to score a 64-34 triumph over David Thompson Totems of Vancouver.

Elsewhere, Franklin High School of Portland downed host Oak Bay Bays 68-54 in a boys' exhibition encounter. In a preliminary tussle, Victoria Totems humbled Burnaby North Vikings, 57-38.

Centres Bankrupt

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Bankruptcy proceedings have been opened against West Germany's biggest operator of the Bordellos known as "Eros centres," a district court announced recently.

A court spokesman said several hundred creditors were demanding money from Willi Schuetz, a builder who operates "Eros centres" in Frankfurt, Berlin, Munich, Kiel and Wiesbaden.

Exercise firms thigh and abdomen

Muscle Talking Most Rewarding

By REBA and BOBBIE CHURCHILL

Many physical conditioners suggest fewer workouts but more concentrated action. A simple routine, such as lifting the leg, becomes a thigh and abdomen firmer when accompanied with the following "talk" and follow-through movements. Naturally, get your doctor's approval first.

Concentrate on the front thigh muscles while raising the left leg. Simultaneously draw in lower abdomen. Remind yourself to hold your body erect, and to stretch the left leg, pointing the ball of the foot toward the floor. Repeat three times; relax. Then, alternate legs.

Progress to a waist and torso trimming routine. Stand with weight evenly distributed on both feet. Either cup arms so finger tips touch overhead, or as dancer Trish Mahoney demonstrates, grasp an exercise rod. Bend to the right side, then the left. The dialogue makes the muscle action more rewarding. Stretch the body tall; then start to bend. As you bend, push the balls of your feet into the floor. As soon as flesh at right side of waist "dimples in," stop. Rehearse three times to the right, an additional three to the left.

To continue smoothing and toning the torso, as well as contouring the arms, stand erect, contract buttocks and abdominal muscles. Inhale through the nose, and arch right hand overhead. (At first, for balance, you may need to grasp an exercise wand or chair back with left hand.) Continue bending, feeling ribs separate, and stopping when flesh dimples at left side.

Exercise rod helps you keep balance

Unmarrieds' Party Offer Causes Guest Problem

DEAR READERS: I recently published a letter which I found extremely difficult to answer. I wavered between two opposite solutions. I asked my husband. He asked others. I then asked my readers how they would answer it.

The letter:

DEAR ABBY: My husband's boss has invited us to a "housewarming party," which my husband feels we must attend. I disagree.

His boss's wife had surgery recently and was found to have inoperable cancer. (The wife doesn't know this.) The boss sent her to Europe (where she came from) to be with her mother while she's "recuperating." He told her he'd join her in three months and bring her home. But it's obvious that he's banking on her not lasting that long, because the day after she left he moved his girl friend into their home and they've been living together ever since. (She's a divorcee whose husband got custody of their children, so you know what she's like.)

This unmarried team goes everywhere together, knowing that no one is going to tell his dying wife what's going on. They have now moved into a de luxe high-rise apartment furnished with the European wife's generous dowry, and we are invited to the housewarming.

My husband says if we don't attend it will mean his job, and jobs aren't exactly hanging on trees these days. Am I wrong for refusing to go? Or is my husband wrong for insisting the we do? — Caught in a Bind.

My suggested replies:

1. Dear Caught: Your first consideration is to your husband. Close your eyes, hold your nose, and go!

2. Tell you husband that he can help "warm" their house if he wants to, but the setup leaves you cold, and you're not going!

Some interesting observations:

The youngest voter was a nine-year-old girl reader of the New York Post. (She voted for Number 2.) The oldest was a 98-year-old female Los Angelest Times reader. (She voted for Number 1.)

Of the females who said, go," and indicated they were per cent added, "your first duty is to your husband."

Of all who voted "Don't go," and indicated that they were under 30, a surprising number added, "and be sure the boss knows your absence is in protest to his immoral behavior."

Those who voted "Don't go," and indicated there were 40 or older, suggested in overwhelming numbers, "Don't go," but make up an excuse, a sick child, the wife came down with the flu, or some sudden family emergency came up.

I heard from Nursing Homes, where the majority of women said, "Don't go," and the men said, "Go!"

Some male inmates of a prison agreed that the husband should go, but the wife should not.

The Padres of a Mission wrote, "After years of marriage counselling experience and the overruling principle of Christian charity and emphasis on commitment to spouse, we took a closed ballot and amazed ourselves with a unanimous vote for Number Two!"

The mail is still pouring in, and my mailman is not speaking to me, but tomorrow I shall use my entire column to share with you some of the most quotable replies accompanying the votes.

And to those of you who responded, thank you.—Abby.

Christmas Without Religion

MOSCOW (UPI) — At Christmas time, Russia has everything that America has. Everything, that is, except Christ.

A Western stranger visiting this officially atheist nation at the end of December would see very little that differs from New York or Chicago. Colored lights, decorated trees, gift-laden shoppers and images of a bearded, befurred old man delivering toys on a sled.

But the Russian Christmas season has been carefully shorn of any religious meaning. The ancient Pagan trappings of Christmas were adopted wholesale by the Communist regime, and transferred to the New Year celebration.

Except for a distinct Russian flavor, those trappings could have come straight from New York's 42nd Street.

The hero of the season is "Ded Moroz" (Grandfather Frost), a jolly old man with a white beard, bright red nose and fur-lined clothing. He rides in a sleigh drawn by a traditional three-horse troika, and delivers gifts to children who have been good all year long.

The Russian New Year at its most typical can be seen in Moscow's huge Detsky Mir (Children's World) department store, billed as the world's biggest toy store.

The tall central hall contains a 50-foot-high fir tree, called a "yolka," whose boughs sag with decorations, colored lights, dolls, candies and gifts. Beneath it tens of thousands of shoppers teem through the aisles in search of gifts to be delivered on New Year's Eve.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Dec. 14, 1971

BY SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Idealism dominates. You may not be too practical now in evaluation of situations, persons. Take time to be positive. Applies especially where money, partnership deals are concerned. Another Aries is in picture.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): What appears a certainty may require additional study. Obtain hint from Aries message. Let others declare their intentions. Some, with opposing views, seek your counsel. Be flexible, but firm on principles.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Relative in transit may make special request. Do what you can without wasting valuable time. Aquarius person could figure prominently. Unorthodox approach is featured. Stick to basic issues.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Children occupy thoughts. You could become involved with individual who changes from moment to moment. Ride with any emotional storm. Refuse to be confused by situation which is more humorous than threatening.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Be meticulous about details. What appears minor may actually be of major importance. Know this; respond accordingly. Don't play games with security. Check locks, safety devices. Avoid unnecessary risks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Learning process is emphasized. Know that change of opinion is no disgrace. Gemini individual fires barrage of questions. Answer to best of ability; avoid mere gossip. Stick to facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Accent on money, valuables, personal possessions. You could be recipient of gift. Family member is in picture. Conciliatory gesture is in order. Seek harmony. Collect, synthesize information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov 21): You may be called upon to make special, personal appearance. Be ready. Toss aside false modesty. Don't play role of kicking toe in sand. Encourage new contacts, challenges. Cycle remains high.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec 21): Fine for attending theatre, changing routine. Romance is featured; clandestine conference could be featured. Be discreet. A confidential matter must now be considered — and decided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Desires fulfilled if you take overall view. Avoid petty persons and situations. Emphasis is on friends, hopes and wishes. A promise is fulfilled. Express gratitude without being maudlin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb 18): Career matters, ambitions now take precedent. Your concepts, ideas find wider audience. Stress originality. Avoid chiches. You are given more responsibility. Chance for added reward is greater.

PISCES (Feb 19 - March 20): Accent on journeys, future plans. Communicate with those at a distnce. Get thoughts, ideas on paper. Gain shown through written word. Obtain valid hint from Aquarius message. Teach and learn.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, analytical. You are able to size up situations, persons. You are a natural character analyst. You are due for challenge. You can meet it and succeed. Individual who "wore you down" with problems will be out of the picture.

Joy Dowler is mother to 1,500 plants

She Keeps Nature Inside Buildings

EDMONTON (CP) — If you have problems with houseplants, spare a thought for Joy Dowler, who is the sole support and mother to nearly 1,500 plants.

Miss Dowler is a horticultural technician and cares for all the plants on the 23 floors of offices of Alberta Government Telephones in a 33-storey building. She thinks she may be the only woman in Canada with such a job.

A graduate of Olds Agricultural College in Alberta, the 22-year-old brunette got the job with AGT just before it opened its new building last July.

The architects wanted to bring nature inside the building as much as possible, so AGT had ordered 1,000 tropical plants sent from Miami.

The plants come in all sizes, from a seven-foot African milk tree to a four-inch pepperoni plant, and in more than 60 species from an Australian umbrella tree to a zebra plant.

Translated Names

Miss Dowler prefers their generic names, but she translated as she showed off some of the plants, several of which were blooming.

She got her job almost by accident, she said. After she finished her course in the spring, she went to work for the ecology corps in Edmonton for the summer.

"AGT was looking for someone and they wrote to the college, which gave them my name," she said in an interview. "They were surprised that I was a girl, but they hired me."

The biggest plants in the building are on the main floor, she said. These include the African milk tree, which is part of a large planter of cacti and succulents, a couple of huge rubber plants and several laurels.

Around the base of each tree she has planted vine-like plants as grpund cover.

Keep Soil Moist

These help keep the topsoil moist in the large planters and help discourage the public from dropping cigarette butts and candy wrappers into them, she said, picking a gum wrapper out of the cactus garden.

She makes rounds of all the plants in the offices about once a week. She waters them, loosens the soil, picks off any dead leaves and checks carefully for signs of insects or disease.

Her work area is a desk in a corner of an unoccupied floor of the building. Clusters of potted plants sit in groups around it; some need repotting, others were brought there for treatment or special care.

She hasn't any special plants of her own. The closest she'd come to admitting to a favorite among them was to say she really liked a Madagascar dragon tree — hideous-looking palm-like plant she had ready for repotting.

Heart Victim Rescues Three

WARWICK, R.I. (UPI) — A man scheduled to undergo open heart surgery jumped into the water last month and helped pull out three navy flyers who had ditched their plane in Narragensett Bay.

Next week, when Arthur Desanto undergoes his surgery, the fliers, their wives and members of their squadron will donate the blood needed for the operation.

"It was a Wednesday," last month Desanto's brother Joseph, recalled. "The only reason we went was because Art had been to the hospital the day before and had just learned that he would have to have open heart surgery. He was depressed, so I suggested we both take the day off and go fishing."

The two Desantoes and a brother-in-law, Joseph Anthony, were on Narragansett Bay, south of Point Judith about 1 p.m. when a Quonset point-based jet ditched about half a mile away.

Started Motor

"When I saw the plane coming in I started the motor and told Art and Joe to get the lines in. They reeled their own but nobody touched mine — just like a bunch of fishermen," said Joe Desanto.

The plane was still floating when they reached it and a minute later three flyers climbed out on the wing.

"Just then the plane started to tilt and all three men went into the water. We went right in and pulled them out."

The flyers were Lt. Comdr. William M. Moroney, Lt. J. G. James R. Jannell, and AW2 Robert Bradley. Moroney injured his foot.

"When I looked around Art was taking off Moroney's shoe then he took off his scarf and wrapped it around the foot to keep it warm. And took off his jacket and gave that to the injured man too. Art's like that," his brother said.

'Extraordinary'

"Art was the most considerate man I have ever met, he was just extraordinary," Moroney said.

"We were delighted to find that there was something we could do for Art. When we heard he needed blood, we talked to the other members of the squadron and a lot of them volunteered immediately. And our wives are going to donate too," Moroney said.

IBM, Bank Help Welfare Mothers

NEW YORK (AP) — Two leading American corporations are assisting an ambitious rehabilitation program ranging from training welfare mothers in clerical skills for self-support to baby-sitting their children when the mothers get jobs and are off welfare.

A child day-care centre has just opened on Sutter Avenue in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, among the urban areas worst hit by racial conflict, burnings and other destruction. The two-storey centre, rebuilt from a burned-out shell, was refinanced on a long-term mortgage plan and a short-term loan by the Chase Manhattan Bank as part of its program for inner-city lending.

The mothers have been attending an adjacent community school to learn clerical skills. The training equipment — key punchers to process cards for computers, accounting machines, electric typewriters, sorters and verifiers — was furnished by IBM, the world's largest manufacturer of computers.

The idea was conceived primarily by Rev. Charles E. Lott, pastor of the New Eden Baptist Church in Brooklyn. He describes the program as "a way out of welfare."

A Negro serving a largely black community in New York, he is convinced that rebuilding the inner cities, some burned and smashed in racial violence, "can't be done by shouting and violence, but by work." He hopes the project he is directing will succeed, expand, and serve as a model in similar situations across the United States.

"We couldn't have done what we have done without the help of Chase Manhattan and IBM," he says.

The minister-director reports that graduates of the training school, 98 per cent of whom are women and most of them with children, have earned $220,000 since 1970 in jobs demanding data-processing skills acquired at the school.

Time-tested dropleaf table practical in any house

Make Most of Space

By PAULINE GRAVES

Good ideas are timeless. Their adaptations to today's life styles makes them modern. If you are interested in homes, both architecture and furnishings, you probably know that Thomas Jefferson's ideas for his home, Monticello, are still practical and beautiful today.

Such a timeless idea, that of the dropleaf table, is shown in here, in modern dress by architect Sim Bruce Richards, A.I.A. So, a furniture idea not only becomes updated, but it goes architectural, in an integral part of the room.

A fairly small recess, eight inches deep on one side, 15 inches on the other, functions practically as a room, with a tall chest of drawers, shelves and the drop leaf table fitting precisely into the space.

The front legs of the table fold away underneath the front edge. The back legs remain fixed in position, and they are necessary because they support the back 15 inches of the table top. This back 15 inches lines up with the adjacent chest of drawers, and when the rest of the table is dropped down, the back section is seen to be an extension of the bottom shelf.

Because this area is at one end of the family room, the homeowner uses it as a sewing centre. The table makes a fine cutting board, and the chest of drawers holds fabrics, patterns and all of the equipment that goes with sewing, except for the machine. This is in a cabinet against the next wall.

History Recorded

Today I'm riding high! I've just had a book published! Not a big, important one but rather a modest soft-cover book that can easily be picked up and put down. It's about pioneer women of Vancouver Island and it's titled Wild Roses At Their Feet.

Regular readers of this column may remember that a little more than three years ago I asked for help in preparing a manuscript for such a book. I wanted the names of women who had contributed much to our pioneer growth within a time period of approximately 1866 to the early days of this century.

My Idea

Women of the church, women who were early leaders in education, music, nursing and in business and professions, women of the farms and women in more urban areas.

My idea in asking was (hopefully) to hear of descendants of such women who would tell me something of their life stories.

Results were extremely rewarding. I had telephone calls and letters from many in this southern part of Vancouver Island, also from Duncan, Nanaimo and even from Courtenay-Comox.

It took months to sort out the many leads. Then to visit and talk to men and women who remembered their pioneer grandparents or great-grandparents and the stories they had told of pioneering days.

Notebook after notebook was filled. Finally I came back to the provincial archives to check these notes against facts preserved there. To check and double check. Then to go back, in many instances, to those who had shared memories with me to verify and decide what should be recorded.

Finally, from this great mass of information emerged the stories of 78 pioneer women. Of these, 38 lived and worked in Victoria and the other 40 from Saanich up to Cape Scott.

The completed manuscript was published recently through interest and support of the B. C. Centennial '71 Committee.

I hope you will like it.

Some who read this column will no doubt remember that 43 years ago the Victoria Women's Canadian Club sponsored and published a limited edition of a book about early pioneer women written by N. deBertrand Lugrin and edited by John Hosie, then provincial librarian and archivist. It's now a collector's item.

In the forword of that book it was pointed out that it was impossible to include all women who had played a prominent part in the growth of Vancouver Island, and because of this "a second volume is under consideration." That was back in 1928.

Second Volume

On several occasions after that the Victoria Women's Canadian Club considered producing a second volume. But rising costs of printing and publishing always kept a cautious hand on the recurring discussions.

It was that long-ago promise that prompted the club, three years ago, to make a small grant to me to be used for research and in gathering the stories for my book.

It's been a fascination experience. A learning experience, too. One in which I have met any number of interesting people and made many friends.

Still Need

Now that the work is completed and the manuscript is in print I can also say there is need for still another manuscript and another book if the story of our pioneer women is to be fully recorded and preserved.

For it is as true today as it was when the Lugin edition was printed in 1928 that while the history of a country may be written from the lives of men, it is "from the lives of women that we learn best of a nation's soul."

Business as Usual for Cowichan Leaders

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

DUNCAN — Three Cowichan Valley incumbent mayors who were re-elected Saturday said today they will be carrying on "business as usual" for the next two years.

Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife said he is "highly elated with the enthusiastic turnout of voters in Duncan and the overwhelming vote of confidence the people have placed in me. It makes me most confident to face the next two years."

Quaife received 881 votes while his opponent, Ald. Martin Lukaitis, received 246. Quaife, elected for his third term as mayor, plans to concentrate on a redevelopment program to entice new business and will continue to cooperate closely with North Cowichan.

North Cowichan Mayor Gerry Smith said, "I never thought I would get this much support." He received 1,939 votes; his opponent, Ald. George Whittaker, 1,316.

Smith, elected for his second term as mayor, said, "It amazes me that the people have that much confidence in council and myself. I was delighted with the turnout of voters, especially with the bad weather.

North Cowichan's voter turnout was 57.8 per cent.

Smith said he, along with council, "will keep up the work we have been doing for the past two years."

Mayor B. R. All of Lake Cowichan, "delighted" to have been re-elected for his third term as mayor, is disappointed the $1,102,000 sewer referendum was turned down by five votes.

Village residents cast 361 yes votes, 365 no.

"The defeat of the referendum was very, very disappointing," he said this morning. "I wonder if the people who said 'no' realize what they turned down."

All received 484 votes, opponent Hazel Elves 246.

Incmbent aldermen Herb Halliday and Ken Irving were re-elected to the village council.

In Duncan, there will be three new aldermen sitting on council. Incmbent John Homer was re-elected while two other incumbents, Tom Kilpatrick and Jay Powley, were defeated. New members are Bob Young, Ken Paskin and, for a one-year term, Bob Willis.

Dentist Don Martin defeat- council. Incumbent John Stan Turner for Duncan's school board seat.

Voter turnout was 62 per cent.

In North Cowichan, incumbents Tom Burge and Margaret Robertson were re-elected along with newcomer Ron McKinnon and, for a one-year term, Archie Stevenson.

North Cowichan school trustee Dick Christmas was re-elected along with former trustee Terry Taylor, principal of Young Elementary School at Youbou.

TWO WOMEN

Two women will be new trustees on the Ladysmith school board. Esme Cosey defeated incumbent Baden Millard for North Cowichan's seat and Gloria Shupe defeated incumbent William Seaton for Ladysmith's.

New on Ladysmith's council are Frank Jameson and George Nash.

New directors on Cowichan Valley Regional Board will be Murray Turner of the Cobble Hill area and Godfrey Ferguson for the Cowichan Station-Sahtlam-Glenora district.

COMMON MARKET PACT AGREED

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Britain, Ireland and Denmark will sign the accession treaty to the Common Market next month after reaching agreement Sunday with the six original market members on the last major issue in their entry negotiations.

But Norway, the fourth country bidding for membership, denounced its fellow applicants for giving in to the European Economic Community — the formal Common Market name — on the problem of fisheries rights and will continue bargaining in an effort to get improved terms.

British negotiator Geoffrey Rippon, whose compromise proposals Saturday laid the basis for the agreement, has also come under fire as fishing interests in Britian accused him of "selling out."

Before returning to London, Rippon told a press conference he considered the settlement "about the best day's work we've ever done in negotiations."

He insisted that the terms he had obtained would provide continuing protection for 95 per cent of Britian's inshore fishing grounds.

He said he had abandoned nothing of substance.

The fisheries settlement virtually concludes entry negotiations for Britian, Ireland and Denmark after 18 months of bargaining. Only a handful of secondary items remain to be solved.

15 Killed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A small bus and truck collided head-on Sunday and the bus struck a group of pilgrims walking down a hill from a chapel. A Red Cross spokesman said 15 persons were killed and 38 injured in the accident, near Cumbres De Acultzingo, Veracruz.

Sunday Sports Approved

Sidney electors voted Saturday in favor of Sunday sports and entertainment with 774 voters supporting and 158 against.

A total of 559 votes was required in order to pass the bylaw, which allows entertainment for which admission is charged to be held on Sundays after 1:30 p.m.

Paid admission for sports activities with the exclusion of horse racing also is authorized.

Municipal elections were quiet in Sidney this year with Mayor Stan Dear re-elected by acclamation.

Ald. Hugh Hollingworth topped the polls with 667 votes and newcomer Chris Andersen won the other council seat with 570 votes, beating two other candidates. Joseph Armstrong, who gained 352 votes, and Bernard Ethier, who polled 211.

B.C. Voters Oust Mayors, Approve Spending Millions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Catching the Christmas spirit early, British Columbians plumped for more than $46 million worth of hospital and school construction in referendums held along with civic elections throughout the province Saturday.

Voters also approved expenditure of more than $8 million for sport and recreation centres, street and sewer improvements and similar projects.

The free-spending attitude of voters ran contrary to pre-election suggestions by many civic officials that high unemployment and soft markets for B.C.'s major forestry products would make approval of money bylaws and referendum difficult.

Referendums held in nine communities to permit Sunday sport and entertainment all won approval by solid margins. Another five communities plumped equally firmly against fluoridation of their water supplies.

Turning out in unexpectedly heavy numbers despite snowstorms and slippery roads, voters displayed a less charitable attitude towards mayoralty candidates seeking re-election.

With a handful of communities still unreported, more than a third of the mayors facing contested elections Saturday went down to defeat.

On the mainland, voters in the cities of Fernie, Penticton, Port Coquitlam, Port Moody, Revelstoke and Vernon rejected the sitting mayors in favor of new blood.

In two of the province's tightest mayoralty contests, the incumbents divided honors with challengers in North Vancouver and Port Coquitlam. Mayor Tom Reid of North Vancouver managed a 51-vote victory over challenger William Wallace. In Port Coquitlam, Ald. Bruce Scott squeeked by incument Jack Campbell by an 11-vote margin. Both results are expected to be subject to recounts.

Vancouver, the province's largest city, has no elections this year under the city's system of holding elections every other year.

Among cities re-electing mayors Saturday were Duncan, Grand Forks, Kelowna, Nelson, Port Alberni, Prince George and Rossland. They joined another 49 mayors returned by acclamation when nominations closed Monday, Nov. 29.

Despite heavy snow and slippery roads, 41 per cent of eligible voters turned out in North Vancouver City. The Kamloops election drew 64.8 per cent and several centres reported turnouts in excess of 70 per cent.

Women candidates won the mayoralty contests in the villages of Slocan and Lytton and captured a number of aldermanic and school boards seats.

Despite the unexpectedly high number of mayoralty turnovers, the big surprise in Saturday's elections was the ease with which money votes won approval.

SCHOOLS APPROVED

Voters approved a whopping $32,978,000 worth of school construction, including $11,300,000 in the Vancouver bedroom community of Delta that was approved 5,562 votes to 3,093.

Another $13,666,000 was approved for a variety of hospital projects.

One of the few money bylaws to go down to defeat was one for a $1.2-million recreation project at Kamloops, rejected 2,638 votes to 2,412. But Kamloops voters approved spending $598,000 for street improvements and the borrowing of $500,000 for a multi-purpose building project.

At Dawson Creek in northeastern B.C., voters rejected a $170,000 addition to the city's arena but approved the expenditure of $285,000 for a public library.

Plebiscite 'Not Decisive'

DUNCAN — Results of a plebiscite held on Malaspina Regional College Saturday gave "no decisive opinion" to the Cowichan School Board, chairman Dave Haywood said today.

Trustees had asked Cowichan taxpayers if they were in favor of the holding of capital building referendum for the college.

Residents replied to the question, which is not binding to the board, with a 48 per cent vote in favor.

Duncan residents voted 559 Yes, 544 No; North Cowichan voted 1032 Yes, 1223 No; and unorganized districts voted 402 Yes, 381 No.

Haywood said "a vote this close doesn't give us any firm guidance."

Board members were asking the taxpayers' opinion because the college will require that a construction referendun be held.

All participating boards have to agree to it being held, and Cowichan has said that if taxpayers voted No they would not agree to the referendum.

Haywood said it is going to be "interesting" to see what the school board does with the results.

He does not think there will be any necessity to make a decision until next year, when the college will ask that the referendum be held.

Ex-Army Chief's Daughter Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Marjorie C. M. Durnford, 70, only daughter of the late Sir Arthur and Lady Currie, died in hospital Saturday after a short illness.

Mrs. Durnford, a native of Victoria, was active in welfare work and recently served on the board of directors of the Canadian Guild of Crafts in Quebec. She was also a past president of The Women's Canadian Club.

Her father was commander of the Canadian armed forces during the First World War and principal of McGill University from 1920 to 1933.

Brentwood Purchase Soundly Thrashed

Central Saanich voters turned down the proposed municipal purchase of Brentwood land Saturday with a resounding total of 1,090 voting against and 377 in favor.

Purchase of the one-acre property for $53,100 for recreational purposes had been the subject of stormy discussions at council and ratepayer meetings since the proposal was made public in October.

Mayor A. M. Galbraith said last week that although the referendum was not binding, council would accept or reject the land purchase bylaw according to public opinion recorded by the poll. The bylaw comes up for final reading Dec. 20.

A newcomer to municipal government, Mrs. Jean Butler, topped the polls with 847 votes. Former council member Ray Lamort got 646 votes and incumbent Ald. Percy Lazarz was returned with 611 votes.

Thieves Haul Away Small Safe

City police said entry to the office was gained by smashing six louvred-type panes next to the front door.

The safe was taken from a cupboard. There were cheques and a book of company cheques inside as well as the cash.

Steuart New Saskatchewan Grit Leader

SASKATOON (CP) — D. G. Steuart of Prince Albert, deputy premier of Saskatchewan under the late Ross Thatcher, was chosen Saturday to succeed Mr. Thatcher as leader of the province's Liberals.

At a two-day convention estimated to have drawn more than 1,500 people to the Centennial Auditorium, Mr. Steuart was chosen on the second ballot over two opponents.

The convention was called after Mr. Thatcher died last summer, a month after the June election in which his Liberal government was ousted by the New Democratic Party. The NDP won 45 seats in the 60-seat house, and the Liberals 15.

Mr. Steuart, 55, was opposed by the member of the legislature for Milestone, Cy MacDonald, and a former member for Elrose, George Leith.

While it required two ballots to cement the Steuart victory, the outcome was never really in doubt after the first vote which gave the eventual leader 404 votes to 295 for Mr. MacDonald and 171 for Mr. Leith.

The winner needed 50 per cent of the votes plus one to win and Mr. Steuart fell 32 votes short of winning on the first ballot after the vote by 870 registered delegates.

Mr. Leith was automatically dropped for the second vote, the majority of his support going to Mr. Steuart, who got 535 votes to 314 for Mr. MacDonald, in the second round. Another 21 delegates refrained from voting on the last ballot.

The convention, which also elected 39-year-old Garry Wilson of Regina a party president, deal with little policy.

'No Pale Imitation Thatcher'

By ROD EDWARDS

SASKATOON (CP) — Elfish, robust, cocksure and ever ready for a good political fight, D. G. Steuart was elected Saturday over two other candidates as leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal party.

At 55, his political career may be nearing an end, what with the trend towards youthfulness, but if the age of the fire-spouter lives on, then so does Dave Steuart.

His style is a near-replica of that of the politician he succeeds as Liberal leader—W. Ross Thatcher—but he insists the leadership will be run his way.

"Anyone who thinks I'm just a pale imitation of Ross Thatcher or that I'm going to try to carry on the party in his exact footsteps, is wrong," he once told an interviewer of his long association with Mr. Thatcher, who was a close personal friend.

INFLUENCED BY DRIVE

"I have been influenced by his drive, his energy, his ability to organize but our philosophies weren't exactly the same. . . .

"I would be a different leader. I would hope to have some of the strengths he had . . . but we're totally different people."

Mr. Thatcher, who lifted the Liberals out of a 20-year opposition role in Saskatchewan in 1964 and was premier for seven years, died of a heart attack a month to the day after the New Democratic Party swept into power in the province June 23 by capturing 45 of the 60 legislature seats.

Mr. Steuart entered politics when he returned from the Second World War after serving in the air force.

"When I came back from the war in 1945," he said in a recent interview, "I found the CCF-Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, forerunner to the NDP — in power and frankly I didn't like what I saw.

"I didn't like the regimentation. I didn't like what was happening. I just don't like socialism.

"I don't worship on the altar of free enterprise either. I thought, well, if you don't like what you see, do something about it."

WAS MAYOR

Mr. Steuart, married with two children, was an alderman and mayor in Prince Albert, where he has a business, and is a former president of the Liberal party.

He got into the legislature in a byelection in Prince Albert in 1962 and has won every election since in the riding now known as Prince Albert West.

After the Liberal victory in 1964, he was named minister of health, later became minister of natural resources and before the June Liberal defeat he was provincial treasurer and deputy premier.

One thing that bothers Mr. Steuart is the Liberal party failure to attract 50 per cent of the vote since 1938 "while the CCF or NDP has done it two or three times."

"That's something I hope to do something about by opening up the party more at the local level, establish policy at the local level."

Israelis Pay Up

HAIFA (AP) — The Israeli government is going to pay a $10,000 reward to a blind Argentine who claimed he gave the Israeli secret service the information that led them to Adolf Eichmann. The decision ended a 12-year fight by Luther Herman, 70, of Buenos Aires. He said he discovered Eichmann's identity in 1959, when his daughter was dating the son of the Nazi war criminal, spirited from Argentina and executed by Israel in 1962.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

When Your Hair Is Falling Out

A very distressing problem for many a person is the loss of some or perhaps all of the hair on his or her head. The fact that this troubles many people is shown by the numerous "hair restorers" and "baldness cures" on the market — cures that, as many people have found to their sorrow, do not always work. A while ago, Jean Snyder wrote an article on this subject. She said she found 232 people in a major city who advertised their ability to cure falling hair.

Incidentally, when I was about 20, and the hair on my head started to fall out, my physician father joined me in searching through the medical literature of the world for a cure. I tried an ointment described by the greatest hair specialist of France, but it had no effect. I lost much of my hair and this is very important: I lost it in the same places in which my father had lost his hair. This showed me that generally, the only cure for baldness is choosing the right ancestors.

A friend of mine had a shiny bald head, his brother had a shiny bald head, and my friend's son later developed a shiny bald head; obviously, there is heredity at work.

One curious thing about baldness is that a man who has been castrated (has lost his testicles through an accident or through surgery), or whose testicles do not function properly, generally does not lose his hair. Even when he is 70 or 80 years old he may have a fine head of hair. This may be where people got the folk idea that baldness is a sign of virility in a man. Researchers are still trying to find how hormones affect baldness.

A common skin disease that produces loss of hair is alopecia, seen mainly in men. The trouble is not in the hair, but in the tiny tubes in the scalp where the hairs grow. Some men get alopecia areata. They develop areas especially on the back of the neck where there is no hair. We doctors don't know much about what causes it.

Skin specialists advise the lad with alopecia to brush his hair every night with 20 or 30 strokes of a fairly stiff hair-brush; this will get rid of most of the flakes of dandruff (which are really bits of dead skin).

Another type of dandruff is caused by a condition called seborrhea sicca (dry) or seborrhea oleosa (greasy), and it is very difficult to control. If my scalp was bothering me, I would immediately go to a very good skin specialist.

Fortunately, women do not get bald as men do, with a completely bald head; they just lose clumps of hair here and there on she has a big nervous shock or perhaps has a baby, will lose a lot their scalp.

Sometimes remarkable things happen. I remember a young woman who was about to be married, and all of a sudden every hair on her entire body, from her head to her ankles, fell out, and stayed out. No doctor could say exactly why she lost all of her hair, but she remained well enough to bear a healthy child.

Today hair loss is almost no problem for women because of the great availability of good and natural-looking wigs. Wearing a wig is the quickest and cheapest way of correcting the difficulty. There are even some very fine wigs for men in a great variety of styles.

I tend to agree with Jean Snyder that the best and cheapest prescription for baldness is a good dose of reliable information. In spite of the enormous amount of reading I have done on the subject, I have never found an eminent skin specialist who claimed to be able to cure baldness by making hair actually grow again on a bald head.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day brder is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

Lots of Talent Shown But Performance Uneven

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The cast that this week is peopling the Langham Court Theatre stage with an assortment of Dickens characters is probably as talented a group as you could find over a wide area.

In addition they have had some high grade technical assistance in the Victoria Theatre Guild mounting of A Theatre Under One Hat.

The script is by UVic English department's Reg Terry, who a couple of years ago was the collaborator in Return Journey, a dramatically staged reading from the works of Dylan Thomas.

This time he has dealt with the personality and creations of Charles Dickens, stringing episodes and passages from the novels loosely together in three-act form.

He uses Dickens himself and his hard-driven final American reading tour as the cord tying the package together.

GOOD MOMENTS

Ingredients for a rare and delighful entertainment are certainly there. And just as certainly the results are not what they should be.

There are good moments and Anthony Jenkins portraying Dickens provides many of them, in particular because he is an excellent and forceful reader.

Almost everbody in the cast — each playing a variety of characters — offers at least momentary satisfaction but the performance as a whole is very uneven.

Gil Bunch, for example, in a romantic interlude delightfully abetted by Ann Purdon, achieves for a sparkling instant the quality and style that should have pervaded the entire show.

In no other scene does he project himself to the same level tnd ocuisionally his performance becomes quite fuzzy.

SCRIPT PROBLEM

The problem is not with the actors but with the script which falls awkwardly between the stools of being neither a play nor a reading.

As a series of vignettes it requires a much simpler production style, better transition and lighting that is a great deal more flexible and precise than appeared on Saturday's opening.

As a play it lacks form and cohesion.

The use of slides to project Robert Cothran's charming drawings depicting interior and exterior scenes is pleasing but the stage design narrows the playing area so seriously that definition of the various scenes by the light crew is next to impossible.

POIGNANCY MISSING

In selecting his material Terry has laid the emphasis on humor which was fine with his Saturday audience.

But Dickens was also a master of poignancy — think of Nancy Sykes, Little Dorrit, Nell and her grandfather, Copperfield's Emily. Also, important in his claim to immortality is the role he played in social reform with regard to debtors' prisons, workhouses, child labor.

Nixon Outlines Hopes for Visits

ANGRA DO HEROISMO, Azores (UPI) — In an 18th-Century building that once housed Portuguese kings, President Nixon gave French President Georges Pompidou today an outline of what he hopes to achieve in visits early next year to Peking and Moscow.

That ostensibly was the main purpose of his conference in the Atlantic between the two leaders — one of a series Nixon is having with allied leaders over a period of a month.

Nixon and Pompidou put off until later meetings in the afternoon, tonight, and on Tuesday, a discusson of the thornier problems created by new U.S. economic policies announced by Nixon, Aug. 15.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the initial meeting included Nixon's report on his forthcoming trips but no details were given.

While Nixon and Pompidou conferred for two hours and 35 minutes in their first session, with only interpreters with them, their principal financial and foreign policy advisers met separately on the world money crisis.

The United States is anxious to give priority to negotiating troop cuts. The French are against this — particularly to negotiations between NATO and the Communist Warsaw Pact alliance.

On economic matters, Rogers and Schumann told newsmen that trade talks between the United States and the European Common Market could begin soon. But they displayed apparent disagreement whether the discussions should precede or accompany international currency reform.

Schumann said talks toward bettering trade relations could begin "only after an agreement on monetary realignment."

Have We Overlooked Possibilities of Ivy

Ivy has an aura of past ages; it belongs in an old garden hanging from tall dead trees or clinging to tumbling sheds and walls.

Are there no uses in today's gardens for this easily grown, undoubtedly attractive, evergreen plant?

I think we have overlooked the possibilities of the common "English" ivy hedera helix) as well as the less common variegated and unusual "sport" forms now usually seen only as small potted house plant.

Shaded and half shaded fences or wood trellises are quickly made beautiful if planted with a few rooted cuttings of the large-leaved cream and green ivy, hereda canariensis. This is strikingly lovely when encountered over a gateway on the north side of a house where an adjoining building keeps out all sun.

Soil needs to be well cultivated and enriched with leafmould and compost, but no manures or fertilizers are desireable.

Ivy wherever planted needs training in the first year or two so that its clinging roots will adhere to the structure. Subsequently it will need curtailing by pruning, in much the same way as a clematis montana.

* * *

Common green ivy will grow on the one wall where the Boston-ivy (Ampelopsis veitchii) will not grow, that with a due north aspect.

It needs training around windows to prevent obstruction of light and air, and it must be kept out of gutters. It insulates by its close-clinging growth and its evergreen nature.

Some of the fine leaved ivies, either in the green or variegated forms are ideal for clothing low brick, stone, or cement retaining walls.

These will take either shaded or partially shaded positions, adding an attractive feature. Frequently little else can be suggested for a shaded place, but ivy will take hold quickly from an early spring planting and soon show its worth.

The common green ivy can be grown as a shrub or bush by taking cuttings from the climbing kind after it has reached the top of its support and begun to produce flowers.

It will be noticed the leaves have lost the characteristic five-pointed shape, and become simply ovoid. The stems no longer produce rootlets. The flowers are numerous and greenish; the nectar enjoyed by moths in late summer and fall.

The tip cuttings taken from the portion with the changed habits will root easily and produce plants of only the ovoid (roundish) leaves and flowering habit, with no stem rootlets. The plants make handsome upright shrubs for impossible places (even under trees) if given half a chance with a good start.

TOY KILLS BOY

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A toy cannon loaded with gunpowder exploded at a home here Sunday night killing an eight-year-old boy. Authorities said Roy Philpot was killed by shrapnel-like fragments. The blast knocked a hole in the floor, injuring four persons in the room below.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Although the year 1971 is not yet over, I have a deal that undoubtedly will win the Academy Award as "the wildest bidding hand of 1971." The deal arose in the Life Masters Pairs event held during the Summer National Championships of 1971.

Featured in this deal — amongst other things — are 14 consecutive bids! Then came a pause for refreshments (or, perhaps, for air), after which a few more bids were made. And then came a dramatic and completely unpredictable finale. North-South vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

The first 14 bids (including South's double) were reasonably normal, at least on a relative basis; everybody either bid his best suit or supported partner in the latter's suit. When South doubled East's six-spade call, North had a feeling that this contract might be fulfilled on the basis of East-West's strength in spades an ddiamonds. So he "sacrificed" at seven hearts, figuring he would lose much less at this contract than East-West would make if they fulfilled their six-spade contract.

When the bidding reverted to West, he made the assumption (as erroneous as North's when he bid seven hearts) that North-South might well fulfill their contract on the strength of their hearts and clubs. So he elected to "sacrifice" at seven spades, to reduce the East-West losses if the seven-heart contract were makable.

When it came South's turn to bid, he assumed that North, who had previously made four (count 'em!) free and voluntary bids, had a real good hand (how could South have known that North had five high-card points?). So South thought it not unlikely that North, for his bids, might well have the spade ace. And if he had that card, 13 tricks could probably made. And so South bid seven notrump. East figured he could beat this contract, so he doubled. I didn't ask South why he redoubled.

West opened a spade, and when the smoke had cleared, South had gone down five tricks, for a loss of 2800 points. Without the redouble, the loss would have been "only" 1400 points.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Steve shook his head. "I never met Peter but of course I know who he is," he declared. "How old is he now?"

"You figure it out." Joe smiled. "He's three times as old as what you get if you total the digits of his age a year ago."

You try!

Jews Protest

NEW YORK (Reuter) — More than 2,000 ultra-Orthodox Jews demonstrated outside a hotel Sunday night where Israeli Premier Golda Meir was addressing a dinner meeting. The demonstrators, most of them wearing long black coats and black hats and with side curls, were protesting against conscription of women in Israel, which they say is against Jewish religious law.

Day of Skinflicks Nearly Over

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two top Western Canada theatre executives predict a new look for the movie fans in the months ahead.

Paul Morton, top executive of Odeon-Morton Theatres, manager for Famous Players, agree the day of the "skinflicks" dominating the movie market is nearly over.

"We have as always saturated a trend," Ferguson said in reference to the sex films.

"Now we are turning a corner away from these permissive films which have served their purpose. I predict producers will be concentrating on stories and good plots rather than shock value of bare skin."

Morton said a breakthrough is definately coming: "We are moving into a era of good quality pictures which the public will enjoy, pictures they can attend with their whole families for a change."

The two Winnipeg men said recent Canadian films such as Rip-Off and Face Off are examples of the excellent productions with viewer interest that can be turned out.

"I sat through the film Kotch the other night and it raised my hopes," Mr. Ferguson explained.

"Watching Walter Matthau in that movie and following the plot made me realize that we're no longer running an industry, for just one class of people."

Co-Operate Key Word Says Pollen

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE and PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A new era of co-operation between Victoria and Saanich could lie ahead with the election of Peter Pollen as mayor of the city.

Both Pollen and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, who was easily re-elected Saturday, said they expect an early improvement in relations, and have arranged a mid-week meeting to discuss the situation.

Asked if he expects better co-operation, Pollen replied, "very definitely, particularly when there is such room for improvement."

"I think it's in the best interests of both communities and the region as a whole that the two largest municipalities work in closest co-operation . . ." Pollen said.

How They Voted: Up-To-Date List On Page 3

FOURTH TERM

Re-elected to his fourth term, Curtis said he and Pollen "respect each other's view" and he is looking forward to "a good two years" working with him.

Curtis said prior to 1969 there was a "sympathetic contact" between the Victoria and Saanich administrations in the interests of the Greater Victoria community generally, "but that has not been the case recently."

Pollen, he said, looks beyond city boundaries and considers the region as a whole.

EXPERIENCE

Pollen said "in Mayor Curtis we not only have wisdom and experience, but obviously outstanding community leadership.

"I will be looking forward to working with him as I am sure Victoria council will be, for the best interests of the community."

Pollen said he wants to see "an early resolution" of problems in the Inner Harbor, and he mentioned Ocean Cement Ltd. and Marathon Realty as two companies he is hoping to get co-operation from.

Pollen defeated Mayor Courtney Haddock in Saturday's election by a decisive 2,240 votes. Two new aldermen were also elected to city council.

Haddock's was the first defeat of an incumbent mayor since the late Percy Scurrah turned Claude Harrison out of office in 1955. Haddock handily defeated Ian Stewart, his closest rival, when he succeeded Hugh Stephen in 1969.

The first results showed Pollen ahead by about the same margin as the final vote. Haddock, however, did not concede defeat until all votes were in.

With Pollen's win clear, attention turned to the aldermanic race. Mike Young, a 37-year-old lawyer and newcomer to municipal elections, was near the top of the list from the beginning and soon pulled ahead, winding up 260 votes ahead of the next alderman-elect. Young's total was 5,169.

THIRD PLACE

Incumbents Ove Witt and Clyde Savage traded second place throughout the vote-counting, and at the end Witt captured his second term on council 27 votes ahead of Savage, with a total of 4,909.

With Savage apparently assured of another aldermanic term, a third race developed between Bill Tindall, Bob Ellis and Alf Hood.

Tindall edged out Ellis by 59 votes near the end of the counting, with a total of 4,145. Hood ended up only 281 votes behind Tindall but never did hold the lead.

The massive 5,627 majority — 8,169 votes to 2,542 — was the biggest election win by any mayoralty candidate in Greater Victoria for years.

The result appeared a foregone conclusion from the time the early results started going up on the board at Saanich municipal hall, just before 9 p.m.

FIRST RESULTS

The first two results, from the prospect Lake and Tillicum areas, made it 134 to 53 and 282 to 94 in favor of Curtis.

And the tallies went roughly in that three-to-one ratio all

Board to Set Priorities For Surgery

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will seek cabinet approval for creation of a medical board to set priorities for patients requiring specialized surgery.

Creation of such a board would take these decisions out of doctors' hands. Loffmark made the announcement today on Vancouver radio hotliner Jack Webster's show.

The minister's statement follows an announcement he made Saturday that open heart surgical facilities at Vancouver General Hospital will be increased 25 per cent by the end of January.

WELCOMES MOVE

Dr. Tim McCoy, executive director of the B.C. Medical Association, said BCMA welcomes creation of the board provided it is a non-political body.

McCoy said doctors have had to bear a heavy burden, being forced to set priorities on which patients will be operated on first in severe conditions such as heart disease.

Making his announcement, Loffmark said he would "present to cabinet an order-in-council which will put the responsibility for this where it belongs — and that is on a province-wide medical board."

DELAYS

He charged the medical profession had delayed four months this year in giving him recommendations for establishment of new open heart surgical facilities and that Vancouver General Hospital had not spend funds approved for it earlier this year for more heart patient beds.

More than 150 persons are on VGH's waiting list for heart surgery. One of them, the last, is Vancouver bookkeeper Russ MacKinnon, 53, who has had four heart attacks. MacKinnon is not expected to live long enough before his turn comes up at VGH.

Lotfmark said today the

Dacca's Fall Imminent

Times News Services

Indian paratroopers advanced to within six miles of the centre of Dacca today,b rining the Pakistani defenders within range of their artillery, an Indian spokesman reported in New Delhi. He said the Indians would be in a position toca pture Dacca within 23 to 28 hours.

Gen. S. H. F. J. Manekshaw, chief of staff of the Indian army, broadcast an appeal to Pakistani commanders in Dacca to surrender. But a pooled dispatch by American correspondents in Dacca said Gen. A. A. K. Niazi, commander of some 20,000 to 30,000 defending troops, vowed to fight to the last.

Our army will either live honorably or perish for our cause," Niazi said.

A military spokesman in Calcutta said the Indian paratroopers, dropped Saturday and later reinforced, had overcome heavy resistance to advance to the Lakhya river ferry crossing six miles northeast of the heart of the city. Other Indian columns advanced with tanks and armored personnel carriers to within 12 miles of Dacca.

COMMANDER'S PLEA

Manekshaw appealed of the Pakistanis to remove civilians and foreign nationals from the line of fire should they decide to fight and added, "I hope you will not compel me to reduce your garrison by use of force."

Neutral planes flew 435 foreign nationals out of Dacca Sunday and only a small group of American and foreign newsmen and diplomatic officials was left. Dacca dispatches said many of the people had fled into the countryside to avoid being caught in the battle for the city.

Indian defense secretary K. D. Lall described the Pakistani garrison in Dacca as strong and said it had been reinforced by stragglers from other garrisons. He said Indian policy has been to avoid populated areas and to avoid

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon appears to be fighting a losing battle to rally public and congressional support for his decision to side with Pakistan in its war with India.

The president's move in supporting Pakistani President Yahya Khan, and branding India the aggressor in the conflict, has embittered relations with New Delhi but failed to win much support from leading opinion-makers in the United States.

Congressional reaction and newspaper comment has come down heavily in favor of India's case and against President Yahya for what is alleged to be his brutal repression of separatists in East Pakistan.

India claims repression in East Pakistan, which sent millions of refugees over the border into its territory, is the basic cause of the war. American opinion in general seems to agree.

Foreign diplomats in Washington say they have rarely seen so much open sympathy for a country which has been blamed by the American government for starting a war.

CONGRESS DISAGREES

Congress was almost unanimous in rejecting the administration's case.

At one point, Democratic criticism of Nixon's course became so sharp that the White House brought presidential adviser Henry Kissinger before reporters to insist the United States was actively promoting a political settlement, including virtual autonomy for Bangla Desh, when India attacked Pakistan without justification.

Kissinger said the United States had won several concessions from President Yahya, including an agreement to open talks with Bangla Desh rebels in Calcutta and indications he would grant East Pakistan autonomy in all matters except currency, foreign affairs and defence.

Slaying of Senator Stuns Terrorized Irish

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland was stunned today by the first political assassination of a current terror campaign when gunmen murdered a senator as his wife watched television.

The mutilated body of 68-year-old Senator John Barnhill, a Protestant and member of the governing Unionist party, was pulled out of the rubble of his wrecked home at Strabane early today. Irish guerrillas shot and killed him before blowing up the building.

The official wing of the IRA said today it was responsible for the killing.

Barnhill was killed by two armed men Sunday night at the doorway to his two-storey farm house, half a mile from the Irish Republic.

The killers placed his body in the living room and placed a 40-pound gelignite bomb beside it. Mrs. Barnhill was given two minutes to leave the house.

STAND KNOWN

Barnhill took office in 1962 and was chairman of the local branch of the Unionist party. He was not considered a controversial figure although his uncompromising stand against terrorism was well-known in political circles. He was the first member of the Northern Ireland Parliament to die in two years of violence that has claimed 196 lives.

Police believe a gang of terrorists from across the border was responsible for the killing. The same group was blamed for the killing of four persons in the same area during the last few months.

Expressing "furious disgust" at the murder, Ulster Prime Minister Brian Faulkner blamed outlaws of the Irish Republican Army, who have sworn to bring Northern Ireland to its knees by Christmas.

Faulkner said the assassins were from a special IRA terror gang staging raids into Ulster from sanctuary in the neighboring republic. He accused Dublin of failing to stop them.

Police and troops worked through the night to recover the body. Rescue attempts were hampered initially when another bomb was discovered in a car parked inside the senator's garage.

SHOPPERS SLAIN

The assassination came a day after two Christmas shoppers and two babies were killed in Belfast by a bomb explosion lacking the usual guerrilla warning beforehand to civilians.

In a sermon Sunday, William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, denounced the bombers and gunmen as monsters for their recently intensified terror campaign.

Referring to outrages, including Saturday's bombing and the recent murder of a part-time soldier in front of his children, the primate said:

"The entire country, Protestant and Catholic alike, is sickened and horrified by the events of the past two weeks."

British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, in charge of Ulster security, flying to Belfast today, is expected to hear demands from Protestant leaders that Ulster should sponsor a civilian peace corps—possibly armed—to help the army watch public places.

Hospital Strike Vote In January

Negotiations between the union and the B.C. Hospitals Association, which bargains for 73 hospitals, broke down last week after the government put a 6.5 per cent ceiling on increased salaries and fringe benefits for 1972. The union is seeking a 25 per cent increase over two years.

The two Victoria hospitals, St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee, are among those involved.

Ray McCready, secretary-business manager of the union, said the strike vote will be held in the first week of January.

Gun-Toting Trio Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were searching today for three men involved in a Sunday shooting at a city night club.

Frank David Belcher, 27, of West Vancouver was in serious condition in hospital with three bullet wounds in the chest and groin.

Police believe Belcher got into the line of fire of three men, evicted earlier from the B and B Club, who returned and opened fire with a handgun in the club's vestible.

Few Members, Funds But With a Mission

THUNDER BAY (CP) — It was seeing all those Canadian companies going under that got to Edwin Goodman.

"I really became a nationalist when I saw what was happening in my work as a lawyer with all those Canadian companies selling out to the Americans," Mr. Goodman said Sunday after being chosen national chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada.

The organizational talents of the former national chairman of the Progressive Conservative party will be taxed in his new role as leader of the new movement.

The CIC came away from its first national convention armed with a new constitution, a formal structure of councils and committees and a sense of nationalistic mission, but no money and undetermined support.

Another cause for concern was the absence of Quebec delegates.

HEADED BY LAWYER

Only a tiny delegation headed by Montreal lawyer L. Yves Fortier attended from that province. As it was, the vast majority of delegates were from Ontario. There were 10 from British Columbia, two from Manitoba.

Mr. Fortier, former president of the Canadian Club of Montreal, said French-Canadians would be able to identify with the CIC once the organization began to campaign in Queebc.

But Claude Lemelin, correspondent for the Montreal newspaper, Le Devoir, told the conference that Quebec already has a nationalistic movement in separatism and provincialism and would find little to identify with the CIC.

Government Sitting on Parks Study

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan will not reveal the contents of a white paper on Vancouver Island parks development which has been on his desk since April 1970.

The minister said in an interview it would not be in the public interest to release the paper, because doing so would create land speculation near future park sites.

The white paper was commissioned in Fall 1969, about the time Kiernan was under heavy criticism for a land swap with Raven Logging Ltd. of Campbell River.

Raven Logging gave the province 76 acres of land at Cape Scott in exchange for the right to log Strathcona Park timber worth more than $10 million. Value of the Cape Scott land was set at $300,000.

Kiernan first mentioned the white paper in the legislature in April 1970, saying no further land swaps would be made until the paper was completed. Though he gave no date for completion of the study, it was finished before he mentioned it in the house.

Indications are that the white paper was a rush job. A thorough study of Island park needs would evaluate industrial, population and transportation trends in terms of a provincial recreation plan under an over-all parks system plan.

Parks branch officials say such a study would have taken about one year to be done properly.

Kiernan said he told the parks branch to compile a list of park lands available for future swaps as part of the study.

Is there anything we have available that we could exchange for property from a parks standpoint, was what Kiernan was asking the parks branch.

In answer came a list totalling about 40,000 acres. Most of this land is rated as being of little parks value. The theory is to exchange it for land with better park potential. Swapping is a method of land acquisition the government uses to hold down costs.

Kiernan indicated the white paper outlined parks development on the Island for the next 10 years. He said he is "aware that the public would desire to know the plan, "but it would be "unfair to raise public expectations that may be unreasonable to fulfill."

"People, over the years, come to rely on what you tell them," Kiernan said.

The paper appears to indicate that most future park development on the Island should be in the north half.

FIRM POLICY NEEDED TO SAVE ISLAND

The economic future of Vancouver Island appears to be strongly dependent on the quality of its outdoor recreation areas and the visitors which they will attract.

Relatively speaking the Island is still an unspoiled area but it won't stay that way unless there is a firm government policy to preserve the parks and ward off commercial encroachment.

The revelation last week that even more of Strathcona Park is threatened by mining development and that Buttle Lake is going to be subjected to an extended period of mine-tailings pollution raised the question of what the provincial government's policy is towards the rich heritage of parks which are the property of all the people.

FORMER Lieutenant-Governor of B.C., Frank Mackenzie Ross, 80, died Saturday while riding in his car. Funeral will be held Tuesday. See story Page 17.

How to Persuade Her To Join the Gypsy Set

Our notes last week on the joys of trailering as a way of life after retirement resulted in several amusing phone calls and letters, summarized best by an Esquimalt major (S) who writes: "That decision, whether or not to launch a new life on wheels, following the sun, may put a severe strain on a long and happy marriage. In the services we find that it is the dream of a great many men, but they are unable to convince their wives. I know. That's my own problem and I see no solution to it."

The point came up when I interviewed Maurice and Ethel Wright who leave this week for Mexico in their trusty Airstream. Though it wasn't true in her case, Ethel agreed that such a complete, burning-all-your bridges change might be harder on a woman, but those wives they've met on their travels haven't merely adjusted to it, but love it.

An eloquent case is made in the current issue of the magazine Trailer Life, under the heading, "Women's Lib Is a Home on Wheels," under the byline of one L. M. Dickson. I offer it as ammunition for every man in need of a convincing argument.

"What can a woman get out of trailering?" Mr. Dickson rhetorizes. "Why should a woman of mature years give up her home, the cherished possession of a lifetime of homemaking, her two daughters and two handsome grandsons — to go gallivanting around the country for a year in a cubicle on wheels?

"My wife, Mary, did it and loved it. I had retired from 22 years as an advertising man in Seattle. We wanted to begin a new life in which we could both participate. Trailering seemed to be the answer. It was something in which she could participate as fully as I. And we hoped that it would pay some extra dividends. It did — in a surprising way.

"We lived exactly 11 months in our trailer. We hauled it from Seattle across Canada, down the east coast to Florida, where we spent three-and-a-half months, then back across the Gulf states to California and home — 19,000 miles.

"We saw others on the highway— greying couples like ourselves, towing trailers, driving motorhomes, criss-crossing the continent from Alaska to Nova Scotia, to California for the winter. We could feel that they had found a new togetherness a rejuvenated togetherness. We wondered about the cause of it. Just being cooped up in a trailer didn't do it.

"We noticed that all of the women we saw helped with responsibilities of trailer hauling. They were the navigators, read the road maps, watched for the highway signs. Every woman had to be as alert as her husband. And we saw several women who did all or most of the work in connection with hauling a trailer. One did all the driving because her husband's eyesight was too poor. Another drove because her husband had once flipped the trailer and he had lost his zeal for driving, but not for trailering. Another man was apparently a stroke victim; his wife did all the driving, parking, hooking up.

"That was it! The key to these successful requirements was very often the distaff members of the couple.

"Women who travel in trailers have loyalty, willingness and a sense of adventure. Just as the pioneering women who travelled with their husbands in covered wagons, these modern wives move into their trailers with doubts, but with a determination to enjoy the life. And then they find they have found something new.

"After a while they discover that they haven't taken on hardships and dangers. They have acquired a new ease and security. They haven't lost a home, they have gained one. They find out that fewer clothes, fewer utensils, fewer dishes, fewer sheets and blankets — all these constitute a blessing rather than a curse.

"They find that they haven't lost their friends, but that they have made many new ones. They find that new surroundings make up for the loss of their old homes and neighborhoods.

"In short, women who trailer have found a new freedom from the demands of housework, garden, friends and family. My wife said: 'You won't get me back in the house again!' Above all, the woman in a trailer with a retired husband has found a new way to share her husband's retirement. For the first time in history, the wife can retire, too.

Finally, today, my thanks to those of you who joined our Thumb's Up Club. There are now 70-odd automobiles in these parts with the sticker on the windshield that guarantees a lift for anyone who needs it. I still have a good supply of the decals which cost 35 cents apiece so don't just sit there — send money!

One of the most pleasant letters comes from Lorne Maxwell, who commutes into the city every morning from Langford. He writes:

"To tell you the truth, I was one of those drivers who passed the hitch-hikers by; maybe because I like my privacy in the morning and don't even make conversation with my wife that early except to say good-morning and good-bye. Your column on the subject must have hit my conscience. I pasted your sticker to my windshield and now make it a point to pick up everyone who looks as if he could use a ride.

"I can tell you that it's been an eye-opener for me. In these last 10 days I have met more interesting young people than I have in the rest of my lifetime. Last week I gave a ride to a somewhat scruffy-looking lad who, it turned out, was just back from India and told me more about the war there than I could ever have learned from reading about it. Again, there was a young woman, standing in oilskins in the rain, who hitch-hikes to UVic every morning and is studying political science. How she manages it, divorced from her husband and with two school-aged kids, was an inspiration. There have been many, many others as well. Believe me, it's been an education!"

'Ostriches' Reject Sewers

View Royal voters have a "head in the sand attitude" to sewer problems, Capital Regional Board chairman Hugh Curtis said today.

He was commenting on the defeat Saturday of a regional district referendum which sought approval of spending not more than $15,000 on a sewage collection system study.

In Saturday's referendum, 60 per cent voted against the study. For approval, a 60-per-cent Yes vote was needed.

Curtis said the study referendum's defeat is to be regretted.

"For whatever reasons, costs or fear or inability to see the facts, they have let us down and they have also let themselves down," he said.

CONTRIBUTING

It would be impossible to complete rehabilitation of Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway until View Royal stopped contributing to its pollution, he said.

"Saanich has corrected its situation almost entirely. Victoria is about to finish off its work in the harbor and Esquimalt had done its share. But View Royal has in fact said 'we don't give a damn.'"

View Royal residents don't want to know what sewers are going to cost. "They're showing a head in the sand attitude that makes one shake one's head," he said.

Curtis said those who live in the area must be concerned for their own health, but couldn't seem to realize that "no one else is going to do the job for them . . . that there is no Christmas gift to be received."

REPORT TO BOARD

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, declined comment today. He said he will be reporting to Tuesday's meeting of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Health board chairman, Saanich Ald. Frank Waring, said the vote means that regulations requiring septic tank effluent to be contained on the property where it originates will have to be enforced.

"I can understand people turning things down these days, taxes are getting so high," he said.

"Perhaps the lesser of two evils is insisting the septic tank systems are working."

Health inspectors have been testing septic tank systems with dye, and the first results show a majority of properties tested have malfunctioning disposal fields.

Whitbread has said that owners of property where sewage is leaking will be given three weeks to submit plans to fix it. Two motels and an appartment given this three-week notice have indicated they are taking no immediate action.

Gunning Back, Issues Quick Call for Funds

One of three Saanich aldermen re-elected Saturday said today the municipality's public works program will continue to be "crippled" unless the provincial government assumes a greater share of the cost of education and social services.

Ald. Mrs. Edith Gunning said she would like to see particular stress in next year's budget on good roads and good drainage, items which have been consistent casualties in previous budget-pruning sessions.

"But costs of $4.5 million for education and more than $1 million for social services are crippling our public works budget," she said.

"I do hope the provincial government will realize something must be done about it; that too great a proportion of these services is being paid by property tax."

BIG CHALLENGE

Mrs. Gunning said the biggest challenge facing council over the next six months will be to provide the necessary services yet at the same time hold the line on taxes, "which we must make a real effort to do."

She was returned to the aldermanic benches with a massive 7,422-vote total, larger than any aldermanic candidate in Greater Victoria.

Also re-elected were incumbents William Noel and William Campbell, with 5,697 and 5,554 votes respectively.

The only new face on council is that of Fred (Whitey) Severson, fireman and sports personality, who fills the slot left vacant by Ald. Foster Isherwood in his unsuccessful bid for the Victoria mayoralty.

The voting turnout, 34.2 per cent of eligible voters, was 29 per cent higher than last year and the highest since 1965 when there was a 38 per cent poll.

The referendum asking whether municipal grants to tourist promotion agencies should be increased resulted in a definite "no," as predicted by some of those who had opposed the principle of holding such a referendum.

A total of 2,890 persons voted in favor of higher grants, and 7,387 voted against.

There were seldom more than a dozen people watching the results go up on the board, and at no stage of the evening was there any excitement.

Noel, who edged Campbell out of second place on the last two results of the night, said: "I think the success of the past year is that we had a council which worked together as a team, despite the fact we didn't always agree.

BATTLE STATIONS

"We never got to battle stations like other councils have done."

Campbell commented: "I'm happy with the results. I think the ratepayers must feel the present council is doing a fairly satisfactory job."

Severson said he had been setting his sights on the fourth aldermanic slot, because he knew it would be difficult to dislodge the incumbents.

Despite his sporting background, he said, he had no intention of making recreation his sole theme in council affairs.

TAX CHANGES

One thing he will press for at an early date is a review of the whole property assessment system, to avoid penalizing with heavier taxes those property owners who improve their homes.

Obviously dejected, Roberts told the Times he was unable to understand the thinking of the Saanich electorate.

He said he had worked hard on his campiagn and was confident he was going to be elected this time. He congratulated Severson on his "low-keyed campaign which apparently was the answer to being elected."

But Roberts said he couldn't see that being elected to the Lacrosse Hall of Fame qualified anyone to be a Saanich alderman.

Low Profile Davis' Plan

North Saanich mayor-elect Trevor Davis said today he intends to actively involve the community in planning for its future.

North Saanich voters turned out in unprecedented numbers Saturday to give Davis a decisive win by 234 votes over Mayor Jim Cumming, who had led council since the municipality's incorporation in 1965.

Formation of an advisory planning commission and development of a new community plan were part of Davis's campaign platform.

The mayor-elect, who served six years as alderman, said he also intends to reduce the profile of the mayor's job.

"This is really a matter of committee appointments," said Davis, who had criticized the administration on the grounds that all of council did not participate in policy-making.

A comparative newcomer to North Saanich, 28-year-old Paul Grieve led the aldermanic contest which returned incumbents H. A. Taylor and Nell Horth. Grieve polled 922 votes, Taylor 773 and Mrs. Horth 770.

Townhouse Plan 'Shattering'

Alderman-elect Douglas McLelland said today that if Oak Bay council permits the building of 10 townhouses on the 300 block of Foul Bay the results could be "shattering."

McLelland, an architect with the provincial government, polled the second largest number of votes in Oak Bay Saturday, receiving 2,602. Heading the polls was incumbent Brian Smith with 3,569.

McLelland voiced concern over developer John Fitter's townhouse proposal for the Foul Bay block which is to receive consideration by council at its Dec. 20 meeting.

"I hope council will give this keen scrutiny," McLelland said. "The essential principle here is not whether the townhouses are esthetically pleasing or not. It is that this area is zoned for single-family dwellings. To spot-zone this area would be to set a precedent that could be shattering."

McLelland also hopes council will delay action on a bylaw to designate the block bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Currie and Newport a development area.

John Mace of Mace Homes and Investments Ltd. has approached council with another plan for developing the block. His original proposal to build twin nine-storey towers there was roundly rejected at a recent public hearing.

McLelland said, "It is regrettable that the Windsor block proposal should come before council again so soon, especially during the Christmas season.

"It is not fair either to the people or the developer. It is too soon after the public hearing and the people are not in the mood.

"If council gives the bylaw first, second and third reading on Dec. 20, they set the machinery in motion toward another public hearing.

"This would be government by exhaustion."

Incumbent Norman Pimlott placed third in Saturday's election with a total of 2,325 votes. Three aldermanic seats were open.

Unsuccessful in his fourth bid since 1968, Elmer McEwen polled 1,773 votes, Lawrence Mann 1,541.

More than 4,100 residents cast ballots — 41.85 per cent of the total eligible electorate of 9,789 and an increase of more than 3 per cent over last year.

WOMEN NEAR TOP AT POLL

One of the sweetest victories went to Saanich alderman Edith Gunning. She beat out nine male candidates to head the polls with 7,422 votes, 1,725 more than runner-up William Noel, also an incumbent.

History was made by a woman in the Central Saanich aldermanic race. Jean Butler, in competition with seven men, topped the polls with 847 votes, becoming the first woman to lead since the municipality was incorporated in 1951.

In neighboring North Saanich incumbent Nell Horth retained her seat, gaining three votes less than Paul Grieves and 152 less than poll-topper H. A. Taylor.

An effective comeback was made by former school trustee Rubymay Parrott. She topped the polls in the North Saanich ward of School District 63, receiving 874 votes, 409 more than Charles MacNeill.

While she didn't top the polls in School District 61, losing out to Mr. School Board, Peter Bunn, Daphne Temple also made a creditable running.

In the Central Saanich ward of School District 63, the victory also went to a woman, Emily Ann Foerster, who got 887 votes to Harry Johnson's 557.

And while the ballot boxes were the instruments that led the way to these victories, another woman in Greater Victoria was able to bypass them and still make her point.

$95 Pay Raises Sought by Clerks

Pay raises of $95 a month are being sought for government liquor store clerks in discussions which opened today between the B.C. Government Employees Union and the Civil Service Commission.

The union also will be pressing for pay increases averaging 13.2 per cent for 4,000 highways employees.

Basis for the proposals is a comparison of surveys of provincial pay scales and those in federal and municipal governments and in some cases the private sector, said BCGEU secretary John Fryer.

The $95 raise sought for liquor clerks, from $650 a month to $745, would give them parity with supermarket cashiers, he said.

Wage talks with Civil Service Commission usually run into January and February. The commission then makes recommendations to the treasury board, which has the final decision.

Close Contests in Rural Areas

In the Outer Gulf Islands, Saturna Island farmer James Campbell upset incumbent Joan Purchase of Port Washington by six votes. But a recount of votes will be held.

In Langford, where incumbent Earl Pallister was 12 votes ahead of Aubrey Jenkins, a recount was expected.

Ken Rainey was re-elected in Metchosin, Dick Emery in Colwood and Marc Holmes in Salt Spring Island.

Two referendums on Salt Spring Island narrowly failed to gain the necessary 60 per cent approval — spending $1,200 a year on recreation programs and a $50,000 activity centre.

In View Royal, voters passed a referendum for maintenance and development of Helmcken Centennial Park, not to exceed $3,200 a year.

Veteran Victoria school trustee Peter Bunn said today he is not satisfied that the great amount of money being spent on education is going where it is really needed — the classroom.

Bunn was elected to his sixth straight two-year term as trustee for Greater Victoria school district Saturday. He led the polls with 18,784, the greatest number of votes accumulated by any candidate in the municipal elections.

Also returned to office were trustees Mrs. Daphne Temple and Dr. Hal Knight, who polled 15,210 and 13,025 votes respectively.

The new trustee on the school board is Harry Graham, a retired engineer making his first try for public office. He polled 11,041 votes.

Buhn described the number of votes gained by the incumbent trustees as "an overwhelming mandate."

"ePople have now got to the point where they just don't think the multi-millions of dollars being spent on edueation are being efficiently spent," Bunn said. "Not enough of the money is getting to the real front line of education — the classroom."

He said the board is going to have to lop off more than $900,000 from the district's 1972 budget, a total that increased with the 7.6-per-cent raise granted district teachers by arbitration Saturday.

"Experience on the board has become very important," Bunn said, since the task of cutting the budget down to size is a difficult one.

He said he was pleased to see that Mrs. Temple and Knight would be able to use their experience on the boards as an advantage in this respect.

He also said the board will have to take a close look at the "middle management" area of the district's administration, with an eye to cutting costs as much as possible. Another area to be looked at, he said, is the district's computer and data processing facilities.

Unsuccessful candidates were Ted Robbins, who polled 10,750 votes, Frank Preston with 10,403 and Karel de Roo with 5,156.

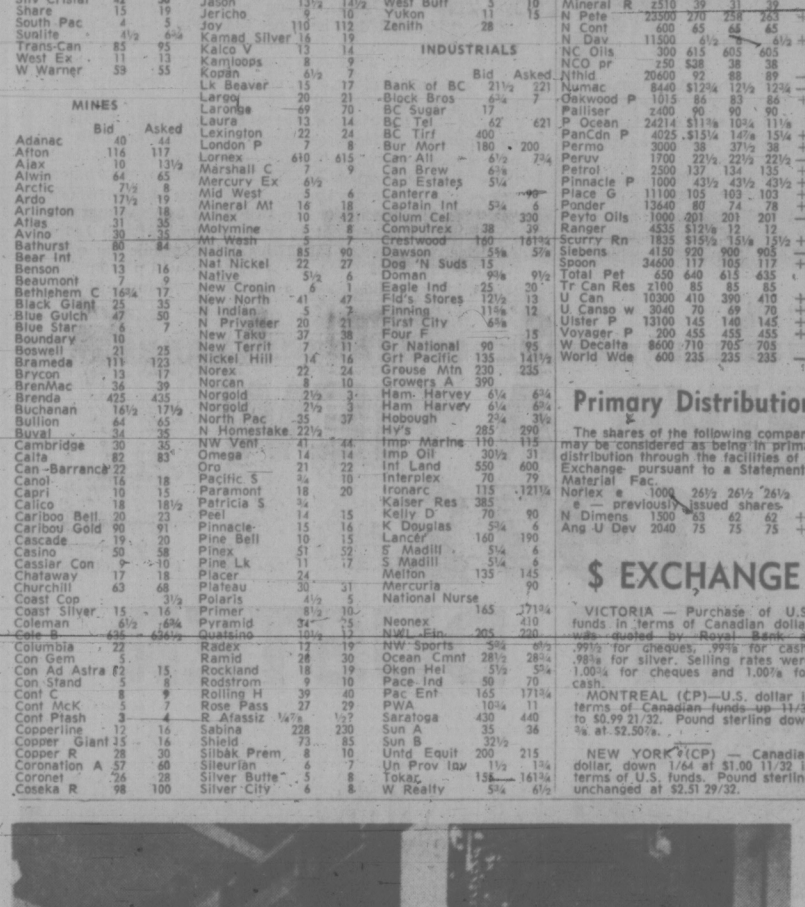
$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA — Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollar quotes quoted by Royal Bank at .99⅛ for cheques, .99⅝ for cash, .98⅜ for silver. Selling rates were 1.00¼ for cheques and 1.00⅞ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds up 11/32 to $0.99 21/32. Pound sterling down ⅜ at $2.50⅞.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar, down 1/64 at $1.00 11/32 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling unchanged at $2.51 29/32.



AN EMPLOYEE at Picker Corp., plant Cleveland, Ohio, uses the world's largest tire inspector on this 2,500-pound, 8-foot diameter tire. The inspector uses a combination of X-rays and television to enable an operator to see the internal construction of the tire on a television screen. This improved-design X-ray equipment can inspect tires up to 11 feet in diameter and weighing 6,000 pounds.

88th YEAR No. 156 VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1971 10 CENTS DAILY 20 CENTS SATURDAY

Co-Operate Key Word Says Pollen

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE and PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A new era of co-operation between Victoria and Saanich could lie ahead with the election of Peter Pollen as mayor of the city.

Both Pollen and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, who was easily re-elected Saturday, said they expect an early improvement in relations, and have arranged a mid-week meeting to discuss the situation.

Asked if he expects better co-operation, Pollen replied, "very definitely, particularly when there is such room for improvement."

"I think it's in the best interests of both communities and the region as a whole that the two largest municipalities work in closest co-operation ..." Pollen said.

How They Voted: Up-To-Date List On Page 3

FOURTH TERM

Re-elected to his fourth term, Curtis said he and Pollen "respect each other's view" and he is looking forward to "a good two years" working with him.

Curtis said prior to 1969 there was a "sympathetic contact" between the Victoria and Saanich administrations in the interests of the Greater Victoria community generally, "but that has not been the case recently."

Pollen, he said, looks beyond city boundaries and considers the region as a whole.

EXPERIENCE

Pollen said "in Mayor Curtis we not only have wisdom and experience, but obviously outstanding community leadership.

"I will be looking forward to working with him as I am sure Victoria council will be, for the best interests of the community."

Pollen said he wants to see "an early resolution" of problems in the Inner Harbor, and he mentioned Ocean Cement Ltd. and Marathon Realty as two companies he is hoping to get co-operation from.

Pollen defeated Mayor Courtney Haddock in Saturday's election by a decisive 2,240 votes. Two new aldermen were also elected to city council.

Haddock's was the first defeat of an incumbent mayor since the late Percy Scurrah turned Claude Harrison out of office in 1955. Haddock handily defeated Ian Stewart, his closest rival, when he succeeded Hugh Stephen in 1969.

The first results showed Pollen ahead by about the same margin as the final vote. Haddock, however, did not concede defeat until all votes were in.

With Pollen's win clear, attention turned to the aldermanic race. Mike Young, a 37-year-old lawyer and newcomer to municipal elections, was near the top of the list from the beginning and soon pulled ahead, winding up 260 votes ahead of the next alderman-elect. Young's total was 5,169.

THIRD PLACE

Incumbents Ove Witt and Clyde Savage traded second place throughout the vote-counting, and at the end Witt captured his second term on council 27 votes ahead of Savage, with a total of 4,909.

With Savage apparently assured of another aldermanic term, a third race developed between Bill Tindall, Bob Ellis and Alf Hood.

Tindall edged out Ellis by 59 votes near the end of the counting, with a total of 4,145. Hood ended up only 281 votes behind Tindall but never did hold the lead.

In the Saanich mayoralty race Saturday Curtis had a freewheeling ride home, leaving his opponent, A. W. (Bud) Mesher, far behind from the first lap.

The massive 5,627 majority — 8,169 votes to 2,542 — was the biggest election win by any mayoralty candidate in Greater Victoria for years.

The result appeared a foregone conclusion from the time the early results started going up on the board at Saanich municipal hall, just before 9 p.m.

FIRST RESULTS

The first two results from the Prospect Lake and Tillicum areas, made it 134 to 53 and 282 to 94 in favor of Curtis.

And the tallies went roughly in that three-to-one ratio all

Board to Set Priorities For Surgery

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will seek cabinet approval for creation of a medical board to set priorities for patients requiring specialized surgery.

Creation of such a board would take these decisions out of doctors' hands. Loffmark made the announcement today on Vancouver radio hotliner Jack Webster's show.

The minister's statement follows an announcement he made Saturday that open heart surgical facilities at Vancouver General Hospital will be increased 25 per cent by the end of January.

WELCOMES MOVE

Dr. Tim McCoy, executive director of the B.C. Medical Association, said BCMA welcomes creation of the board provided it is a non-political body.

McCoy said doctors have had to bear a heavy burden, being forced to set priorities on which patients will be operated on first in severe conditions such as heart disease.

Making his announcement, Loffmark said he would "present to cabinet an order-in-council which will put the responsibility for this where it belongs — and that is on a province-wide medical board."

DELAYS

He charged the medical profession had delayed four months this year in giving him recommendations for establishment of new open heart surgical facilities and that Vancouver General Hospital had not spend funds approved for it earlier this year for more heart patient beds.

More than 150 persons are on VGH's waiting list for heart surgery. One of them, the last, is Vancouver bookkeeper Russ MacKinnon, 53, who has had four heart attacks. MacKinnon is not expected to live long enough before his turn comes up at VGH.

Loffmark said today the

Dacca's Fall Imminent

Times News Services

Indian paratroopers advanced to within six miles of the centre of Dacca today, bringing the Pakistani defenders within range of their artillery, an Indian spokesman reported in New Delhi. He said the Indians would be in a position to capture Dacca within 23 to 28 hours.

Gen. S. H. F. J. Manekshaw, chief of staff of the Indian army, broadcast an appeal to Pakistani commanders in Dacca to surrender. But a pooled dispatch by American correspondents in Dacca said Gen. A. A. K. Niazi, commander of some 20,000 to 30,000 defending troops, vowed to fight to the last.

"Our army will either live honorably or perish for our cause," Niazi said.

A military spokesman in Calcutta said the Indian paratroopers, dropped Saturday and later reinforced, had overcome heavy resistance to advance to the Lakhya river ferry crossing six miles northeast of the heart of the city. Other Indian columns advanced with tanks and armored personnel carriers to within 12 miles of Dacca.

COMMNADER'S PLEA

Manekshaw appealed ot the Pakistanis to remove civilians and foreign nationals from the line of fire should they decide to fight and added, "I hope you will not compel me to reduce your garrison by use of force."

Neutral planes flew 435 foreign nationals out of Dacca Sunday and only a small group of American and foreign newsmen and diplomatic officials was left. Dacca dispatches said many of the people had fled into the countryside to avoid being caught in the battle for the city.

Indian defense secretary K. D. Lall described the Pakistani garrison in Dacca as strong and said it had been reinforced by stragglers from other garrisons. He said Indian policy has been to avoid populated areas and to avoid

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon appears to be fighting a losing battle to rally public and congressional support for his decision to side with Pakistan in its war with India.

The president's move in supporting Pakistani President Yahya Khan, and branding India the aggressor in the conflict, has embittered relations with New Delhi but failed to win much support from leading opinion-makers in the United States.

Congressional reaction and newspaper comment has come down heavily in favor of India's case and against President Yahya for what is alleged to be his brutal repression of separatists in East Pakistan.

India claims repression in East Pakistan which sent millions of refugees over the border into its territory, is the basic cause of the war. American opinion in general seems to agree.

Foreign diplomats in Washington say they have rarely seen so much open sympathy for a country which has been blamed by the American government for starting a war.

CONGRESS DISAGREES

Congress was almost unanimous in rejecting the administration's case.

At one point, Democratic criticism of Nixon's course became so sharp that the White House brought presidential adviser Henry Kissinger before reporters to insist the United States was actively promoting a political settlement, including virtual autonomy for Bangla Desh, when India attacked Pakistan without justification.

Kissinger said the United States had won several concessions from President Yahya, including an agreement to open talks with Bangla Desh rebels in Calcutta and indications he would grant East Pakistan autonomy in all matters except currency, foreign affairs and defence.

Slaying of Senator Stuns Terrorized Irish

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland was stunned today by the first political assassination of a current terror campaign when gunmen murdered a senator as his wife watched television.

The mutilated body of 68-year-old Senator John Barnhill, a Protestant and member of the governing Unionist party, was pulled out of the rubble of his wrecked home at Strabane early today. Irish guerrillas shot and killed him before blowing up the building.

The official wing of the IRA said today it was responsible for the killing.

Barnhill was killed by two armed men Sunday night at the doorway to his two-storey farm house, half a mile from the Irish Republic.

The killers placed his body in the living room and placed a 40-pound gelignite bomb beside it. Mrs. Barnhill was given two minutes to leave the house.

STAND KNOWN

Barnhill took office in 1962 and was chairman of the local branch of the Unionist party. He was not considered a controversial figure, although his uncompromising stand against terrorism was well-known in political circles. He was the first member of the Northern Ireland Parliament to die in two years of violence that has claimed 196 lives.

Police believe a gang of terrorists from across the border was responsible for the killing. The same group was blamed for the killing of four persons in the same area during the last few months.

Expressing "furious disgust" at the murder, Ulster Prime Minister Brian Faulkner blamed outlaws of the Irish Republican Army, who have sworn to bring Northern Ireland to its knees by Christmas.

Faulkner said the assassins were from a special IRA terror gang staging raids into Ulster from sanctuary in the neighboring republic. He accused Dublin of failing to stop them.

Police and troops worked through the night to recover the body. Rescue attempts were hampered initially when another bomb was discovered in a car parked inside the senator's garage.

The assassination came a day after two Christmas shoppers and two babies were killed in Belfast by a bomb explosion lacking the usual guerrilla warning beforehand to civilians.

In a sermon Sunday, William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, denounced the bombers and gunmen as monsters for their recently intensified terror campaign.

British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, in charge of Ulster security, flying to Belfast today, is expected to hear demands from Protestant leaders that Ulster should sponsor a civilian peace corps—possibly armed—to help the army watch public places.

Hospital Strike Vote In January

Negotiations between the union and the B.C. Hospitals Association, which bargains for 73 hospitals, broke down last week after the government put a 6.5 per cent ceiling on increased salaries and fringe benefits for 1972. The union is seeking a 25 per cent increase over two years.

The two Victoria hospitals, St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee, are among those involved.

Ray McCready, secretary-business manager of the union, said the strike vote will be held in the first week of January.

The union's contract expires Dec. 31.

Gun-Toting Trio Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were searching today for three men involved in a Sunday shooting at a city night club.

Frank David Belcher, 27, of West Vancouver was in serious condition in hospital with three bullet wounds in the chest and groin.

Police believe Belcher got into the line of fire of three men, evicted earlier from the B and B Club, who returned and opened fire with a handgun in the club's vestible.

Independent Canada Goodman's Crusade

THUNDER BAY (CP) — It was seeing all those Canadian companies going under that got to Edwin Goodman.

"I really became a nationalist when I saw what was happening in my work as a lawyer with all those Canadian companies selling out to the Americans," Mr. Goodman said Sunday after being chosen national chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada.

The organizational talents of the former national chairman of the Progressive Conservative party will be taxed in his new role as leader of the new movement.

The CIC came away from its first national convention armed with a new constitution, a formal structure of councils and committees and a sense of nationalistic mission, but no money and undetermined support.

Another cause for concern was the absence of Quebec delegates.

HEADED BY LAWYER

Only a tiny delegation headed by Montreal lawyer L. Yves Fortier attended from that province. As it was, the vast majority of delegates were from Ontario. There were 10 from British Columbia, two from Manitoba.

Mr. Fortier, former president of the Canadian Club of Montreal, said French-Canadians would be able to identify with the CIC once the organization began to campaign in Quebec.

But Claude Lemelin, correspondent for the Montreal newspaper, Le Devoir, told the conference that Quebec already has a nationalistic movement in separatism and provincialism and would find little to identify with the CIC.

Government Sitting on Parks Study

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan will not reveal the contents of a white paper on Vancouver Island parks development which has been on his desk since April 1970.

The minister said in an interview it would not be in the public interest to release the paper, because doing so would create land speculation near future park sites.

The white paper was commissioned in Fall 1969, about the time Kiernan was under heavy criticism for a land swap with Raven Logging Ltd. of Campbell River.

Raven Logging gave the province 576 acres of land at Cape Scott in exchange for the right to log Strathcona Park timber worth more than $10 million. Value of the Cape Scott land was set at $300,000.

Kiernan first mentioned the white paper in the legislature in April 1970, saying no further land swaps would be made until the paper was completed. Though he gave no date for completion of the study, it was finished before he mentioned it in the house.

Indications are that the white paper was a rush job. A thorough study of Island park needs would evaluate industrial, population and transportation trends in terms of a provincial recreation plan under an over-all parks system plan.

Parks branch officials say such a study would have taken about one year to be done properly.

Kiernan said he told the parks branch to compile a list of park lands available for future swaps as part of the study.

Is there anything we have available that we could exchange for property from a parks standpoint, was what Kiernan was asking the parks branch.

In answer came a list totalling about 40,000 acres. Most of this land is rated as being of little parks value. The theory is to exchange it for land with better park potential. Swapping is a method of land acquisition the government uses to hold down costs.

Kiernan indicated the white paper outlined parks development on the Island for the next 10 years. He said he is "aware that the public would desire to know the plan," but it would be "unfair to raise public expectations that may be unreasonable to fulfil."

"People, over the years, come to rely on what you tell them," Kiernan said.

The paper appears to indicate that most future park development on the Island should be in the north half.

FIRM POLICY NEEDED TO SAVE ISLAND

The economic future of Vancouver Island appears to be strongly dependent on the quality of its outdoor recreation areas and the visitors which they will attract.

Relatively speaking the Island is still an unspoiled area but it won't stay that way unless there is a firm government policy to preserve the parks and ward off commercial encroachment.

The revelation last week that even more of Strathcona Park is threatened by mining development and that Buttle Lake is going to be subjected to an extended period of mine-tailings pollution raised the question of what the provincial government's policy is towards the rich heritage of parks which are the property of all the people.

FORMER Lieutenant-Governor of B.C., Frank Mackenzie Ross, 80, died Saturday while riding in his car. Funeral will be held Tuesday. See story Page 17.

Montreal Subway Fire Probe Begins

MONTREAL (CP) — Investigators were trying to determine together the cause of a multimillion dollar fire in the city's subway system today while clean-up crews worked to clear away buckled tracks, sections of collapsed concrete and the wreckage of four nine-car trains.

The body of Gerard Maccarone, a 40-year-old subway operator who was to be married next month, was recovered Saturday from the cab of a train which collided with a parked one in the north-end Henri Bourassa terminal last Thursday.

He is to be buried Tuesday or Wednesday.

"We won't be sure of anything until we have a chance to examine first-hand Maccarone's cab and the train he hit," said Gaston Beland, a fire department investigators. "It was much too hot to do that when we recovered the remains."

He said sections of broken concrete showed temperatures reached at least 1,800 degrees — the point at which concrete desintegrates — during the fire which raged out of control for over 23 hours.

HAMPERED BY DEBRIS

Debris burying some of the cars was hampering firemen and subway employees using special cranes and a winche-quipped diesel to haul away the trains, each valued at $1.1 million.

It was taking 12 hours to move one car one station down the line, subway officials said.

Intense heat, dense smoke and acrid fumes had forced firemen wearing oxygen masks to work in 15-minutes shifts while battling the blaze which caused damages that subway investigators say could reach $10 million.

Mr. Maccarone's body was found after firemen pumped out the terminal tunnel flooded in a last-ditch effort to put out the fire.

LEG PINNED

Mr. Maccarone and another operator riding at the rear of the train were the only persons on the train which had just discharged 500 passengers before making a routine switching operation.

Montreal Urban Community transit commission officials said that in the ensuing collision the other operator made his way to the front of the train. When he couldn't free Mr. Maccarone whose leg was pinned in his cab, the other man escaped along the tracks to report the accident.

Transit officials said that in a 20-minute conversation with Mr. Maccarone before fire cut off communications, the operator told them the throttle had jammed.

However, the computer-controlled trains are supposed to brake automatically to prevent crashing into one another.

Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the Montreal Urban Community, said the Henri Bourassa station will be closed for several months.

Partial service was restored to terminals farther south on the north-south line Saturday and remaining stations south of Henri Bourassa are expected to reopen today.

Mr. Maccarone was the second subway employee to die in a work-related accident since the Metro opened five years ago.

A maintenance man was killed Aug. 17, 1967, when he was decapitated by a fan in a ventilation shaft.

HEATH LEADS

BROADSTAIRS, England (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath who recently conducted the London Symphony orchestra in a charity performance, took to the podium to lead a choir.

Heath conducted an 80-strong choir and orchestra Sunday in his home town's annual concert of Christmas carols.

Brief Term For Ontario Legislature

By ALLAN DICKIE

TORONTO (CP) — Armed with a personal mandate from Ontario voters, William Grenville Davis leads his Progressive Conservative government into a mini-session of the provincial legislature today.

The 42-year-old lawyer from Brampton who steamrollered the Liberal and New Democratic Party opposition in the Oct. 21 election, expects the session will end by Friday.

The speech from the throne, a statement of the government's intentions, will be short but will include his promise to cut provincial personal income taxes by three per cent.

By doing so, he hopes to increase consumer spending, stimulate the economy and generate jobs.

JOBS WERE THEME

Jobs were a recurring theme of the election campaign which left him with an overwhelming 78 seats in the legislature, compared to 20 for the Liberals and 19 for the NDP.

Mr. Davis also has legislation ready to eliminate medical care premiums for 230,000 old-age pensioners and 350,000 low income residents and to reduce them for other residents—also an election promise.

The average family of four with an income of $7,000 a year will save $45 annually in medical and hospital premiums which will be merged into one payment.

Approval for a $10 million program for construction of day nurseries as part of the government's winter employment program is also on the agenda.

Pen Office Bombed

MONTREAL (CP) — No one was injured when a small molotov cocktail exploded Friday night at federal penitentiaries offices in east-central Montreal. A fire department official said the 10:30 p.m. explosion caused only slight damage to the federal building.

Poet's Last Shine

VALENCIA, Spain (Reuter) — Gabriel Cruz, a bookblack who became a prolific poet and carried on his living by shining shoes, died here Friday after a brief illness. He was 70. He published seven volumes of verses, most of them composed in local bars as he shined customers' shoes.
